ROSS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

BUILDING INSPECTED BY THE DONOR LAST SATURDAY

Mr. Ross Well Satisfied with the Progress Being Made.

Mr. James Ross, of Montreal, the well known street railway magnate and capitalist, paid Lindsay—his old home—a hurried visit last Saturday, his object being to inspect the progress of the work on the magnificent hospital which, when fully completed and equipped is to be presented by him to the Town and County as a free gift.

Mr. Ross travelled in a special car attached to the 9 o'clock express from the east. He was accompanied by his son, Mr. John Ross, a modest young man of engaging demeanor, Mr. W. H. Wood, of London, Eng., Architect Taylor, of Montreal, and Mr. J. C. Grace, of Toronto.

Mr. Ross and party were met and welcomed by Mayor Ingle, Messrs. J. D. Flavell, T. Stewart, J. R. McNeill, F. C. Taylor, and other leading citizens. Carriages were in waiting, and the visitors were driven to the hospital where Mr. Ross and Architect Taylor devoted half-an-hour to a critical examination of the building in all its parts, and at the end they expressed their complete satisfaction with the quality of the work and the progress being made in view of the scarcity of men and material.

After a short drive about town Mr. Ross and party were driven to the station, and left for the east again at 10.30. To the members of the Hospital Committee, we understand, Mr. Ross expressed a desire that his magnificent gift should be known as "The Ross Memorial Hospital."

JANETVILLE ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Fowl Supper and Entertainment Last Monday Evening.

The anniversary services of the Janetville Methodist church were held Sunday and Monday this week, and were a gratifying success. Large congregations greeted the Rev. H. V. Mounteer, of Cavan, at both services on Sunday. Mr. Mounteer is a forcible and eloquent lecturer and he preached two very interesting and helpful sermons. The Methodists of Janetville are noted far and wide for serving fowl suppers in the best style, and this year was no exception—in fact, it exceeded all former years. From 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon—the hour when the feast began—until eight o'clock there was a steady gathering of people at the tables. Fully five hundred persons enjoyed the appetizing viands served by the ladies of the congregation in a pleasing manner.

After supper a choice program, consisting of music by the choir, and interesting addresses by the Rev. H. V. Mounteer, Cavan, and Rev. E. Roberts and Mr. J. Borah, Lindsay, were given. Rev. D. P. Oswald, a former pastor, was unable to be present on account of having contracted a severe cold a few days ago. The choir, which is under the direction of Mrs. Ashley, rendered some choice selections with pleasing effect. Miss Mabel Bradburn, who has a sweet soprano voice, favored the audience with a solo. Rev. E. Roberts gave a very interesting address, keeping the close attention of his audience for nearly half-an-hour. The popular pastor, Rev. E. E. Howard, was chairman and made a few choice and interesting remarks. The Methodists of Janetville can congratulate themselves on having given the most successful fowl suppers and entertainments since the opening of the church, several years ago.

Deer are Tame up North.

The crew of the Haliburton train came pretty near securing a deer each last Monday on their trip to Lindsay, and no doubt they would have managed the trick if the season had been just as the train was slowly rounding a curve a few miles north of Galt, Engineer Clarke noticed seven deer on the track a few rods ahead. He took the whistle and there was a quick scattering. Two of the animals plunged into the river and the others made for the bush.

Wedding at Fenelon Falls.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning in St. Aloisius church, Fenelon Falls, when Miss Jennie Power, daughter of the late John Power, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Thos. Jenkinson, a prosperous young farmer of Fenelon township. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father O'Leary, parish priest of Fenelon and Galtway. The bride who was becomingly attired in a tailor-made suit of dark brown ladies' cloth and black Galtway hat, was assisted by her sister, Miss Agnes Power, and Mr. Chas. Duggan supported the groom. After the ceremony, the happy couple, together with a few intimate friends and relatives, assembled at the home of the bride's mother, where congratulations and good wishes were extended. After which the party sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. The newly-wedded couple then drove to Lindsay and took the six o'clock train for a honeymoon trip to Midland and other Georgian Bay points. The Post wishes the young people a long and happy married life.

MONSIGNOR LAURENT DEAD

The Popular Pastor of St. Mary's Church Passes Away After a Brief Illness.

As we go to press our citizens are being told of the death of that good man and faithful shepherd of his flock—Monsignor P. D. Laurent, Parish Priest of St. Mary's, Lindsay, for the last sixteen years. A bad attack of bronchitis was the cause of death. His loss will be deeply felt, and the sorrow will not be confined to members of his flock.

Hunters Flock to the Woods

MANY SPORTSMEN ARE ON THE DEER RUNWAYS

Half-a-Dozen Lindsay Parties, and Others from Eastern and Western Ontario.

Another large party of hunters left town Tuesday for Kenesee Lake about 25 miles north of Haliburton, where some of the members enjoyed rare sport last year. The party comprised Thos. McConnell, (Captain), Robt. Miller, town; Chas. Dando, Galt; M. Goodwin, Hamilton; Hector Reid, Port Hope; L. Davidson and E. Dillman, Little Britain. Inspector John Short and several other citizens are planning to join the party later on.

The following from the Peterboro Examiner of Tuesday will interest our readers, some of the hunters being well known in Lindsay: Tomorrow night the Eagle Lake Hunting Club leave the Commercial house at nine o'clock for their hunting grounds on the lake of that name. This party has for years been the most successful hunting party going to the north country. This year they take with them nine canoes, a large Klondike and twenty-two hounds, some of the latter being the Bobcaygeon gentlemen says, the best pedigree dogs in all Canada. The party is comprised of Jack Cottingham, (Captain), who is an enthusiastic hunter, having leased the business in the swamps of Emily; Geo. Fitzgerald, the celebrated shot and canoeist; Chas. Gunzous, the trapper and hunter, late of Bobcaygeon; Chas. James, R. Tiley, the noted trap shot; Tommy Parker, who on this occasion will puncture deer instead of mending punctured tires; ex-Ald. W. White; Joe Gosnell, the "steakbeef" man; Geo. Mitchell, of London; Mark Dobson, famous as a fox hunter; M. C. Tooley, Farmer Pierson, Sam Courier, the Rice Lake duck champion; and W. Creamer, who a few days ago was presented with a compass, to avoid accidents of former years.

PETERBORO CHEESE BOARD.

High Prices Wa-9c. for a Few Factories—An Adjournment for two Weeks.

The regular meeting of Peterboro Cheese Board was held Wednesday morning. There was a large attendance of salesmen, and the buyers present were Messrs. Fitzgerald, Whitton, Wrighton, Cook Kerr, Rollins, Bailey and Sauve. In all 4246 boxes were offered by 38 factories.

The bidding opened with Mr. Fitzgerald's offer of 8c. 8-1-2c. was bid by Mr. Wrighton, 8-5-8c. by Mr. Sauve 8-3-4c. by Mr. Wrighton, 8-7-8c. by Mr. Sauve, 9c. by Mr. Wrighton.

Mr. Wrighton had first choice, and at 9c. took Keene, Fraserville, Bensfield, Ottonabee Union.

At 9c. Mr. Sauve selected Ormiston, Shamrock, Melrose Abbey, Norwood, and Indian River.

At 8-15-8c. Mr. Whitton called Shearer, who replied, "Shearer is looking for nine cents." Villiers, Westcott, Myrle, East Emily, Warsaw, Oakdale, Warrimister also refused.

Mr. Bailey's offer of 8-7-8c. was refused by Fleetwood. "It's no use calling them," said the buyer, "we might as well adjourn."

A motion to adjourn for two weeks was carried, with the understanding that no cheese be sold in the meantime.

Curling Notes.

The Thistle Curling Club, of Peterboro, met Monday evening and elected the following officers: Patron and Patroness, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McGill; President, Mr. Robt. Neill; First Vice-President, Dr. T. N. Greer; Second Vice-President, Mr. R. Kerr; Captain, Rev. Geo. Yule; Secretary, Treasurer, Mr. C. N. Brown; Executive Committee, Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, A. J. Stratton, Dr. McGee, J. S. Knappman, and the Messrs. Representatives to the Curling Association, Messrs. W. G. Ferguson and Chas. McGill. It was decided to choose ten skips at this meeting, and leave the election of the other nine to a future meeting. The following were elected: Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, C. N. Brown, D. Davidson, S. Ray, Thos. Rutherford, J. S. Knappman, C. Rutherford, J. Stanger, R. Kerr and A. Blade.

CHAPTER XXII.

I was very unhappy. Three days passed, and I saw neither Phyllis nor Gretchen. The city was still talking about the dramatic ending of Prince Ernst's engagement to the Princess Hildegard. Twice I had called at the Hohenphall residence to pay my respects. Once I was told that their highnesses were at the palace. The second time I was informed that their highnesses were indisposed. I became gloomy and disheartened. I could not understand. Gretchen had not even thanked me for my efforts in saving her the unhappiness of marrying the prince. And Phyllis, she who had called me "Jack," she whom I had watched grow from girlhood to womanhood, she, too, had forsaken me. I do not know what would have become of me but for Pembroke's cheerfulness.

Monday night I was sitting before the grate reading for the hundredth time Gretchen's only letter. Pembroke was buried behind the covers of a magazine. Suddenly a yellow flame leaped from a pine log, and in it I seemed to read all that I loved Phyllis and had made her a princess because I loved her. It was the first time I had laughed in many an hour. Pembroke looked over his magazine.

"That sounds good. What caused it?" "A story," I answered. "Some day I shall tell you all about it. If you will excuse me, cousin mine, I'll make a call on her serene highness the Princess Hildegard."

Just then the door opened and Pembroke's valet came in. He handed a card to me, and I read upon it, "Count von Walden." I cast it into Pembroke's lap.

"That's the man. He is the inseparable of the Prince of Wortumburg." Then to the valet, "Show him up."

The count gracefully passed over the threshold.

"Good evening," he said, with a look of inquiry at Pembroke.

"This gentleman," said I as I introduced him, "will second me in the affair tomorrow morning. I suppose you have come to make the final arrangements?"

"Pardon me," began Pembroke, "but I do not understand."

"Oh, I forgot! You are," I responded, "to be my second in a duel tomorrow morning. Should anything happen to me it will be well to have a friend near by, better still a relative. Well, count?"

"The prince desires me to inform you that he has selected pistols at your request, and despite the fact that he has only the use of his left hand he permits you to use either of yours. There will be one shot each, the firing to be drawn for on the grounds. The time is 6, the place one mile out on the north road in the rear of the Strassburg inn. I trust this is entirely satisfactory to you?"

"It is," I answered.

"Then allow me to bid you good night." He bowed and backed toward the door. He remained a moment with his hand on the knob, gazing into my eyes. I read in his a mixture of amusement and curiosity. "Good night." And he was gone.

Pembroke stared at me in bewilderment. "What the devil?"

"It is a matter of long standing," said I.

"But a duel!" he cried impatiently. "Hang me if I'll be your second or let you fight! These are not the days of Richelieu. It is pure murder. It is against the law."

"But I cannot draw back honorably," I said. "I cannot."

"I'll notify the police and have them stop it," he said, with determination.

"And have us all arrested and laughed at from one end of the continent to the other. My dear cousin, that man shot the dearest friend I had in the world. I am going to try to kill him at the risk of getting killed myself. He has also insulted the noblest woman that ever lived. If I backed down, I should be called a coward. The people who respect me now would close their doors in my face."

"But you have everything to lose, and he has nothing to gain."

"It cannot be helped," said I. "The woman I love once fought a duel for me. I cannot do less for her. You will be my second?"

"Yes. But if he wounds you woe to him."

"Very well. I'll leave you," said I.

It was not far to the residence of their highnesses, so I walked.

The liveried footman took my card.

"Present it to her highness the Princess Hildegard," I said as I passed into the hall.

"Her serene highness has left town, I believe, your excellency. Her serene highness the Princess Elizabeth is dining at the palace."

"Gone?" said I.

My hands shook as I accepted the missive, and the lights began to waver. I passed out into the cold air. Gone? And why? I walked back to the rooms in feverish haste. Pembroke was still at his reading.

"Hello! What brings you back so soon?"

"She was not at home," I answered. I threw my coat and hat on the sofa. I balanced the envelope in my hand. I drew forth the contents and read it.

Her Worth—Forgive the indication of a princess. On my honor I am sorry for having made you believe that you inspired me with the idea. It was a caprice of mine which I heartily regret. There is nothing to forgive; there is much to forget. However, I am under great obligations to you. I am positive that I shall love my sister as I should love her deeply. Forgive me for playing with what the French call your summer affections. I am about to leave for Hohenphall to prepare the way for the new sovereign. Will you kindly destroy that one indiscreet letter which I, in the spirit of mischief, wrote you last autumn?

THE PRINCESS HILDEGARDE.

The envelope reminded me of a rusty scabbard; there was a very keen weapon within. I lit my pipe and puffed for awhile.

"Cousin," said I, "I have a premonition that I shall not kill Prince Ernst of Wortumburg at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning."

"What put that into your head? You are not going to back down after all, are you?"

"Decidedly not. Something strikes me that I shall win fire."

"Pshaw!" exclaimed Pembroke. "I have been thinking it over, and I've come to the conclusion that it would not be a bad plan to rid this world of a man like your prince. It'll all come out right in the end. You will wed the Princess Hildegard just as sure as I will not wed her sister." He spoke the last words rapidly, as though afraid of them.

"I shall never marry the Princess Hildegard," said I. "She has gone."

"Gone? Where?"

"It matters not where. Suffice it is that she has gone. Pembroke, you and I were very unfortunate fellows. What earthly use have princesses for you and me? The little knowledge of court we have was got out of cheap books and newspaper articles. To talk with kings and princesses it requires an innate etiquette which commoners cannot learn. We are not to the manner born. These princesses are but candles, and now that we have shined our motley wings and are crippled so that we may not fly again let us beware. This may or may not be my last night on earth. Let us go to the opera. Let us be original in all things. I shall pay a prima donna to sing my requiem from the footlights before I am dead."

"Jack!" cried Pembroke anxiously. "Oh, do not worry!" said I. "I am only trying to laugh, but I can't."

"Are you truly serious about going to the opera?" he asked.

"Yes. Hurry and dress," said I.

So we went to the opera. They are full of wonderful scenes, these continental opera houses. Here and there one sees the brilliant uniforms, blue and scarlet and brown, glittering with insignias and softened by furs. Old men with sashes crossing the white bosoms of their linen dominate the boxes, and the beauty of woman is often lost in the sparkle of jewels. And hovering over all is an oppressive fragrance. Pembroke's glasses were roving about. Presently he touched my arm.

"In the upper proscenium," he said.

It was Phyllis. The chancellor and the Grand Duke of S— were with her.

"It is," I answered.

"Then allow me to bid you good night." He bowed and backed toward the door. He remained a moment with his hand on the knob, gazing into my eyes. I read in his a mixture of amusement and curiosity. "Good night." And he was gone.

Pembroke stared at me in bewilderment. "What the devil?"

"It is a matter of long standing," said I.

"But a duel!" he cried impatiently. "Hang me if I'll be your second or let you fight! These are not the days of Richelieu. It is pure murder. It is against the law."

"I'll notify the police and have them stop it," he said, with determination.

"And have us all arrested and laughed at from one end of the continent to the other. My dear cousin, that man shot the dearest friend I had in the world. I am going to try to kill him at the risk of getting killed myself. He has also insulted the noblest woman that ever lived. If I backed down, I should be called a coward. The people who respect me now would close their doors in my face."

"But you have everything to lose, and he has nothing to gain."

"It cannot be helped," said I. "The woman I love once fought a duel for me. I cannot do less for her. You will be my second?"

"Yes. But if he wounds you woe to him."

"Very well. I'll leave you," said I.

It was not far to the residence of their highnesses, so I walked.

The liveried footman took my card.

"Present it to her highness the Princess Hildegard," I said as I passed into the hall.

"Her serene highness has left town, I believe, your excellency. Her serene highness the Princess Elizabeth is dining at the palace."

"Gone?" said I.

My hands shook as I accepted the missive, and the lights began to waver. I passed out into the cold air. Gone? And why? I walked back to the rooms in feverish haste. Pembroke was still at his reading.

"Hello! What brings you back so soon?"

"She was not at home," I answered. I threw my coat and hat on the sofa. I balanced the envelope in my hand. I drew forth the contents and read it.

Her Worth—Forgive the indication of a princess. On my honor I am sorry for having made you believe that you inspired me with the idea. It was a caprice of mine which I heartily regret. There is nothing to forgive; there is much to forget. However, I am under great obligations to you. I am positive that I shall love my sister as I should love her deeply. Forgive me for playing with what the French call your summer affections. I am about to leave for Hohenphall to prepare the way for the new sovereign. Will you kindly destroy that one indiscreet letter which I, in the spirit of mischief, wrote you last autumn?

THE PRINCESS HILDEGARDE.

The envelope reminded me of a rusty scabbard; there was a very keen weapon within. I lit my pipe and puffed for awhile.

"Cousin," said I, "I have a premonition that I shall not kill Prince Ernst of Wortumburg at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning."

"What put that into your head? You are not going to back down after all, are you?"

"Decidedly not. Something strikes me that I shall win fire."

"Pshaw!" exclaimed Pembroke. "I have been thinking it over, and I've come to the conclusion that it would not be a bad plan to rid this world of a man like your prince. It'll all come out right in the end. You will wed the Princess Hildegard just as sure as I will not wed her sister." He spoke the last words rapidly, as though afraid of them.

"Gone? Where?"

"It matters not where. Suffice it is that she has gone. Pembroke, you and I were very unfortunate fellows. What earthly use have princesses for you and me? The little knowledge of court we have was got out of cheap books and newspaper articles. To talk with kings and princesses it requires an innate etiquette which commoners cannot learn. We are not to the manner born. These princesses are but candles, and now that we have shined our motley wings and are crippled so that we may not fly again let us beware. This may or may not be my last night on earth. Let us go to the opera. Let us be original in all things. I shall pay a prima donna to sing my requiem from the footlights before I am dead."

"Jack!" cried Pembroke anxiously. "Oh, do not worry!" said I. "I am only trying to laugh, but I can't."

"Are you truly serious about going to the opera?" he asked.

"Yes. Hurry and dress," said I.

So we went to the opera. They are full of wonderful scenes, these continental opera houses. Here and there one sees the brilliant uniforms, blue and scarlet and brown, glittering with insignias and softened by furs. Old men with sashes crossing the white bosoms of their linen dominate the boxes, and the beauty of woman is often lost in the sparkle of jewels. And hovering over all is an oppressive fragrance. Pembroke's glasses were roving about. Presently he touched my arm.

"In the upper proscenium," he said.

It was Phyllis. The chancellor and the Grand Duke of S— were with her.

"It is," I answered.

"Then allow me to bid you good night." He bowed and backed toward the door. He remained a moment with his hand on the knob, gazing into my eyes. I read in his a mixture of amusement and curiosity. "Good night." And he was gone.

Pembroke stared at me in bewilderment. "What the devil?"

"It is a matter of long standing," said I.

"But a duel!" he cried impatiently. "Hang me if I'll be your second or let you fight! These are not the days of Richelieu. It is pure murder. It is against the law."

"I'll notify the police and have them stop it," he said, with determination.

"And have us all arrested and laughed at from one end of the continent to the other. My dear cousin, that man shot the dearest friend I had in the world. I am going to try to kill him at the risk of getting killed myself. He has also insulted the noblest woman that ever lived. If I backed down, I should be called a coward. The people who respect me now would close their doors in my face."

"But you have everything to lose, and he has nothing to gain."

"It cannot be helped," said I. "The woman I love once fought a duel for me. I cannot do less for her. You will be my second?"

"Yes. But if he wounds you woe to him."

"Very well. I'll leave you," said I.

It was not far to the residence of their highnesses, so I walked.

The liveried footman took my card.

"Her serene highness has left town, I believe, your excellency. Her serene highness the Princess Elizabeth is dining at the palace."

Since Thursday it has been a continuous performance of presentations. And I care absolutely nothing for it all. Indeed, it rests heavily upon me. I am no longer free. Ah, Jack, and to think that I must blame you! I have been longing all the evening for the little garden at home. Yes, it will always be home to me. I am almost an alien. I would rather sell lemonade to poor reporters who had only 25 cent pieces in their pockets than queen it over a people that do not interest me and with whom I have nothing in common. She whom I have nothing in common. She smiled, rather sadly, I thought, at the remembrance of that garden scene so long ago.

"Time has a cruel way of moving us around," said I, snapping the clasps on my gloves and pulling the fingers and was looking everywhere but at her. I was wondering if I should ever see her again. "When is the coronation to take place?"

"In June. The king does not wish to hurry me. You see, I must learn to be a princess first. It was kind of him. And you will be at Hohenphall to witness the event?"

"If nothing happens. We live in a continual uncertainty."

She regarded me somewhat strangely.

"Is there a significance in that last sentence?"

"No," I answered. "I felt compelled to add something. But here come some of your new admirers. Their glittering medals will make me feel out of place if I remain. I shall do my best to accept your invitation."

"Jack, you are hiding something from me. Are you going to leave the city to search for her?"

"No," said I. "The truth is, with a miserable attempt to smile, 'I have an engagement tomorrow morning, and it is impossible to tell how long it will last. Good night.'"

Fate played loose with me that night. As I was turning down the corridor I ran into the prince. He was accompanied by Von Walden and an attaché whom I knew.

"Good evening," said the prince. "Do you not prefer the French opera, after all?"

"All good music is the same to me," I answered, calmly returning his amused look with a contemptuous one. "Wagner, Verdi, Gounod or Bizet, it matters not."

"Till we meet again," he said as I continued on. "Shall I add pleasant dreams?"

"I am obliged to you," I answered over my shoulder. "But I never have them. I sleep too soundly."

"Cousin," said I later, "what was that opera?"

"I forgot to bring along a programme," said Pembroke.

CHAPTER XXIII.

When Pembroke and I arrived at the Strassburg inn, on the north road, neither the prince nor Von Walden was in evidence. I stepped from our carriage and gazed interestedly around me. The scene was a picturesque one. The sun, but half risen, was of a rusty brass, and all east was mottled with purple and salmon hues. The clearing, a quarter of a mile away, where the prince and I were to settle our dispute, was hidden under a fine white snow, and the barren trees which encircled it stood out blackly. Pembroke looked at his watch.

"They ought to be along soon. It's five after 6. How do you feel?" regarding me seriously.

"As nervous as a rod of steel," I answered. "Let us go in and order a small breakfast. I'm a bit cold."

"Better let it go at a cup of coffee," he suggested.

"It will be more consistent, that is true," I said. "Coffee and pistols for two."

"I'm glad to see that you are bright," said Pembroke. "Hold out your hand."

I did so.

"Good. So long as it doesn't tremble I have confidence of the end."

We had scarcely finished our coffee when the prince, followed by Von Walden, entered.

"Pardon me," he said, "for having made you wait."

"Permit me," said I, rising, "to present my second, Mr. Pembroke, his highness Prince Ernst of Wortumburg."

And the four of us left the inn and crossed the field. The first shot fell to me. Pembroke's eyes beamed with exultant light. Von Walden's face was without expression. As for the prince, he still wore that bantering smile. He was confident of the end. He knew that I was a tyro, whereas he had faced death many times. I sighed. I knew that I should not aim to take his life. I was absolutely without emotion. There was not the slightest tremble in my hand as I accepted the pistol. There is nothing like set purpose to still the tremors of a man's nerves. I thought of Hilars, and for a moment my arm stiffened; then I recalled Gretchen's last letter. I fell to wondering where the bullet would hit me. I prayed that his aim might be sure.

"Many persons think that I am a man without compassion," said the prince, as we were about to step to our places. "I have an abundance of it. You have everything to lose, and I have nothing to gain. If it is your desire, I shall be happy to explain that you wish to withdraw. But say the word."

He knew what my reply would be. "Withdraw," said I, "and have you laugh at me and tell your friends that I acted the poltroon? Really, you do me injustice."

"And do you hate me so very much?" mockery in his eyes.

"Not now. I did hate you, but hatred is a thing we should not waste any more than love. I have taken the bird and the nest from your hands; that is more than enough. You are merely an object for scorn and contempt and indifference now. No; I have no wish to withdraw."

"You read between the lines," he said. "Indeed, I should like nothing better than to have the privilege of calling you a poltroon and a coward and to tell your princess of it." He sauntered back to his place leisurely.

"Aim the slightest to the left," whispered Pembroke; "the wind will carry it home."

I pressed his hand. A moment later I stood facing the prince. I lifted the pistol and fired. Had the prince been ten feet to the right he must have been hit. I threw the smoking pistol aside, let my arms fall and waited. I could see that Pembroke was biting his lip to hide his anxiety and disappointment. Slowly the prince leveled the weapon at my breast. Naturally I shut my eyes. Perhaps there was a prayer on my lips. God, how long that wait seemed to me! It became so tedious that I opened my eyes again. The pistol arm of the prince appeared to have frozen in the air.

"It is getting cold," I cried. "Shoot, for God's sake shoot, and end it!"

In reply the prince fired into the air, took the pistol by the barrel and flung it at my feet. The rest of us looked on dumfounded.

"They are all of the same kidney, count. These Americans," said he, "they would be dangerous as a nation were it not for their love of money." Then to me, "Go tell your princess that I have given your life to you."

"The devil take you!" I cried. The strain had been terrible.

"All in good time," retorted the prince, getting into his coat and furs. "Yesterday morning I had every intention of killing you. This morning it was farthest from my thoughts, though I did hope to see you waver. You are a man of courage. So was your friend. It is to be regretted that we were on different sides. Devil take the women! Good morning!"

After the count had gathered up the pistols the two walked toward the inn. Pembroke and I followed them at a distance.

"I wonder if he had any idea of what a poor shot you were?" mused Pembroke. "It was a very good farce."

"I aimed ten feet to the right," said I.

"What?"

"Yes."

"Then you knew?"

"Pembroke," said I, "I had no intention of killing him or even wounding him. And I never expected to leave this place alive. Something has occurred during the last 24 hours which we do not understand."

"He was taking great risks."

"It shows the man he is," said I, and the remainder of the distance was gone in silence.

The carriages were in the road a short way from the inn. Pembroke and I got into ours. As the prince placed a foot on the step of his he turned once more to me.

"Pardon me," he said, "but I came near forgetting to tell you why I did not kill you this morning. In some way your princess came into the knowledge that we were going to fight it out as they did in the old days. She came to my rooms and there begged me to spare your life. There was a condition. It was that she get down on her knees to sue—down on her knees. Ah, what was your life compared to the joy of her humiliation! Not in the figure of speech—on her living, mortal knees, my friend—her living knees!" The carriage door banged behind him.

It was only because Pembroke threw his arms around me that I did not leap out of the carriage.

"Sir sir, Jack, sit still! If she begged your life, it was because she loves you."

And, full of rage, I saw the carriage of the prince vanish. As the carriage vanished, so vanished the prince from the scene of my adventures.

Arriving at our rooms, we found them in possession of a lieutenant of the guard hussars. He was drumming on the hearthstone with the end of his sword scabbard. As we entered he rose and briefly saluted us.

"Which of you two gentlemen is Herr Winthrop?" he asked.

"I am he," said I.

"His majesty commands your immediate presence at the palace."

"The king?"

"Yes."

At the palace the chancellor met me in the anteroom. His face was grave almost to gloominess.

"Have you ever seen a king angry?" he asked. "Ah, it is not a pleasant sight on my word; least of all to the one who has caused a king anger."

"You alarm me," I said. "Have I done ought to bring the anger of the king upon my head?"

"Ah, but you have! The king is like a bear in his den. He walks back and forth, waving his hands, pulling his mustache and muttering dire threats. 'Might I not take to my legs?' I asked. After all, I cared more than I thought I should in regard to what the king might do to me."

The chancellor gave my back a sounding thump and roared with laughter.

"Cheerful, my son; be cheerful! You are a favorite already."

"You bewilder me."

"You have powerful friends, and if the king is angry you need have no fear."

"I should like to know"—I began.

"Ah," interrupted the chancellor, "the audience is ended! It is our turn. The Austrian ambassador, he whispered as a gray haired man passed us, bowing. There was an exchange of courtesies, and once more I stood before the king."

"I believe you have kept me waiting," said the king, "as Louis once said. He gazed at me from under knotted eyebrows. 'I wish,' petulantly, 'that you had remained in your own country.'"

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Some Interesting Statistics.

Ontario last year indulged in a very desirable form of record-breaking. The output of cheese for the province was over $13,000,000, an increase of $900,000 over the previous year, which, again, was $400,000 ahead of the previous year. A very gratifying feature of our agricultural industry is the large portion of this, no less than $11,682,000, or 89 per cent., which went directly into the pockets of the farmers who supplied the milk. Deducting the cost of haulage, the meat ten millions and a half realized from the milk of the cows. These returns represent an advance of $100,000 upon the sum received by the farmers in 1899. There was a slight decrease in the number of factories from 1,203 to 1,173, and in the number of patrons, from 60,400 to 59,300; the milk gave slightly better results than in 1899, the amount of cheese made was greater by over 2,000 tons, and the price showed an average advance of 36 cents per hundred pounds.

The statistics for the creameries also show a good dividend. The number now stands at 308—and the patrons are 21,890, as against 2,200 in 1899, while there was also a decrease of 72,000 pounds of butter. But there was a considerable increase in the number of creameries, as against 1,746,000 in 1899, and $1,632,000 in 1898. The patron of the creameries pocketed $1,589,000, or $140,000 more than they did in the previous year. A number of the creameries which did not operate were deterred from doing so by the good cheese season.

Butter and cheese thus in 1900 brought into the pockets of the farmers of Ontario twelve millions and a quarter. On the supposition that no farmers were both producers of creamery and cheese, the province contained 81,000 men who contributed milk to factory or creamery, and the average receipts in the year were $163.50.

INSPECTING FRUIT.

The Latest Regulations in Regard to Fruit Offered for Sale.

Farmers, buyers, shippers, and the public generally, will be interested in the following clauses of the Act lately passed to regulate the marketing and inspection of fruit packages. The clauses read as follows:

3. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, (a) The expression "closed package" means a box or barrel, of which the contents cannot be seen or inspected when such package is closed;

(b) The expression "fruit" shall not include wild fruit, whether wild or cultivated;

4. Every person who, by himself or through the agency of another person, packs fruit in a closed package, intended for sale, shall cause the package to be marked in a plain and indelible manner, before it is taken from the premises where it is packed;

(a) With the initials of the Christian names, and the full surname and address of the packer;

(b) With the name of the variety or varieties, and

(c) With a designation of the grade of the fruit.

5. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package and intended for sale, unless such package is marked as required by the preceding section.

6. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package, upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of finest, best or extra quality, unless such fruit consist of well grown specimens of such variety, and of a uniform size, of good color for the variety, of normal shape and not less than ninety per cent. free from scab, worm holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed.

7. No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a closed package, upon which package is given a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than fifteen per cent. of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than the fruit in the package, or of different in variety from the fruit or shown surface of such package.

8. Every person who, by himself or through the agency of another person, violates any of the provisions of this Act, shall, for each offence, upon summary conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding one dollar and not less than twenty-five cents for each package which is packed, sold, offered, exposed or had in possession for sale contrary to the provisions of this Act, together with the costs of prosecution; and in default of payment of such fine and costs, shall be liable to imprisonment, for a term not exceeding one month, unless such fine and the costs of enforcement are sooner paid.

9. Whenever any fruit packed in a closed package is found to be falsely marked, any inspector charged with the enforcement of this Act may effect such false marks and mark the words, "falsely marked" in a plain and indelible manner on such package.

10. Every person who wilfully alters, effaces or obliterated wholly or partially, or causes to be altered, effaced or obliterated, any inspector's marks on any package which has undergone inspection shall incur a penalty of forty dollars.

11. The person on whose behalf any fruit is packed, sold, offered or had in possession for sale, contrary to the provisions of the foregoing section of this Act, shall be prima facie, liable for the violation of this Act.

This Act came into effect on 1st July last.

SUGAR BEET CONTRACTS.

Four Companies Submit Terms to Ontario Government for Ratification

The indications are that next year the Ontario sugar beet industry will make a start worthy of the importance of the crop. This year, as last season, most of the product will be shipped to Michigan for use in the Michigan factories, but Mr. C. C. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, has already received copies of the contracts which four sugar beet companies in Western Ontario intend to use in securing the crop of next season. These contracts have to be submitted to the government for approval before the terms can be enforced. Though none of the companies have as yet erected their factories it is more than likely that they will be completed next summer and the machinery installed in time to handle the crops for which their contracts will call.

Cure for Potato Rot.

A correspondent of the Kingston Whig writes: To check the spread of potato rot in bins or pits all liberal dusting with pulverized charcoal will be of material value. It must be dry, however. It is a horrible thing to have potatoes rot in bins in the cellar under a dwelling house, very likely resulting in some bad fevers in the household. But the charcoal, thoroughly dry, will work wonders if freely scattered among them as they are put in the cellar.

Gold and Crimson

O glorious Indian summer,
We hail you on your way,
Why can't you, gentle maiden,
Take off your things and stay?

Too bloomin' hot was August,
July was also rough,
September had the fallage,
But you are just the stuff.

Fair girl of gold and crimson,
Your presence brings good cheer;
Write to your folks and tell 'em,
That you will stay a year.

New Sovereign Grand Master.

Dr. Sproule, M.P., the new Sovereign Grand Master of the Orange Order in British America, who succeeds the late Clarke Wallace by virtue of being vice-president, is like his predecessor, a member of the House of Commons. He was born in York County fifty-eight years ago this week, of County Tyrone parentage, and studied medicine in the Universities of Michigan and Victoria. He graduated from the latter in 1888, and began practice as a physician in Kalamazoo, afterwards moving to Markdale, Ont. He is interested in farming, stock-raising and milling, and has represented East Grey since 1878. He was chairman of Committee on Agriculture from 1893 to 1896. He is a supporter of the national school idea.

President Roosevelt Censured.

(Montreal Witness: President Roosevelt has been furiously assailed by the press of the Southern States for having committed the "damnable outrage" of inviting a "nigger" to dine with him in the White House. He is told plainly that he has closed the door to any accessions of the southern men to the Republican ranks, that he has committed a blunder worse than a crime, and no atonement or future action of his can remove the self-imposed stigma. The "nigger" who has brought this storm on the President's head is Mr. Booker T. Washington, principal of Tuskegee Colored University, a man famous not only for his high character and attainments, but for his lofty ideals and the practical statesmanship with which he has discussed the race question. Just previous to giving the invitation to Mr. Washington the President had won golden opinions in the South for making an important appointment independent of party considerations. Now all is changed and execration has taken the place of laudation. Mr. Roosevelt's course, however, acquits him of the charge of seeking for it that was his object in making the appointment, he could not have taken a more effective way of spilling it than by dining with a "nigger." Northern people have been accused of not understanding the color question of the South, but they do understand it. A man ought to be treated according to his deserts, and Mr. Washington being a gentleman worthy of high consideration, they will approve the courtesy shown him by the President. One thing, however, is a growing conviction in the mind of men, and that is that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to do right, whether he is or does not, and that, even like it or does not, he has been the way to success. It has often been the way of the cross. But as Mr. Washington said in extolling Wellington, "Not once or twice in our fair island story, the path of duty was the way to glory." Duty was a martyr to that anti-nigger spite, but who to-day would place any time server, however brilliant, beside that simple, true man?

Scrofula

What is commonly inherited is not scrofula but the scrofulous disposition. This is generally and chiefly indicated by cutaneous eruptions; sometimes by pale, nervousness and general debility. The disease afflicts Mrs. K. T. Snyder, Union St., Troy, Ohio, when she was eighteen years old, manifesting itself by a bunch in her neck, which caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. It afflicted the daughter of Mrs. J. H. Jones, Parker City, Ind., when 15 years old, and developed so rapidly that when she was 18 she had eleven running sores on her neck and about her ears.

These sufferers were not benefited by professional treatment, but, as they voluntarily say, were completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This peculiar medicine positively corrects the scrofulous disposition and radically and permanently cures the disease.

DOMESTIC HINTS.

—A nose of proper proportions should be one-third the length of the face.

—Pineapples, either raw or cooked, are recommended to persons with weak throat.

—Some people are very much troubled with heartburn, but if a piece of orange peel is dried and eaten it stops it directly.

—Parisian dressmakers have at last come to the welcome conclusion that for the street nothing is fit except a skirt that escapes the ground.

—If anything boils over on the stove, and begins to smoke and cause an unpleasant odor, throw a handful of salt on it. This quite removes any objectionable smell.

—A new idea in serving poached eggs is to pour brown butter over the toast before putting the eggs on it, and then sprinkle the whole with finely chopped pickles.

—Irish lace is said to be the coming lace for trimming the smartest gowns. The Limerick lace, although used, is not as great a favorite as the renowned Irish crochet, or Rose Point lace, in black, white, or unbleached colors.

—Water in which vegetables have been boiled should never be poured down a sink, for it causes a very lingering and disagreeable odor to permeate the whole house; such liquids are best thrown out upon the earth, where the smell will evaporate without being unpleasant.

—The family of the average American lives on a scale and a daily diet which would be regarded in Europe as lavish, such a one as can be afforded there only by the rich. The table is spread with abundance, not only with articles of domestic production, but of imported food stuffs.

—If a child shows a decided tendency to stoop keep him in the open air as much as possible, give him nourishing food, with plenty of milk, and encourage him to do a few simple exercises to open and strengthen the chest. This treatment is as a rule much better than the wearing of braces and supports.

—The life of any stair carpet may be very much prolonged by moving the carpet up or down, so that the tread is changed, falling on a new pile, and giving the old one a respite. To do this successfully it is well when buying the carpet to purchase an extra yard. This will go either to the top or bottom, and its use will be very apparent when you want to change the place of tread.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

—A Scotch proverb says, "Daylight will peep through a sma' hole."

—Time may be money, but somehow your friends appreciate the money you spend with them more than the time.

—He that honors his neighbor on account of his money will in the end part company with him in disgrace.

—Husband—"Thank goodness, there is no marrying in heaven." Wife—"What difference will that make to you?"

—"If you marry that girl for her money you won't come by it honestly." "That's all right neither did my father."

—Nothing is more disheartening to a man than the discovery that he's married a woman who loves to keep his writing table in order.

—If a man was struck by lightning in his own house on a clear day his wife would say it was just because he didn't take care of himself.

—Minister—"Our church is just like one family." Mrs. Candid—"Yes, indeed; I notice there is a good deal of quarrelling among the members."

—Mother—"Tommy, you're really too bad! Here's a whole in your trousers that wasn't there this morning." Tommy—"Where do you suppose it was, then?"

—"What qualifications have you for a detective?" "Been in the coal business all my life." "Cannot see the connection." "I've been lying in wait for dishonest men."

—Watts—"Just look at that fellow on the bicycle, will you? What in the world is the use of his humping over so?" Potts—"He must be trying to put his shoulder to the wheel."

—"What preparation have you made for the future?" asked the old man whom he hoped to make his father-in-law. "Well, sir," he said, confidently, "I am a Methodist, but if that doesn't suit your views I am willing to change."

—All the trouble in the world is due to two distinct causes—men and women.

—Many a man who lives next door to a church is unable to describe its interior arrangement.

—The bald-headed man may take some consolation from the fact that he was born that way.

—Mrs. Porkehope—"Bah! They're mere parvenus." Mr. Porkehope—"Mr. — got their money since we did?" Mrs. Porkehope—"Why, yes; they've just struck oil in Texas."

—A clergyman observed his little son attentively studying a map of the world.

"What places are you looking for, Willie?" he inquired.

The small boy knelt his brow and travelled a circuitous route with his forefinger before he answered earnestly.

"Twining to find Christendom."

—Mrs. Greene—"I saw that ook of yours coming out of the front door last Sunday."

Mrs. Brown—"Yes, she gives tone to the establishment, she dresses so well, you know. I'm not going to clothe myself, and so I go out at the back door, and in that way do not bring discredit upon the house."

GEN. BULLER RETIRED

Relieved of His Command of the First Army Corps.

SIR REDVERS PUT ON HALF PAY

The Speech He Made Oct. 10 at the Banquet Given in His Honor by the King's Royal Rifles Caused This Decision by Lord Roberts—Dr. Leyds a Person of Secondary Consequence Now.

London, Oct. 23.—Sir Redvers Buller has been relieved of the command of the army corps in consequence of the speech he made on Oct. 10 after the luncheon given in his honor by the King's Royal Rifles, dealing with his famous despatch to General White at Ladysmith. He has been placed on half pay, and General French has been appointed to succeed him.

In the official announcement the War Office says that the Command-in-Chief, "after full consideration of all the circumstances and the explanations furnished," recommended that General Buller be relieved, which has been done.

The Press on General Buller. London, Oct. 23.—This morning's papers, almost without exception, sympathize with General Buller. In fact they express so much appreciation of his services to the country that it is easy to see they wish Mr. Brodrick and Lord Roberts had not terminated his professional career. They express, however, the opinion that no other course was possible if public confidence in the administration of the army was not to receive a very severe shock. The Daily News stands alone in its outspoken condemnation of the official decision, and urges General Buller's friends not to rest until they have got Mr. Brodrick out of the War Office.

Leyds Put Down. London, Oct. 23.—Advices from Brussels state that Dr. Leyds at present occupies a subordinate position to the Boer delegates, Messrs. Fischer, Vessels and Wolmarans, who are now practically supreme in the Boer councils owing to Mr. Kruger's growing age and fatigue. Mr. Kruger was 76 on Oct. 10.

Immediate Boer Repatrials. New York, Oct. 23.—The Vienna correspondent of The London Times, quotes The Pester Lloyd, which says it learns from The Hague that Mr. Kruger, Dr. Leyds and Messrs. Wolmarans and Fischer have held a council of war at Villa Caracasa to consider what answer is to be made by the Boers to the executions in South Africa. There is said to be no doubt among the Boer leaders that diplomatic protests are inadequate. All present at the meeting, except Mr. Kruger, says the report, advised immediate repatrials, that for every Boer prisoner executed a captured British officer be shot. Mr. Kruger opposed this plan on the ground that he did not wish to give the campaign the character of a war between savages, although it had already become a war of extermination.

To Them Dewet Is Alive. The Hague, Oct. 23.—The former residents of the Transvaal who are now in this city entirely discredit the rumors of the death of General Dewet, emanating from Durban, Natal.

Dutch Troops Loose Heavily. The Hague, Oct. 23.—The latest news from the Dutch East Indies is of the most unfavorable character. In Achene, Sumatra, where a warlike, brave and devoted native tribe has set Dutch aggression at defiance since 1873, there have been vigorous assaults on the Dutch troops, who have lost considerably.

The number of the killed and the wounded on the Dutch side during September has exceeded largely that of any previous month for some years.

From Java come reports of an alarming shortage in the coffee crop, which only amounts to 96,000 piculs (12,700,000 pounds), against 225,000 piculs (29,735,333 pounds) last year.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 23.—The British royal yacht Ophir and her consort are expected to arrive here this morning with the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. Elaborate preparations have been made for the reception. More than 500 fishing vessels are here to participate in the festivities.

Closed November 2. Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 23.—The Board of Directors of the Pan-American Exposition, yesterday afternoon adopted the following:

"Resolved, that Saturday, Nov. 2, at midnight, be fixed as the time of the final closing of the Exposition."

350,000 Bushels a Day. Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—The weather has been remarkably fine the past few days. The C. P. R. is now carrying wheat to Fort William elevators at the rate of three hundred and fifty thousand bushels per day.

Plotted to Take Shah's Life. London, Oct. 25.—News has been received here from Teheran, says a despatch from St. Petersburg to The Daily Mail, "of the discovery of a serious plot on the life of the Shah. The leaders of the conspiracy were the Shah's two brothers, the Grand Vizier, Sadr Azzam, and the Shah's son-in-law. The two brothers have been banished for life to Ardabil."

Taken Sick at a Wedding. Bath, N.Y., Oct. 25.—One hundred guests were at the wedding last night of Clarence Carr and Miss Nellie Thomas at the home of James R. Thomas of Cass Corners. After the party, over 90 of the guests, including the officiating clergyman, Rev. George Scherer, were prostrated. Some of the cases are serious, though not necessarily fatal.

SIR ROBERT BOND, K.C.M.G.

Only Premier of Colony Knighted During Duke of York's Tour—Royal Party Sails for Home.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 28.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York started for England at daylight yesterday morning on board the royal yacht Ophir, with the British cruisers Niobe and Diadem forming the escort. The flagship, the first-class cruiser Crescent, accompanied the Ophir outside the port, and fired a farewell salute.

The Duchess, who has recovered from Thursday's faintness, attended the state dinner last night. Prior to the dinner the Duke conferred on Sir Robert Bond, the Premier of Newfoundland, the honor of knighthood, making him a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Sir Robert Bond is the only colonial Premier who has been so honored during the royal tour.

BASIS OF CANAL TREATY.

London Times Believes It Has Been Settled in Principle.

London, Oct. 26.—The Times, in an editorial article yesterday, says it has reasons to believe that the basis of a new arrangement regarding the Isthmian Canal has been settled by principle by the British and United States Governments. It has long been acknowledged, says The Times, that under the altered circumstances it would not be to Great Britain's practical advantage to insist on every lot and title of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, though that treaty is still legally valid, and is technically protected by a clause in the Constitution of the United States. In the matter of the canal, as in others, the American Senate checked the policy of Mr. McKinley.

The editorial adds: "We have never thought it expedient or reasonable to stand on our strict rights under the treaty. With a system of complete maritime freedom, Great Britain cannot fear, and may have much to gain from, the opening of a canal, whether by the Nicaragua or Panama line. The most formidable obstacle is the resistance, open or secret, of the railway interests. The uncompromising jingoism maintaining the control of the canal by the United States must be absolutely unfettered, have also to be reckoned with."

$4,000,000 Lost at Luffalo. Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The decision of the directors to close the Pan-American Exposition on the night of Nov. 2 enables the accountants to make a fairly accurate estimate of the loss which the Pan-American will suffer. It will exceed $4,000,000. The stockholders will receive back nothing for the $2,500,000 which they put in. Contractors who built the Exposition will lose $1,000,000, and the issue of $500,000 second mortgage bonds will be defaulted, as well as 20 per cent. of the first-mortgage bonds.

New Amer Encourages Trade. London, Oct. 25.—A despatch from Simla to The Times says it is reported that Amer Habib Ullah has made a liberal advance to the merchants of Cabul for the purpose of stimulating trade and reviving the former flourishing commerce with India, which Amer Abdurrahman's short-sighted fiscal policy practically destroyed.

Dr. Walker Is Appointed. Toronto, Oct. 26.—The Provincial Government has appointed Dr. L. Walker, assistant superintendent of the India Geological Survey and curator of the India Geological Museum, to the professorship of mineralogy and petrography in the University of Toronto.

Dr. Walker is a native of Ontario, and originally a graduate of Queen's University. Subsequently he graduated with high honors at the University of Leipzig, and became examiner and lecturer in mineralogy in the University of Calcutta. He has served for four years as his present Indian post. He presents the highest testimonials from Prof. Zirkel and Prof. Wislizenus of the University of Leipzig and from the director of the India Geological Survey.

Helped to Kill Goebel. Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 28.—Ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers was Saturday again convicted of being an accessory before the fact to the murder of Governor William Goebel in January, 1900, and for the second time has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. The case will be appealed.

Arrival for North Ontario. Toronto, Oct. 25.—The Ontario Government, next spring, will build a railway from North Bay, northward. The Commissioner of Public Works, who made this announcement yesterday, thinks that the line could be completed in a year, or, at least, Lake Temiscaming could be reached in that time.

Largest in History. Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 25.—The production of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania this year will be the largest in the history of the trade. Approximately the output will be about 10,000,000 tons more than in 1900, when the production was 45,107,484 tons.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 23.—The British royal yacht Ophir and her consort are expected to arrive here this morning with the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. Elaborate preparations have been made for the reception. More than 500 fishing vessels are here to participate in the festivities.

IS YOUR HAIR THIN?

All hair was meant to be firm, heavy and abundant; thin, loosened growths are unnatural, caused by a disease of the scalp, which can only result in baldness. In the white flakes found on the clothes, combs, brushes, and in the hair itself, nature gives plain warning when the disease has gained a foothold.

COKE Dandruff Cure

by curing the disease causes the dandruff to totally disappear, the hair to cease falling, and prevents inevitable baldness. Price, $1.00 per bottle, at all druggists or by mail. Accept no substitutes.

The Weekly Post.
LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 1st, '01
MR. WHITNEY AND AGRICULTURE.

Mr. Whitney's "Pop" in regard to the Clergy grants is not more noticeable than his professional attitude in regard to agriculture. He has found out that the country will not stand any nonsense in regard to the generous support of the Ontario Agricultural College, and like new found converts, he goes much further than is wise or necessary in announcing his conversion; if he were in power, he says, there would be more agricultural schools. How much reliance can be placed on his professions in this regard can be best gleaned from his past record.

The Bradford Expositor points out that in 1888 he opposed the creation of a Department of Agriculture, and held that the duties connected with this most important industry could be discharged by one of the existing departments. Had this view prevailed it is safe to say that much of the development which has taken place in the pursuit of agriculture in this province, under the direction and care of Hon. John Dwyer, would not have taken place, and Ontario would have cut a very different figure both in Chicago and Buffalo from what she has done.

During the session of 1893 Mr. Martineau moved, seconded by Mr. Kerns, "That the resolution respecting grant (in aid of agriculture) be not now concurred in, but be forthwith referred back to a committee of the whole house, with instructions to strike out the proposed vote of $1500 for the salary of an assistant in the department of natural history, library, etc., for the Ontario Agricultural College." Mr. Whitney voted for this motion, and in so doing evinced his antagonism to this most useful and well-conducted institution.

In 1898 Mr. Whitney voted to strike out the estimates $2500 for instructions in fruit spraying, $1000 for Pioneer Dairy Farm, $2600 for Western Dairy School and $2000 reduction in vote for printing. Here, again, the leader of the opposition showed his lack of sympathy with the agricultural interests.

In 1897 Mr. Whitney sought to reduce the sum placed at the disposal of the Guelph College by $2000, and to reduce the grant for the Poultry Association by $1400.

In 1896 he opposed the appointment of a Provincial roads commissioner, one of the most useful offices which the province now has, and in 1894, and again in 1890, voted against having a clerk of forestry, thus showing that he has never grasped the importance of the great subject of forest preservation and reforestation.

Now, Mr. Whitney tells us in his platform that the grants for agriculture should be increased, and particularly that there should be additional agricultural schools. Verily, the leader of the opposition is a marvellous flopper.

Success on the Farm.
In addition to his first-class home newspaper, no farmer who wishes to make farming a pleasure and a profit can afford to be without a paper like the "Farmer's Advocate" of London, Ont., specially devoted to his own business. It is written by practical men for practical men in all branches of agriculture, and is beautifully gotten out. With the "Advocate" publishers for a free sample copy. It will bear inspection. Read their announcement, entitled "Make the Farm Pay," elsewhere in this issue.

Teachers' Certificates.
(To the Editor of The Post.)
Sir,—I beg to call the attention of School trustees to the necessity of seeing teachers' certificates before engagement. I find it is quite common for teachers to say they have second class certificates when they have only third class. There is now only one kind of second class certificate, and it is obtained after successful attendance at a Normal School.—Yours, etc.,
H. H. KNIGHT, P.S., Inspector.

30 Mills in the Near Future.

(To the Editor of The Post.)
Mr. Editor,—I am sure you will not refuse me space to reply once more to Mr. Southern when I promise you that it shall be the last, as I cannot see anything to be gained by discussing dead issues with him. His first letter, written in reply to mine of the 18th, was not defending the Council. If you read it over carefully you must conclude that it is simply holding them up to ridicule. The ratepayers was that they have no reason to fear a deficit, as they have a remedy at hand.—elect Mr. S., as they did in '96; he will institute a judicious application of the proper "economics" and the deficit will disappear. When Mr. S. is reminded of the fact that a mortgage had to be cashed to help the transaction he loses his temper and goes back into ancient history to give "South Ward" a drubbing.

Neither deny nor affirm that I was a member of the Council of '91 and '95, nor do I believe that the Councils of those years have any reason to be ashamed of the work done. They had a great many difficulties to contend with—Lindsay at and Wellington at a war $1000 per year to pay to the Port Perry and Whitby R.R. (the last payment, I think, was made in '95). Times were very dull in those days and employment scarce; men could be got for 75c per day, the population was less and the assessed rate a great deal lower. A difference of opinion existed between members of the Council as to whether it would not be better to carry a deficit until times improved than to strike a higher rate. The majority ruled and a deficit was carried over. I was $1000 stated by Mr. S., and he makes still another wild statement when he says that after cashing the mortgage there was still $5000 to be paid out of that year's taxes. Included in the liability of that year was an item of $1800 in connection with the old Opera House that was never paid, nor was it a liability at all. Other statements of his are equally misleading, but I have neither time nor inclination to correct them.

Mr. Southern says that borrowing money at 6 per cent. and lending it at 4 per cent. is bad financing. I agree with him there, but circumstances alter cases and I maintain that it is very bad financing for a corporation to either give bonds or sell mortgages to pay ordinary expenses. The position I took at that time (and I still think) was that the Council should curtail expenses, strike a higher rate and wipe out the deficit and hold the valuable lien that we had on the G.T.R., but Mr. S., like some others of the Council, was afraid to raise the rate and adopted the other alternative. The ratepayers did not approve of it and took the first opportunity to inform Mr. S. of the fact.

In my first letter I stated that our rate next year would be 30 mills, and the reason given was that next year's Council will have to face a deficit of about $6,000. The interest on the debentures for the sewers now being constructed will have to be provided for, and if we wish to move at all in the matter of good roads we cannot do less than was done this year. I can't see how it can be done for less than 30 mills. Mr. O'Rielly and Mr. Southern have not given any light on the subject.—Yours, etc., SOUTH WARD.
Lindsay, Oct. 30th.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If the draft of President Roosevelt's first Message is a true forecast, the Message itself will be a conservative and judicious document. There is nothing of the jingo in it, and it indicates the existence of an understanding with Great Britain in regard to the Isthmian Canal which, if confirmed by Congress, will remove a possible source of international friction. The new President has begun well.

In his remarks at Niagara-on-the-Lake the other evening the Hon. J. R. Stratton said:

"The course of The Mail and Empire and The Toronto Evening News was the more surprising when public records existed to show that the very paper upon which they were printed, the very paper in which the attacks were made, was made by power that represented the greatest water-power 'graffiti' in the history of Canada, a lease granted by the conservative government a few weeks before they went out of power in 1896. On May 28th, 1896, two months before the Tupper government went out of power, a lease was renewed to John Riddon of 14 locks 16, 18, 19, and 21 on the Welland Canal, with a limit of 1500 horse-power of water. For the land and 700 horse-power Mr. Riddon of The Mail and The News pays $250 per year, or 35 cents per h.p. (The Ontario Power Commission pays $2 per horse-power). And this was a renewal of a lease which was the perpetuation and enlargement of a lease to the same family by the conservative government in 1870, a monopoly of water-powers lasting 31 years, and granted in perpetuity. Every day this lease to Mr. Riddon remained in force, the people of Canada, were giving undue advantages. Such party warfare as was directed towards himself showed Mr. Stratton said, that in default of the record of the government, a policy of slander of its members was to be employed. He was content to leave such tactics to the judgment of the people and to his own constituents, who had all the facts before them."

It is amusing to observe that The Mail and Empire gives no consideration or attention to this.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In England and Wales in 1859 there were 134 in every 100,000 persons sentenced for crime. Last year the number was 2.3. This world do move; let the croakers cheer up.

The tory organs talk a good deal about the author of the Mabee pamphlet, but very little about what is in it. The public is more interested in the subject matter than in the author.

With financial institutions advertising dividends of 5 per cent. for the half-year, it may fairly be assumed that the country is enjoying prosperity. Mr. Mook and Mr. Whitney may creak in vain.

A Philadelphia man has been fined $500 for shooting a moose in Maine in the close season. He says he did not intend to shoot it, but got rattled. It would have been cheaper to stay in the South and join a lynch- ing gang.

The newspaper men who were present at the battle of Santiago say Schley was all right, and that goes for much. They say the only time he showed anxiety was when it seemed probable that the Colon might escape.

Whitney wants the revenue from the succession duties devoted to university aid, although he is well aware that they have been set aside for support of the public charities of this province. Would he cut off the aid to hospitals, asylums, homes, etc.? Or does his "plank" merely consist in a transfer of funds from one account to another?

"The Ross government is making a tremendous fuss about what it is going to do for the nation in connection with the development of 'New Ontario.' This 'New Ontario' of the liberal press of 'Old Ontario,' etc., etc." It is as well always to remember when tory papers endeavor to belittle New Ontario for the purpose of at the same time belittling the Ontario administration, that it forms a territory of which the Ottawa tory administration for years tried to rob the province. Thanks to the persistent efforts of Sir Oliver Mowat and, lastly, the Privy Council the nefarious attempt was frustrated.

Hamilton Times: Charles R. Mabee has published a pamphlet dealing with Ontario politics and favorable to the Ross government. Mr. Mabee has been described as a life-long conservative, but the World says on the authority of Mr. Thad. W. H. Leavitt, the conservative organizer, that Mr. Mabee's antecedents and family are "all grists." Is that any disqualification in Mr. Leavitt's opinion? It comes to us as a dream of the past that the Leavitts, of Leeds county—Arv. and Thad. and Bill and the whole box and dice of them—were "all grists." Thad. in particular being active both as a speaker and a writer in the liberal interest. If Leavitt had a right to turn tory, what's the matter with Mabee?

The report of the second annual meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association, held in March last, has been issued from the government printing bureau, Ottawa. One of the most interesting papers in the report is the one by E. Stewart, Donlin, Superintendent of Forestry, relating to forest tree planting on the plains, in which a system is outlined for supplying seeds and trees to the settlers and superintending the planting and caretaking. This is supplemented by a paper on "Forestry on the Prairies" by Mrs. Vina Y. Card, of Cardston, Alberta, who deduces from her experience in Utah that irrigation is the key to unlock the hidden treasures in the bosom of mother nature. Mr. Wm. Pearce, of Calgary, also gave the meeting the benefit of his experience in tree culture. Wood is one of the great needs of the prairie farmer, and all who are interested in the development of Canada's vast western country will hear with pleasure of the success of the efforts at tree culture that are now being made.

Mr. J. P. Whitney, M.P.P., has intimated that the pamphlet issued by Mabee doesn't have his distinguished approval. It is not just what he would have bargained for.

The building of a government railway from North Bay into the Temiskaming country will do much to open up to settlement a vast area, which until within late years was supposed to be unfit for farming, but which is now known to be exceedingly fertile. It will probably be of great use also as a lumber road, and will ultimately become a part of a through line to James Bay.

A special Providence seems to protect fools. Mrs. Taylor has not only gone over the Niagara Falls in her barrel and, somewhat battered, lives to tell of her experiences. She says: "I was in the Charleston earthquake, three fires, a flood at Chattanooga, a hold-up by Jesse James' gang and several fierce storms at sea, but," she adds, "I would not repeat my trip over the falls for a million dollars."

Dr. Walker, the newly appointed Professor of Mineralogy and Petrography in Toronto University, is a native of Ontario and a graduate of Queen's, who has been for four years connected with the University of Calcutta. Ontario is entering upon an era of mineral development, and her sons require instruction that will make them expert in the recognition and treatment of rocks and ores.

Hon. Jas. Sutherland did a service to the cause of good government when he told the Young Liberals of Woodstock to use their brains and their judgments, and not to be frightened by the bogey of party allegiance or party traditions. — Woodstock Express.

That is good liberal doctrine. Let in the light! The cause that cannot bear examination in the light of reason is a poor one. It will be a bad day for liberalism when liberals cease to welcome honest consideration of the facts and free discussion of principles.

An indignant parent writing to the Providence Visitor calls attention to a little matter of domestic economy which has probably suggested itself to very few. The parent complains of the weight of books and other things his children have to carry to school with them every day. Often the bag with slate and books is somewhat cumbersome, and observation will show that small children find them embarrassing. The point is one probably never before publicly ventilated. But it is not unworthy attention, and the remedy is easily provided.

Weekly Sun: Southern papers are calling attention to the fact that President Roosevelt has more Southern blood in him than any President that the United States has had since the Civil War. His mother, Martha Bullock, was born in Georgia, and was a direct descendant of the first Governor of that State. He has many relatives scattered through Georgia and South Carolina. One of his uncles built the Alabama and another fired the last gun from her before she sank. Mr. Roosevelt is also the first President since the war who had not arrived at manhood during the period of that great struggle. When peace was concluded he was less than seven years old.

The meeting addressed by Mr. Henri Bourassa, M. P. for Labelle, in Montreal on Sunday night, in which the tory press reports as having wildly cheered his attacks on Great Britain, seems to have been pretty much of a tory gathering. Among the notables present were Hon. Joseph Royal, ex-Lieut. Governor of Manitoba; Mr. J. H. G. Bergeron, ex-M.P., Deputy Speaker of the house of commons during the conservative regime; Hon. Mr. Naudet, and other conservative leaders. The tory evening paper, Le Journal, established by Sir Charles Tupper and Hugh Graham of the Star, gives a report of the meeting covering sixteen columns, under the display heading, "Great Britain and Canada—The Member for Labelle gives free course to his opposition ideas—He ridicules Sir Wilfrid Laurier and brings a serious accusation against Lord Minto." Yet, notwithstanding, we may expect to see the meeting continue to be cited in the tory press as a gathering of liberals—as if liberals applaud ridicule heaped on Sir Wilfrid Laurier!

"Played Out"

Is one of the curious expressions used for worked out. Many a woman drops into a chair, in utter weariness "all played out," and wonders why she feels so weak. She has not yet realized that the general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organism, that weakness must follow womanly diseases.

Restoration of the general health invariably follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

There is no substitute for "Favorite Prescription," for there is nothing "just as good" for womanly ills. "I wish to advise the suffering women of this country that I have received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mrs. Mary Shappell, of Columbus Grove, Putnam Co., Ohio. 'For four years I had been a sufferer from female troubles, and at times was unable to get from my bed for three or four days. I had such pains that I suffered almost death doses of times, but after taking five bottles of your medicine I am feeling right along. This spring I was able to do my housework as usual. I have done my house cleaning all by myself and without the least fatigue whatever. I hope all suffering women may find relief as I have done.'"

"My gain in weight has been just ten pounds, and I am still gaining."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only, or for cloth-bound book, send 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BELLIGERENT BOER.

The war in South Africa has been dragging slowly on at tremendous expense and with less and less prospect of either a definite or approximate conclusion. The English nation has felt more or less acutely the expense laid on it and has become very restless under the hopelessness of a termination. For the last few weeks the press of the country has been asking what can be done to bring the war to a close. "Punch" portrayed the situation very exactly in its cartoon of John Bull shaking the Premier and offering to make any sacrifice if he will only wake up and tell him what to do.

It is probably in answer to this call that the War Office issued to the police the printed forms to be held in readiness for the calling out of the volunteers. The government must have expected that this action would quickly become known to the people, and they would hardly have made such a remarkable move without some definite plan in view. The volunteers, if called upon, would probably take the place of the home regiments, who would then be sent out. Though the volunteers are not enlisted for the over-sea service, once called for their work, many of them would volunteer if needed in Africa. England is quite possibly in the humor to stand such action if it can be convinced that it will be of any avail.

It would seem that a quarter of a million men should be enough, and that to increase the size of the army would be but making it more cumbersome. On the other hand any troops sent out would go with fresh vigor and would be added to the mobile columns, not to the line-of-communication work. It is astonishing what a small proportion of the men in Africa are available for field operations. The detachments at the many railway stations, the troops which guard convoys, the thousands engaged in handling the food for horses and men, and the thousands more who are stationed in block-houses form the mass of the army. Almost no useful measure that the government can propose is so drastic in the face of the present situation.

Women and Church Work.

The interest of women in church work is said to be declining. The opinion is based upon reports from the American Board of Foreign Missions, which show that while the contributions from churches and individuals were larger last year than for the previous year there has been a decided falling off in legacies and in donations for women's societies. The Chicago Chronicle asks if this means that women, who have hitherto been the real conservators of the church, are losing their interest, and answers its own question in this way:

"The increasing number of legacies from women to educational institutions, town libraries, village improvement societies, as well as large contributions for hospital purposes, scientific research and kindred matters, does not argue a falling away from grace on the part of women. It is simply a broadening of their influence for good. It is carrying the altruistic spirit of the church into practical life, and it is taking individual responsibility in the disposal of wealth instead of the haphazard disposing of it in the contribution box."

"Neither home nor foreign missions will suffer by this increased intelligence and activity of women. The methods of reaching the desired end may be changed, but the results will be quite as evident and fully as satisfactory."

PAN-AMERICAN MODEL DAIRY

Standing of the Butter Breeds.
The Model Dairy is now going along on the lines that were laid down when the warm weather came to an end. The Jerseys and Holsteins are making the best showing, more especially as they are holding well together, while the Guernseys are weak after week dropping more and more apart. They are doing well holding fourth place with the French-Canadians in fairly good fifth, and that with one miniature cow that has never earned or eaten nearly as much as the average of the herd. When they were brought into the dairy they were a new element in the list and were considered much of a curiosity, but they have very well established their claim to good dairy qualities. They are of course something of a northern animal and suffered more from the midwinter heat than some other breeds, and did also the imported long enough to become fully acclimated. It is probable that Canadian Shorthorns will make up a total that is larger in proportion to the others than was expected. The standing of the breeders for the week ending Oct. 15th, is as follows: Jerseys, $7.69; Holsteins, $7.31; Ayrshires, $7.02; Guernseys, $6.83; French-Canadians, $6.81; Red Polls, $5.75; Polled Jerseys, $5.30; Shorthorns, $5.38; Brown Swiss, $5.19; Dutch Belted, $4.01.

CANADIAN STORE CATTLE IN ENGLAND.

President Hanbury, of the British Board of Trade, Opposed to a Removal of the Embargo.

When Hon. Sydney Fisher, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, was in Great Britain last summer he made strong representations to the President of the Board of Agriculture in regard to the importation of store cattle from Canada, asking that in this matter Canada be treated in the same way as Ireland—as an integral part of the British Empire, and not as a foreign country. He also addressed a number of meetings of farmers and others interested in this trade, and since his return the agitation has been kept up in the Old Land. The Scotch farmers want Canadian cattle and have exerted every influence to have the present law of restriction repealed, but without success. The British stock breeders demand protection against Canada, although they are more than willing to welcome Canadian buyers of pure bred stock who pay big prices for the best animals. That the policy of protection will be continued as long as the Right Hon. R. W. Hanbury is President of the Board of Agriculture is shown by the following from the Edinburgh Evening Despatch, of October 9th:

"The Right Hon. R. W. Hanbury, M.P., President of the Board of Agriculture, was in Edinburgh to-day in the forenoon he received in the City Chambers a deputation representing all parts of Scotland in favor of the removal of the restrictions on the importation of Canadian cattle. Mr. Hanbury on this occasion was accompanied by Sir Jacob Wilson. The deputation, which was a very large one, included Bailie Brechin, Glasgow; Mr. W. Smith, Balgordie, Brechin; Mr. W. F. Bell, Luthrie Bank; Mr. A. Hutchison, Beechwood, Perth; Mr. Nathaniel Dunlop, Clyde Trust; Mr. Henry D. McCrombie and Mr. Milton, of Kemnay. The case for the deputation was stated by Mr. Bailie Brechin, who commented upon the careful examination made of all Canadian store cattle landed in Glasgow, and upon the fact that they had not had a single case of pleuro. They thought the time had now arrived when these restrictions should be removed, for if the farmer were to be remunerated for his trouble, outlay and care it was to be from the feeding of Canadian cattle. Free trade should be allowed in cattle as in many other things. Mr. Wm. Smith said that all they asked was the right possessed by every tradesman in Scotland save themselves—the right to buy their raw material at the cheapest and best. He said the three great industries of Edinburgh were compelled to buy their raw material in the United Kingdom alone, the breweries would soon be out of exit, Scotch whisky would be made in Germany, and the flour industry would be practically annihilated. Canadian cattle, he said, were the soundest and healthiest that passed through the farmers' hands. Mr. W. F. Bell claimed that if disease once existed in Canada there had been no trace of it for years. Mr. A. Hutchison, Mr. N. Dunlop, Mr. McCrombie and Mr. John Mitchell, Newburgh, also spoke in favor of the plan of the deputation, all eager to show that Canadian store cattle were absolutely free from disease."

"Mr. Hanbury, in replying to the deputation, pointed out that this matter was provided for by an act of parliament passed in 1896, and that he believed the majority would be a distinct majority in the house of commons who would make it impossible for any government to pass a measure repealing that act. He pointed out that it applied to live animals from all over the world. Any attraction, therefore, must be from the fact that the country that could supply them with store cattle. Then there was the perfectly insuperable difficulty that they could not reverse their treaties at a moment's notice. He thought he was taking what in the end was the best course for farmers, and for the consumer at large, when he said that so far as he was concerned his mind was very clearly made up. He did not think there was any possibility of his yielding to this demand as long as he was Minister of Agriculture. He hoped that by the speaking of their minds and the minds of breeders that so far as he and this government was concerned, and so far as all governments were concerned, the policy of 1896 was the established policy of the country. As he stood he was erected with cries of 'Rubish' and 'Have another election!'"

FRAIL LITTLE ONES.

Their Hold Upon Life is Slight, and Mothers Have a Great Responsibility.

Every baby—every little one—requires constant care and watchfulness, and when a trace of illness is noticeable, the remedy should be promptly applied. The little ones are frail. Their hold upon life is slight. The slightest symptom of trouble should be met by the proper corrective medicine. Baby's Own Tablets have a record surpassing all other medicines for the cure of children's ailments. They are purely vegetable and guaranteed to contain no opiate or poisonous drugs such as form the basis of most so-called "soothing" medicines. For sour stomach, colic, simple fever, constipation, all bowel troubles, the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth, sleeplessness and similar symptoms, these Tablets are without an equal. They act directly upon the organs which cause the troubles, and gently but effectively remove the cause and bring back the condition of perfect, hearty health. Every mother who has used these Tablets for her little ones praises them, which is the best evidence of their great worth. Mrs. David Duffell, Port Hope, Ont., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are a wonderful medicine. I think they saved my baby's life, and I gratefully recommend them to other mothers. Ask your druggist for Baby's Own Tablets. If he does not keep them, send 25 cents direct to us and we will forward a box prepaid. We have a valuable little booklet on the care of children and how to treat their minor ailments, which we will send free of charge to any mother who asks for it. PEAT FUEL DREAMS.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Ontario's peat industry has not reached that stage of commercial progress which would justify any wild public rush to buy stock. Unwary investors need not rush to get in on the ground floor, but the business of peat production seems to be emerging from the experimental stage.

Peat gas is being produced in other fields, and believers in the new fuel insist that a great field of peat has all the possibilities of power production which lurk in a great water power. Power can be produced from peat gas and sold properly at the rate of $6 per horse-power per annum. This calculation may be highly colored by the bright hopes of the promoters. Ontario has much to gain from the fulfillment of these hopes. The national wealth would be enormously increased by any development of peat fuel or peat gas as a substitute for the hard and soft coal which the United States exchanges for good Canadian money.

Three Australians who were about to be shot had their sentence commuted by Lord Kitchener to twelve years' penal servitude, and now the War Office has ordered their instant release. A British general had referred to his men as "white-livered curs," and the three Australians, to vindicate their lives, and in resentment of the charge that they were curs, raised a big row, and wanted to thrash the general.

If those men had been shot, as ordered by that court-martial, a storm would have swept over the colonies that would have left its marks. There are certain expressions which when used in democratic communities are by common consent recognized as "fighting words," and no man uses them except at his own risk. To refer to a body of Canadian or Australian soldiers as white-livered curs would provoke instant mutiny, and colonial opinion would approve the mutiny. To shoot men for repeating so grievous an insult would dry up at a stroke, for good and all, the supply of colonial volunteers for war service.

It will be found easier to cure British officers of such habits of speech than to drill and train the men from over-seas to the idea that they are curs, whose lives can be maligned at will by those in command of them.

OLD-FASHIONED TEA MEETING

Pleasant Congregational Gathering at Cambridge-St. Methodist Church.

The annual tea and entertainment in connection with Cambridge-St. Methodist church took place last Friday, and was very largely attended by the members and friends of the congregation. The tea was of the regular old-fashioned kind, with plenty of sociability and an abundance of alluring refreshments. The entertainment in the body of the church was most enjoyable. Miss M. E. Brown, M.E., made her first visit to Lindsay as an educationist. She gave a half-dozen well-chosen readings and recitations, and captivated her audience, keeping them convulsed with laughter or hovering on the brink of tears as she willed. She made a splendid impression, and her assistance will be sought on future occasions. Miss Edith Workman greatly appreciated Mr. J. Parnell Morris gave a delightful tenor solo, "Abide With Me." Mr. Morris, though heard frequently by Lindsay audiences, is always welcomed and appreciated. Miss Laidlaw's song, "The Olden Days," which was given with evident pleasure. Misses Graham and Koyl gave an instrumental duet, which was full of music and clearly rendered. The pleasant evening's entertainment was concluded at 9.30.

THE CURLERS PLANNING.

Skips Met Last Friday—Club Will be Divided Into Three Sides.

At the annual meeting of the skips last Friday it was decided to have the club divided into three sides headed by President, Vice-President and 2nd Vice-President respectively.

The 1st side's side: G. H. Hopkins, J. D. Flavelle, G. A. Little, R. A. Miller, G. H. M. Baker, J. M. Knowlson, F. Kuowison and J. Boxall.

1st Vice-President's side: Dr. McAlpine, W. McLennan, Rev. J. W. Macmillan, L. McIntosh, Mr. Walters, J. M. McLennan, J. McSweeney, W. H. Stevens.

2nd Vice-President's side: W. Dundas, J. C. Harstone, L. V. O'Connor, R. H. Guthbert, T. W. Greer, T. Gage, W. L. Widdess, J. Keith.

The following players who desired to play, but not on regular rink, have been ranked and may play in the positions assigned them, or higher, at any time they wish to fill in on the regular rinks; Messrs. Edwards, Needler, F. Crandell and J. H. Hart as vice-skips; Messrs. J. A. Paddon, R. J. McLennan, G. H. Wilson, C. McAlpine, J. D. Flavelle, J. M. Knowlson, and Messrs. N. P. Black, J. A. White, M.D., C. J. Burns, J. P. Donald and D. S. Blair as leads.

We will publish in a few days a full list of members of the different rinks.

Saturday's Markets.

The attendance at the local market was Saturday was large and business brisk, there being a good demand for butter, eggs and poultry. Following were the quotations: Eggs, 17c; butter, 20c; geese, 50c per lb.; ducks, 60c per pair; chickens, 40 to 55c per pair; turkeys, 10c per lb.; pork, $1.25 per lb.; apples, 82c per bushel; Biflores per bag, 75c; potatoes, 45c per bag; hay, 55 to 67 per ton.

—Mr. E. S. Watson, of Peterborough, Inspector for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was in town yesterday.

—The annual show of the Peterborough Poultry and Pet Stock Association will be held on 21st, 22nd and 23rd January next.

—Messrs. Rider & Kitchener are storing sufficient logs to keep their veneer and excelsior factory running until the snow flies and farmers are able to haul in.

The bachelors say that, on a whole, their independent homes will do. But married men have better halves, and therefore better quarters, too.

—If the Dawson city hockey club ever got the Stanley cup, our eastern teams would have to take a couple of years off to go and get it back.

—It is hoped that the people who are sending those apples to the King do not adopt the usual custom of putting the small ones in the bottom.

—More missionaries will be sent to find Miss Stone. The brigands may rope the whole bunch in and raise the quotations on prisoners to $1,000,000.

The brickyards have finished their season's make with a combined output of nearly two million bricks. The burning will be finished in about another week.

—Some weeks ago a gust of wind slammed a door against the arm of Mr. Thos. Junkin, lockmaster at Fenelon Falls, and bruised it badly. The injury is still causing him considerable trouble.

—Mr. John King, of Havelock, has been awarded the Toronto Star prize offered for the largest black-bass of the year. The weight was 6 lbs. 4 ozs. The prize was a split bamboo rod worth $15.

A letter from Gladstone, Manitoba, states that quite a percentage of grain was injured by fall rains. The wheat crop was a heavy one, and those who threshed early or stacked up came out alright.

—Mr. John Wilson, local junk dealer, is doing a brisk trade at present in his line. On Wednesday last he consigned a carload of ash to a leading soap firm in South Carolina, and yesterday he shipped two cars of scrap iron to a Toronto firm.

—Lawyer E. B. Stone, of Peterborough, stepped from a morning C.P.R. train Tuesday evening, and as a result of the succeeding hard frosts, his trousers may discover that a stone may gather bruises, if not moss.

—Winter is nigh. Tramps sampled fur stocks at various places down east during the last week, and reached Peterborough on Tuesday evening. Farrier Fred Clarke, of that town, is now mourning the loss of goods worth over $200.

—Mr. Geo. Stanton and Miss H. Smith, mission workers, will hold special song services in the W.C.T.U. hall, Hamilton's block, the first week in November. Miss Smith is a sweet singer and plays her own accompaniment on the autoharp.

—Master Fergus McDonald, son of Mr. John McDonald, of the north ward, thinks duck-hunting a risky form of sport. While out after his Sunday evening he upset, and was forced to cling to his boat for an hour. He was picked up by Capt. Cottingham, of the Mispah.

The propeller shaft of the Str. Maple Leaf, owned by the Kennedy & Davis Co., was snapped off short last Saturday through striking some obstacle in Tate's Bay, below Bobcaygeon. The vessel was conveyed to the disabled steamer and her tow—five scows of cordwood—to this port.

—Mr. W. H. H. Ponton, of Belleville, who won much notoriety in connection with the Napanee bank robbery trial, and who since served as Sgt. C. Battery in South Africa, has gone to Bogas del Toro, South America. The gentleman has secured a situation through the British consul.

—Jos. Fairbanks, who came before the Assizes last Tuesday on a charge of theft, and was allowed to go on suspended sentence, made his way to the city and celebrated his escape by getting drunk. The magistrate held that he came back too soon, and sent him down for 60 days.

The blockade on the I.B. & O. Railway has inconvenienced a number of stock shippers. Messrs. McLaughlin, Branton & Austin have had to turn several carloads out to graze, and Mr. Sam Harriett, of Bancroft, has had to ship over the Central Ontario R.R.

The Peterborough papers deny the report published in the Toronto press that Buffalo capitalists have purchased the Peterborough and Ashburnham street railway, and intend extending it to Chemung Park and Lakeland. The deal is being considered, however, and would be a grand thing for the town.

—Annington Gleaner: H. C. Kemp bought of a Miss McLean, of Mariposa, this week a spring turkey that dressed 26 lbs., and when in travelling style he tipped the scale at 30 odd pounds. He was a heavy-weight. Mr. Silverwood, buyer of fowl for Dundas & Flavelle Bros., will be able to show many a heavier one before the English shipments are completed.

—A rumor has been going the rounds to the effect that the Flavelle Milling Co. has rented the skating rink for a flour warehouse. The report is untrue. The owners have leased the rink to Mr. Jos. Parkin for another three years, and skaters will disport themselves there as usual. The interior will be whitewashed and otherwise improved before the season opens.

—Proprietor Twomey, of the Mansion House, Fenelon Falls, is mourning the loss of a valuable Jersey cow, the animal having been struck by a train. If the occurrence reduces the liberal supply of pure Jersey cream for which the house is noted, then the mourning will be widespread, because travellers from all parts of the province enjoy the cream served there never used the pump.

—Orilla will have cheap electrical power to offer manufacturers about Christmas, and local industries are enlarging in consequence. The World Enameling Co. are erecting a new factory 80 x 100 feet, at a cost of $7,000, and will invest about the same amount in new machinery. The Wood Specialty Co. are also enlarging for a greatly increased output by erecting new buildings and adding to the plant.

Mr. Jack Brandon, of Messrs. McDougal, Eranton & Austin, Fenelon Falls, passed through lately in charge of a carload of hogs consigned to the Geo. Matthews Co., Peterboro. Mr. Brandon reports that the porkers were secured at $5.50 per hundred live weight, but he thinks the price will advance again within the next few weeks.

If you want your horses to look well and do well, your colts to grow all winter, and your calves also, and your milk and other cows to give milk all winter, your young pigs to grow and fatten quickly, and your poultry to furnish eggs, give Herbageum Spice with their food. It is sold at the stores of Messrs. Fleury, Campbell, Keith and Hurley. It richly pays, feed it according to directions. The cost is only one cent a day for grown animals, and two and a half cents a week for colts, calves and sheep.—w1.

Mr. F. C. Edmonds has succeeded in inventing a clever attachment for stereopticons and magic lanterns which will likely have a large sale among lantern men. By the use of it the beautiful dissolving effect which has always required a pair of electric lamps to accomplish, can be produced with a single lantern with either gas or electric light. The latter light has never before been used for dissolving effects. The apparatus can be attached to any lantern and is not expensive. Mr. Edmonds is corresponding with several manufacturers of optical goods in the United States regarding the sale of his invention.

The Fadettes Orchestra.

The Montreal Herald of Tuesday has this to say about the above organization, which appears here on Nov. 5th: "The Fadettes Orchestra opened the musical season in the Windsor Hall last night. The concert was thoroughly enjoyable, and was listened to by a large audience. The music played was chiefly popular, and evidently, judging by the applause, suited the tastes of the audience. The hit of the evening was made by Miss Renck-Wilkey, whose violin solos were thrice encored. The singing of Miss Mildred Rogers and the impersonations of Miss Hartman, also met with hearty approval. The concert closed with a piece of descriptive music by Puerner, entitled 'Impe and Goblins'."

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 1st, '01

OVER NIAGARA FALLS

Mrs. Taylor Successfully Makes the Daring Trip.

SAYS SHE WON'T DO IT AGAIN

Daring Voyage Received Only a Few Minor Injuries—How the Barrel Acted in the Passage Over the Brink of the Watery Abyss—A Few Moments of Unconsciousness.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor, 50 years old, went over Niagara Falls on the Canadian side yesterday afternoon. She escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound 1 1/2 inches long, a slight concussion of the brain, some shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. The doctors in attendance upon her last night said that she was somewhat hysterical, that her condition is not at all serious, and that she probably will be out of bed within a few days.

Mrs. Taylor's trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids, which occupied 18 minutes, before she reached the brink of the precipice. Her barrel as it passed through the smoother, swifter waters that rushed over into the abyss, it rode in an almost perpendicular position with its upper half out of water. As it passed over the brink at 4.23, it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge, and descended as gracefully as a barrel can descend to the white foaming waters, 158 feet below. True to her calculation the barrel fastened to the bottom of the barrel kept its foot downwards and so it landed.

It could not be seen as it struck the water, below because of the spray, but, in less than half a minute after it passed over the brink, it was seen on the surface of the scum-covered water below the falls. It was carried swiftly down to the green water beyond the scum, then half way to the Maid of the Mist landing, it was caught in what is known as the Maid of the Mist eddy, and held there until it floated so close to the shore that it was reached by means of a pole and was drawn in upon the rocks at 4.40 o'clock or 17 minutes after it shot the cataract. Ten minutes later, the woman was lifted from the barrel, and half an hour later, she lay on a cot at her boarding house at First street, in Niagara Falls, on the American side.

She thanked God that she was alive, thanked all who had helped her in any way, said she would never do it again, but that she was not sorry she had done it, "if it would help her financially." She said she had played all the time during the trip, except during "a few moments" of unconsciousness, just after her descent.

The barrel in which Mrs. Taylor made the journey is 4 1/2 feet high, and about three feet in diameter. A leather harness and cushions inside protected her body. Air was secured through a rubber tube connected with a small opening near the top of the barrel.

Arbitration at Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The sittings of the arbitration in the case of the English Lloyds against the Sturgeon Falls Pulp Company, Limited, were resumed yesterday in the office of the Supreme Court Registrar, Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick is arbitrator. The dispute is as to the value of spruce lands which the Sturgeon Falls Pulp Company sold Lloyds.

To Save His Reason

Kingston, Oct. 25.—Hon. David Mills is in the city to lecture at Queen's University on constitutional law. He says that Andrew McGeigue, sentenced to the penitentiary, was pardoned to save his reason, and on condition that he never goes to Cobourg.

FOR ENGLAND AT DAYLIGHT.

Amid Frequent Showers Royal Program at St. John's Gave Through With Newfoundland Dog for Children.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 25.—The program of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was carried out yesterday amid frequent rain showers. The royal party landed at 11 o'clock, not any of them wearing uniforms, and drove to the Government House under an escort of mounted police, through streets lined with sailors and marines from the fleet. At the Government House, Sir William White, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, presented an address of welcome, to which the Duke replied in suitable terms.

The Governor of Newfoundland, Sir Charles Boyle, then presented the people's gifts, two splendid caribou heads, mounted for the Duke, and two albums containing photographs of native scenery for the Duchess.

The women of the colony, through Lady Whitway, presented the Duchess with a milk canopied rain shower. The Duke, later, laid the commemorative stone of the new court house, and then, children, numbering 4,500, in the rink presented the Duke and Duchess with a Newfoundland dog, harness and cart for the royal children. The Duke thanked them.

The only function during the afternoon was a reception by the Duke and Duchess in Government House, which was attended by about 500 persons. When the affair was over, it was suspended for a time, as the Duchess became somewhat faint in consequence, it is understood, of her condition. The reception closed at ten minutes past four.

The royal party then drove to the dock and on board the Ophir, where the Duke and Duchess rested for a few hours, returning at eight o'clock to attend the state banquet at Government House, and to drive through the city at 10 o'clock for a view of the illuminations, which, as the weather had improved, were general.

At 11 o'clock the Duke and Duchess returned to the Ophir, which will sail for England at daylight to-day. Captain's Body Found.

Halifax, Oct. 25.—The dead body of Captain Black of H. M. S. Charlydis has been found in the woods at St. John's, Nfld. There were two bullet holes in his head, and a revolver firmly grasped in his right hand.

Killed on the Michigan Central. Niagara Falls, Oct. 25.—A terrible fatality occurred at an early hour yesterday morning in the yards of the Michigan Central at Montrose, Delos Rowe of Chippewa was walking on the track when he was run down by a freight train in charge of Engineer Charles Stephens. Rowe's legs were crushed below the knees and his left arm close to the elbow.

His face was badly gashed. After being taken to the depot he recovered consciousness and asked for Venerable Archdeacon Houston, who was sent for. Within an hour he was dead. The deceased was a large man, weighing nearly 200 pounds. He was 43 years of age. He had lived in Chippewa for 18 years. A wife and six children mourn his loss. The eldest is 14 and the youngest a few months old.

Prince Murat Dead. Paris, Oct. 25.—Prince Joachim Murat died yesterday at his chateau at Chantilly. General Prince Joachim Napoleon Murat was born at Bordentown, N. J., on July 21, 1834. He was the eldest son of Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles who died in 1878, and was the grandson of the King of Naples. The mother of the deceased prince was Caroline Georgina, daughter of Thomas Fraser of Bordentown, N. J. She died in 1879.

Brigands Found at Last. Constantinople, Oct. 25.—The missionaries who are operating from Samakoy, Bulgaria, are at last in touch with the brigands who abducted Miss Stone and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, according to the despatches received here yesterday, though whether negotiations for the ransom have actually been opened is not disclosed. The missionaries on the spot are expected to conclude the business with the utmost despatch.

Rice Is Back in Toronto. Toronto, Oct. 25.—Fred Leo Rice, the only surviving member of the notorious Kulldegang gang of bank robbers, is back in Toronto again and will be kept at the jail until the charge of murder hanging over him is disposed of at the Criminal Assizes, which open at the City on Monday at 2 p.m. Rice has been in Kingston Penitentiary since June 27 last. He was brought to Toronto again yesterday afternoon.

Quebec Nominations. Drummondville, Que., Oct. 25.—J. A. Laferty, Liberal, and Napoleon Garneau, Liberal, were nominated yesterday in Drummond for the Local House.

Vaudreuil, Que., Oct. 25.—Dr. Pilon, Liberal, and J. Thaurout, Independent Liberal, were nominated for this county.

Canadians for the Navy. London, Oct. 25.—Admiral Hopkings, at a dinner given by the London Chamber of Commerce, declared that if some one would only make a move by holding up their hand in favor of the idea, ten thousand of the forty thousand Canadian fishermen would join the royal navy. Those who had joined in the past, he said, had proved to be the very best of seamen.

Great Send-Off. Queenstown, Oct. 25.—Messrs. John E. Redmond, Patrick A. McGuire and Thomas O'Donnell, the Nationalist members of Parliament, who are to visit the United States in behalf of the Irish cause, sailed for New York yesterday morning on the steamer Majestic. They were given a great send-off.

PREMIER HOME AGAIN

Business to Be Taken Up Before Parliament Meets.

SEVERAL BYE-ELECTIONS.

Thirteen Vacant Seats Are to Be Filled—Preparing for the Session—House May Meet First or Second Week in February—Question of Provincial Autonomy for the Territories—About Mr. Foster.

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—The Premier is once more back at his desk after his month's tour through Canada with the royal party. From outward appearances the trip agreed with Sir Wilfrid, although long railway journeys, even when made in accordance with modern notions of comfort, often caused more or less fatigue to the traveler.

An extensive program of business awaits the Premier and his colleagues, but it will probably be some days before a full attendance of Ministers at the Council Board is witnessed. In addition to the Premier, Richard Cartwright, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Hon. Wm. Paterson, and Hon. M. E. Bernier. The absentees are Hon. Wm. Mulock, Hon. David Mills, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. A. G. Blair, Hon. James Sutherland, Hon. W. R. Scott and Hon. F. W. Borden. Mr. Mulock is recruiting his health at Virginia Springs. Mr. Mills has gone west for a few days. Messrs. Fielding, Blair and Borden are in the Maritime Provinces, but are expected here to-day or Saturday, and Messrs. Scott and Sutherland may arrive any day.

Preparing for the Session. From this time forward the Ministers will be engaged with the preparations for the session, but from present indications the legislative bill of fare will not be a very formidable one. It is not expected that the house will be summoned before the first or second week in February. Indeed the additions and improvements now under way at the House can scarcely be completed until well into the new year, although every effort is being made to finish the work promptly.

In a day or two it is expected that a sub-committee of the Cabinet will receive Premier Haultain and Hon. A. L. Sifton, and discuss with them the question of granting Provincial autonomy to the Territories. On the conclusion of the conference the sub-committee will make its report to the Cabinet as a whole, and it will then devolve upon the Government to say whether the situation calls for immediate action by Parliament.

Doubtless the Government at an early date will take further steps in connection with the fast Atlantic steamship project. Hints emanating from Montreal suggest that Sir Christopher Furness is prepared to make a bid for the service, but up to this date no proposition from him has been laid before the Government.

Some thirteen constituencies are at present without representation in the House of Commons, and in due time the writs for new elections will be issued. This seems to promise a stirring prelude to the meeting of Parliament.

A number of appointments need to be made to the Senate, but no one will suffer in this matter if action is delayed until Parliament is summoned.

Gossip Regarding Mr. Foster. The latest rumor in political circles is that Mr. Geo. E. Foster is anxious to return to Dominion politics, and will attempt to secure a seat in the Commons at one of the coming bye-elections. The ex-Finance Minister is reported to have his eye upon an Ontario constituency, but which one is not yet indicated. It is probable that West York is the constituency Mr. Foster has in view, but the preliminary difficulty for him will be to secure nomination.

To Honor Dr. Dumant. Christiania, Norway, Oct. 25.—Although the fact is not officially announced, it is regarded as assured that Dr. Henri Dumant, the Swiss physician, who was recommended by the Swiss delegating to the committee entrusted with Nobel's annual prize for the encouragement of peace and arbitration, will be awarded that prize this year. Frederick Dassy, the former member of the French Chamber of Deputies, received the next highest vote.

Best Sugar in the Northwest. Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Experiments in the vicinity of Lethbridge with sugar beets has proved most successful. The percentage of sugar in beets has shown so large that Knight, the millionaire sugar manufacturer of Provo, Utah, has decided to erect a $200,000 factory at Raymond, near Lethbridge. He is now procuring 3,000 acres of land for cultivation for best production.

Destroyed Natural History Building. Toronto, Oct. 25.—Fire yesterday destroyed the Natural History Building at Exhibition Park, and the city will lose about $2,500 by it. The building was valued at $4,000, and was insured for only $1,500, divided among 46 companies doing business in Toronto. Of the insurance $500 represented the extra amount put on when the buildings were handed over to the military authorities. The policy was only for 20 days and expired on Saturday. The Natural History Building was built in 1882.

Admiral Schley on the Stand. Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry, which is investigating his conduct as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron during the Santiago campaign. He was summoned a few minutes after the court convened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He made full explanation of the whole movement against Santiago and the Spanish fleet.

TRADE WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

Duty of Britain to the Colonies in Matter of Food Supply.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—The duty of Britain to the colonies in the matter of trade and particularly as regards the food supply was the most vital note struck at the meeting of the British Empire League in St. George's Hall last night. The point was made by Hon. G. W. Ross, who advocated a vigorous propaganda on this line and also in the matter of emigration from Britain to the colonies, which, he said, to be effective, should be in the hands of a commission. Hon. G. E. Foster forcibly endorsed the proposition that Britain should deal with the colonies in preference to dealing with alien countries, wherever practicable and this, he said, would prove the compensation within the Empire for its enormous responsibilities and sacrifices.

Dr. Parkin took a different line and called for a propaganda to be sent from Canada to know why at this critical stage—Canada's boasted mobile forces were unrepresented in South Africa, while Australia, New Zealand and the South African colonies had thousands of men in the field. Sir Frederick Young, an accredited member of the League from Britain, spoke of Imperial Federation, which as he proposed it, would in no way conflict with the self-government of the colonies.

Preference Within the Empire. London, Oct. 26.—The rumor was revived yesterday that Mr. Chamberlain intends to launch a proposition for the establishment of an imperial mutual preferential tariff before the next general election, which is now looked for as soon as the war is really over. It cannot be traced to any substantial source, but it would not surprise politicians.

MR. DAVIN HAD A FALL. His Widow Clears Up Some Alleged Misstatements.

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—According to Mrs. Davin, who is at present stopping with relatives in Ottawa, entirely erroneous reports were circulated regarding the death of her husband, the late Nicholas Flood Davin, ex-M.P. Speaking of the tragic affair Mrs. Davin stated that deceased had neither political, financial, nor business worries. She also denies that her husband was drinking to excess lately. He went up to Winnipeg on legal business, and while there wrote her regularly once, sometimes twice a day, the letters being bright and cheerful. Friends who met him there have, according to his widow, borne her out on this point.

Mrs. Davin spoke of an accident which befell deceased a few days before his death, which she holds responsible for his condition. In an endeavor to secure some books from a high library she fitted up a temporary support, which he had ascended, when it gave way, throwing him to the floor. Mrs. Davin states he arose in a dazed condition, only to fall to the floor again, striking the back of his head violently. He complained afterwards of dizziness and was delirious at times. Mrs. Davin expressed a wish to accompany him to Winnipeg, but he assured her that the trouble was only a trivial one. She is satisfied that the head trouble, following the fall, unbalanced his mind, causing him to do the desperate deed.

Czechoz's Father's Message. Cleveland, O., Oct. 28.—The Associated Press is made the medium of the last message from the father of Leon F. Czechoz, the condemned assassin, who will pay the penalty for his terrible crime in Auburn Prison next Tuesday morning. In an interview yesterday afternoon the elder Czechoz was asked what he had to say finally to his unfortunate son.

The old man's eyes filled with tears as he replied: "Tell Leon that I hope that he may rest in peace; that he will become reconciled to God and will meet his end bravely. Tell him that as much as I and all of our family regret his most unhappy plight that we can do nothing to interfere; that he alone is responsible for his unfortunate position, and that he must meet his punishment as a consequence."

Over 300 Killed. Victoria, B. C., Oct. 23.—The China mail brings news of outrages at Hin Meng, where a German Church has been burned, and the missionaries narrowly escaped with their lives. The triad rebels afterwards attacked the town, and there was a fight in the streets between the triads and the townspeople, in which the rebels were victorious, and about a hundred of the inhabitants were killed. Gen. Wu afterwards marched a force of Imperial troops to meet the rebels, of which they killed over 300.

The King Edward VII. Coins. London, Oct. 28.—For the first time in many years the British mint will not issue any new money at Christmas. The first issue of the coinage of King Edward VII. will be as early in 1902 as is possible. Before the date of issue the coinage will be heralded by a royal proclamation describing minutely the character and appearance of each coin, without which formality none could be legally put into circulation. Most of the dies of the Victorian coinage will then be destroyed.

Release Orders. London, Oct. 26.—The War Office has ordered the immediate release of three members of the Fifth Victorian Contingent, who, resenting Brig-General Beaton calling the command "White Iversen's curs," were tried by court martial and sentenced to death for mutinous conduct. General Kitchen commuted the sentence to 12 years' penal servitude.

They Long to Retaliate. Manila, Oct. 26.—The people of the island of Samar have been notified to concentrate in the towns, otherwise they will be considered public enemies and outlaws, and will be treated accordingly. Intense feeling exists among the troops in Samar. If they can meet the enemy in the open there will be great retaliation.

MRS. WHITE IS FREE

The Jurors Refused to Say That She Was Guilty.

A VERDICT OF "NOT GUILTY."

Before Foreman of Jury Said Final Words There Was Intense Suspense and Almost Oppressive Silence in the Court Room at Brantford—Affecting Greeting of Her Two Sons in Court.

Brantford, Oct. 28.—After a trial lasting all week, Mrs. Josephine White was late Saturday afternoon declared not guilty of the charge of poisoning her husband. The jury retired at 11.25 a. m. and were out of the courtroom until 4.02 p. m.

As the afternoon passed the expectation of a verdict of acquittal faded away, and the least anyone looked for was a disagreement of the jury. As the jurymen filed into their places there was an intense suspense and almost oppressive silence. When the foreman announced the decision arrived at Mrs. White burst into tears, and as she stepped out of the dock to greet her two sons, the scene was an affecting one. She was immediately surrounded by a number of friends, who offered their congratulations on the result.

Mrs. White emerged from under the shadow that has hung over her during the past six months almost a nervous wreck. She has been subjected to an intense strain during the trial, and reaction has succeeded the tension.

The trial was a long and thorough one. There were many witnesses examined, and the opposing counsel exerted their best abilities in developing their cases. The addresses of the counsel were long and exhaustive. Mr. Heyd, K. C., for the defence, addressed the jury four hours, and Mr. Aglin's address occupied three hours and twenty minutes. His Lordship Justice Meredith, in summing up the case, spoke for two hours and forty minutes. His Lordship's charge was concluded at 11.25, and was an able and impartial view of the evidence.

This is the second poisoning trial here in six years, and in both cases, Mrs. White and Mrs. Hartly, the charge was not sustained.

The Duke's Speeches. St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 28.—The Duke's great tact, so frequently exhibited on his tour, was conspicuous here. His speech was admirable in its references to the fact that Newfoundland was an appanage of the British Crown before Australia was discovered, and to the fact that the men of Devon, who beat the Spanish Armada, learned their seamanship on the banks of Newfoundland. The speeches of the Duke of Cornwall have attracted universal admiration in British North America. They have always been contained within the limits of four pages of foolscap, written in a large, round, plain hand. They have been particularly noticeable as referring in felicitous phrase to the local history and particular environment of the various places at which they have been delivered.

Philadelphian's London Correspondent. Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—The North American's London correspondent says: I am told that General Kitchen, in a recent despatch to the War Office, reports the receipt from Generals Botha and Dewet of information saying that if any further executions of Boers took place they would shoot any of Kitchen's highest officers who were captured. Kitchen, it is reported, replied: "Please do." The War Office has suppressed the despatch.

Dutch Consul to Leave. Brussels, Oct. 28.—The relations between Holland and Great Britain again appear to be somewhat strained. According to intelligence which is being circulated here, Great Britain asked Holland to recall her consul at Pretoria, because he was suspected of facilitating treasonable correspondence. Holland has given the consul indefinite leave of absence.

Boer Motion in French Chamber. Paris, Oct. 28.—George Berry, a Nationalist member of the Chamber of Deputies, has informed the Ministry of his intention to introduce a motion in the Chamber, instructing the Government to join with other nations in obliging England to remove the women, children and aged people from the concentration camps in South Africa to healthy, neutral territory.

Threatened With Brain Fever. Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor may not get over the effects of her trip over the Horseshoe Falls as easily as first supposed. Evidence of greater uneasiness began to manifest themselves Saturday night, and yesterday morning she was far from resting as well as on the first day following her trip. Mrs. Taylor has been troubled with dizziness and headache. The doctors have frankly told her that she is threatened with brain fever, and she is not as clear in her statements as to her experience as she was right after the plunge.

Fleeing for Their Lives. Unlontown, Pa., Oct. 28.—The western slope of the Allegheny mountains through Fayette County are ablaze from the Yough River through into West Virginia, and mountaineers are fleeing from their doomed homes with their families. Careless hunters started a dozen fires during the past week, and the brush is as dry as tinder. The destruction has been enormous to crops, fences, barns, stock and dwellings, with many narrow escapes from cremation in homes that were surrounded by the flames.

Used Earth's Currents. London, Oct. 28.—The naval attaches of the United States, German and Austrian Embassies in London yesterday officially inspected the Ording-Armstrong system of wireless telegraphy and telephony, in which earth currents are used. Commander Clover, representing the United States, operated the transmitter. Messages in Morse characters were satisfactorily sent a distance of three-quarters of a mile. A short iron rod was stuck in the ground at the sending and receiving stations and the instruments connected with these rods. The inventors claim to have operated in a similar manner over a distance of 20 miles.

"What Lovely Shoes!"

"Never dreamed that such shoes could be made in Canada!" "Isn't that a beautiful finish?" "I like the shape and cut of it, too, so graceful, you know." "Yes, it's the 'King Quality' shoe, and really, girls, I never wear shoes so comfortable and neat as these are. And, you know, we save all the customs duties, because they are made in Canada." "They won the gold medal at Paris this year." "See, here is the trade-mark you can know them by!" "KING QUALITY."

MORE BOERS SHOT.

Captured in Khaki, They Were Promptly Court-Martialled and Executed—Theron West of Louw River.

London, Oct. 28.—The South African war brings news that several Boers who were captured wearing khaki uniforms were court-martialled and shot. It seems also that Commandant Theron crossed the Cape Town lines, west of Louw River Station, Sept. 23.

Botha Rejoins Burger. Newcastle, Natal, Oct. 27.—Commandant General Botha, with a small escort, has rejoined Schalk Burger, whose movable Government is established to the westward of Amsterdam, guarded by 100 horsemen. Gen. Botha's forces have separated into small commandoes, which are operating in a rough, bushy country well adapted to Boer tactics. Several British columns are hunting them.

Chasing the Boers. Matjesfontein, Cape Colony, Oct. 27.—Col. Scobell, after chasing the Boers under Commandant Smuts almost day and night for two weeks, eventually drove them to the north. Gen. Knox's column arrived at Heuvelort West on Sunday to rest. It is now moving again. Commandant Scheepers, who was captured recently and taken to the hospital at Heuvelort West, is progressing favorably.

Situation Has Improved. Pretoria, Oct. 27.—Of late a number of young Cape rebels have taken the field in the western province, but most of them are unarmed. They roam about the desolate country in the west and northwest portions of the colony, doing little damage and asking good care to avoid the British columns. The situation in the Cape Colony has greatly improved.

"Please Do." Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—The North American's London correspondent says: I am told that General Kitchen, in a recent despatch to the War Office, reports the receipt from Generals Botha and Dewet of information saying that if any further executions of Boers took place they would shoot any of Kitchen's highest officers who were captured. Kitchen, it is reported, replied: "Please do." The War Office has suppressed the despatch.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS ARE.

The Kidneys, two in number, are composed of a network of blood vessels and delicate tissues surrounded by a muscular coating. They are about four inches long and two inches wide. Their peculiar function is to abstract from the blood the waste impurities. They act very much like a filter, the heavy portion of blood passing on through the veins and the watery portion draining out and down through the urethra into the bladder. Diseases of the kidneys consist of a lack of tone of the muscles surrounding the arteries and a lack of sensitiveness to the delicate nerves found in these organs, caused either by inflammation or general debility. Kidney diseases manifest themselves in the urine and also by a pain in the small of the back. Merrill's System Tonic exhibits the best form of treatment for any disease of the kidneys. It contains the healing and soothing properties of Buchu combined with the muscle and nerve toning properties of the hypophosphites. Besides it is a blood purifier and will remove from the system uric acid poisoning caused by kidney weakness and resulting in various forms of rheumatism. We don't weary you with testimonials, but we have more of them than most medicines. The use of one bottle will convince you that Merrill's System Tonic is an extremely valuable medicine of extraordinary merit.

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold AT ALL DRUG STORES.

VERY BRUTAL MURDER

Tobin Hansen, a Dane, Gives Himself Up as the Criminal.

CUT 12-YEAR-OLD BOY'S THROAT

The Awful Deed Was Done Near the Lad's Home—Murderer Followed His Victim and Deliberately Knocked Him Down in Order to Get the Few Cents the Child Had on Him.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—Tobin Hansen, a Dane, 24 years old, is locked up in the Westmount police cells for a brutal murder committed Saturday night. Hansen met a young lad about 12 years old, named Samuel Marrotte, the son of Samuel Marrotte, one of the best known citizens of Montreal, on the street near his father's home at Westmount. He followed the boy into some fields and then deliberately knocked him down and put an end to his life by cutting his throat. Hansen's explanation is that he wanted money, but all he got was a few cents, which the poor little lad had on him. Hansen, after killing the lad, threw his body on a high pile of stones and proceeded on his way. The boy's body was found a few hours afterwards, but nothing was known as to how he came by his death until this morning, when Hansen walked into Montreal police headquarters and gave himself up. He was handed over to Westmount police. Hansen stated he had only been in this country a few months and that he had worked for some months at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec.

TAPS FROM THE WIVES.

Horse thieves are at work in Pickering and Whitby Townships. Two cases of snafepox are reported in Kingsville, and several houses are said to be quarantined.

Twenty-three persons have been eaten by wolves, says The New Wiener Journal of Vienna, while working in the fields near Witebsk, Poland.

The death occurred on Saturday morning of Mr. James Grant, late clerk of the Township of London, and one of the best known citizens of London district, aged 60 years.

W. H. Gillard, head of the firm of Gillard & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, died Friday night from apoplexy. He was in his usual health shortly before 8 o'clock.

On the second anniversary of the opening of the Stony Creek Battle-field Park on Saturday Alex. Muir of Toronto, author of "The Maple Leaf Forever" planted a maple tree.

A maniac ran amuck near Beechwood, a small settlement eight miles west of Iron River, Mich., Saturday, and as a result two persons besides himself are dead, and a fourth is dying.

At Niagara-on-the-Lake a large ice house, located in Paradise Grove, and owned by the Michigan Central Railway Company, was totally destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock Saturday night. Incendiary.

Two-year-old Josephine Marie McCollum choked to death on Saturday afternoon at the residence of her grandfather, Peter Freyseng, Toronto. The child's death followed quickly after that of her mother and father.

Arthur Burger of Toronto, his son Charles, aged 7, and John Figg, were injured in an exciting runaway accident on Sunday. Lord Minto, which Burger was driving, ran away, throwing them out. Burger is suffering from scalp wound and concussion and his son and Figg from painful bruises about the head and face. The horse was killed by striking a telegraph pole.

BORE NEAR BRANTFORD.

Rosslund, B. C., Oct. 28.—A report is to hand from Spokane, Wash. that Miss Elizabeth Duggan was found dead in a room at the Pacific Hotel, where she had registered from Rosslund. The indications pointed to death from heart failure. The deceased was about 30 years of age, a native of Newport, near Brantford, Ont., and has a brother at Burton, B. C., and a sister at Montreal, Col. She was a trained nurse at the Women's Hospital in Buffalo, N. Y., and had a responsible position there.

In King Alfred's Memory.

New York, Oct. 28.—In a number of New York churches yesterday services were held in commemoration of the millennial of King Alfred. Ceremonies incident to the event will be continued to-day, and it is the intention of those who promoted these ceremonies to establish some fitting, permanent memorial to the famous King in the New York Public Library.

Chill in Fighting Mood.

London, Oct. 28.—The Chilean Government announced the mobilization of the army for the manoeuvres, says a despatch to The Daily Mail from Buenos Ayres. The Argentine fleet has been ordered to be provisioned and coaled and the sailors are working day and night. Three thousand manifestants have arrived.

Manchurian-Siberian Railway.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—According to a despatch to the Nizhny Vreyna from Vladivostok, the Russian general, Grodekoff, accompanied by the Russian Assistant Minister of Finance, M. Romanoff, will soon open the Manchurian-Siberian Railway.

Will Canada Be There?

London, Oct. 26.—Australia and New Zealand are sending military contingents to the King's coronation next year. It is expected Canada will also be represented. Men who have seen service in South Africa are getting preference in these contingents, and the Imperial Government is anxious that Hon. Dr. Borden, the Canadian Minister of Militia, should have picked men in the contingent from the Dominion.

Italian Prince Accused.

Rome, Oct. 28.—Another art scandal affecting a member of the Italian aristocracy is much commented on here. Prince Barberini is summoned to appear on Nov. 26 to be prosecuted under the Puccia law on a charge of selling medieval masterpieces outside of the Kingdom of Italy.

Russia and China Agree.

London, Oct. 28.—"It is officially announced in St. Petersburg," says a despatch from the Russian capital, "that Russia and China have concluded an agreement as to Manchuria."

HOW HE WHIPPED CERVERA.

Admiral Schley Tells the Story, Clearing Up Important Points.

Washington, Oct. 26.—When the Schley Court of Inquiry adjourned yesterday Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony in chief. The chief event of the day was the Admiral's relation of the events of July 3, when the American fleet sent Cervera's squadron to the bottom of the sea or to the beach. He told his story of this historical occurrence in plain words and in unimportant style. He cleared up many important points, and indicated that he knew all phases of the event.

Appeal to Russia Falls. London, Oct. 26.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says Mr. Van der Hoeven, one of Dr. Leyds' secretaries, has been trying to persuade the Russian Government to take the initiative in order to bring the South African conflict before a court of arbitration. He is unable to accomplish his purpose, as Russia, after summoning The Hague Conference, could not act in opposition to its ruling that the consent of both parties is essential to arbitration.

Canada and Australia's Tariff. Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The Dominion Government has been notified that the new tariff recently submitted to the Parliament of Federated Australia is in force throughout the Commonwealth. The probability now is that the Canadian Government will shortly pass an Order-in-Council abrogating the tariff preference to New South Wales, which has now become merged with the rest of the Australian colonies, excepting New Zealand. It would be anomalous, not to say absurd, to continue a tariff preference to New South Wales when the conditions upon which it was granted have ceased to exist. There is an impression abroad that as soon as the Canadian Government has had time to consider the altered state of affairs resulting from the new fiscal policy in Australia inquiries will be set on foot with a view to ascertaining whether Hon. Edmund Barton and his colleagues would be favorable to a reciprocal trade arrangement. There is, however, no official basis for this impression, the Government as yet having had no time to deliberate upon the situation.

The Australian Tariff. London, Oct. 26.—The Melbourne correspondent of The Times says the condemnation of the Western Australian Assembly of the Federal Tariff bill is significant, as indicating that the State Legislatures will criticize the acts of the Federal Parliament. In spite of the defection of a few members in consequence of the high tariff proposals, which they regard as a breach of the pledges made by Mr. Barton, the Premier, it is believed that the Federal Ministry will have a majority of eight.

Czar to Visit Britain.

London, Oct. 28.—It is said in both official and diplomatic circles that the Czar and Czarina have accepted invitations from the King to visit this country next summer or autumn. The visit, which would be paid either to the Solent or to Scotland, will extend over at least a week. Their Imperial Majesties will come direct from Russia, escorted by a flotilla.

Rockhill Reported at Last.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The final protocol closing the negotiations at Peking between the Chinese Plenipotentiaries and the representatives of the Powers was submitted by special Commissioner Rockhill to the State Department in a long document, consisting of twelve distinct articles, on Saturday. The information was given to the public months ago.

Nov Spur Line for Quebec.

Quebec, Oct. 28.—It is learned from authentic sources that the Great Northern Railway has given the contract for the construction of a branch line of railway from St. Gabriel to Garmeau Junction to E. C. Loss, a Chicago contractor. The work will be undertaken as early as possible.

Manchurian-Siberian Railway.

There is an impression abroad that as soon as the Canadian Government has had time to consider the altered state of affairs resulting from the new fiscal policy in Australia inquiries will be set on foot with a view to ascertaining whether Hon. Edmund Barton and his colleagues would be favorable to a reciprocal trade arrangement. There is, however, no official basis for this impression, the Government as yet having had no time to deliberate upon the situation.

The Australian Tariff.

London, Oct. 26.—The Melbourne correspondent of The Times says the condemnation of the Western Australian Assembly of the Federal Tariff bill is significant, as indicating that the State Legislatures will criticize the acts of the Federal Parliament. In spite of the defection of a few members in consequence of the high tariff proposals, which they regard as a breach of the pledges made by Mr. Barton, the Premier, it is believed that the Federal Ministry will have a majority of eight.

Czar to Visit Britain.

London, Oct. 28.—It is said in both official and diplomatic circles that the Czar and Czarina have accepted invitations from the King to visit this country next summer or autumn. The visit, which would be paid either to the Solent or to Scotland, will extend over at least a week. Their Imperial Majesties will come direct from Russia, escorted by a flotilla.

Rockhill Reported at Last.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The final protocol closing the negotiations at Peking between the Chinese Plenipotentiaries and the representatives of the Powers was submitted by special Commissioner Rockhill to the State Department in a long document, consisting of twelve distinct articles, on Saturday. The information was given to the public months ago.

Nov Spur Line for Quebec.

Quebec, Oct. 28.—It is learned from authentic sources that the Great Northern Railway has given the contract for the construction of a branch line of railway from St. Gabriel to Garmeau Junction to E. C. Loss, a Chicago contractor. The work will be undertaken as early as possible.

Manchurian-Siberian Railway.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—According to a despatch to the Nizhny Vreyna from Vladivostok, the Russian general, Grodekoff, accompanied by the Russian Assistant Minister of Finance, M. Romanoff, will soon open the Manchurian-Siberian Railway.

Will Canada Be There?

London, Oct. 26.—Australia and New Zealand are sending military contingents to the King's coronation next year. It is expected Canada will also be represented. Men who have seen service in South Africa are getting preference in these contingents, and the Imperial Government is anxious that Hon. Dr. Borden, the Canadian Minister of Militia, should have picked men in the contingent from the Dominion.

Italian Prince Accused.

Rome, Oct. 28.—Another art scandal affecting a member of the Italian aristocracy is much commented on here. Prince Barberini is summoned to appear on Nov. 26 to be prosecuted under the Puccia law on a charge of selling medieval masterpieces outside of the Kingdom of Italy.

Russia and China Agree.

London, Oct. 28.—"It is officially announced in St. Petersburg," says a despatch from the Russian capital, "that Russia and China have concluded an agreement as to Manchuria."

HOW HE WHIPPED CERVERA.

Admiral Schley Tells the Story, Clearing Up Important Points.

Washington, Oct. 26.—When the Schley Court of Inquiry adjourned yesterday Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony in chief. The chief event of the day was the Admiral's relation of the events of July 3, when the American fleet sent Cervera's squadron to the bottom of the sea or to the beach. He told his story of this historical occurrence in plain words and in unimportant style. He cleared up many important points, and indicated that he knew all phases of the event.

Appeal to Russia Falls.

London, Oct. 26.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says Mr. Van der Hoeven, one of Dr. Leyds' secretaries, has been trying to persuade the Russian Government to take the initiative in order to bring the South African conflict before a court of arbitration. He is unable to accomplish his purpose, as Russia, after summoning The Hague Conference, could not act in opposition to its ruling that the consent of both parties is essential to arbitration.

Canada and Australia's Tariff.

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The Dominion Government has been notified that the new tariff recently submitted to the Parliament of Federated Australia is in force throughout the Commonwealth. The probability now is that the Canadian Government will shortly pass an Order-in-Council abrogating the tariff preference to New South Wales, which has now become merged with the rest of the Australian colonies, excepting New Zealand. It would be anomalous, not to say absurd, to continue a tariff preference to New South Wales when the conditions upon which it was granted have ceased to exist. There is an impression abroad that as soon as the Canadian Government has had time to consider the altered state of affairs resulting from the new fiscal policy in Australia inquiries will be set on foot with a view to ascertaining whether Hon. Edmund Barton and his colleagues would be favorable to a reciprocal trade arrangement. There is, however, no official basis for this impression, the Government as yet having had no time to deliberate upon the situation.

Mr. Jas. A. Miller, B.A., arrived home last week from his holiday trip in England and Scotland and reports a very pleasant and successful journey. A new contest has been arranged by the Sons of Temperance, and a very lively quarter is expected. The annual sermon celebrating the 43rd anniversary of the organization here was preached by Rev. Mr. Lambert last Sunday night to a very large congregation. His discourse was an eloquent plea for a temperate life.

COBOCONK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
We learn that the recent case in our village is not going to be investigated, it being claimed that the matter was settled. It is also hinted that a new constable is to be appointed in the near future. Your correspondent has no opinion on the matter, and it is the duty of our citizens to think of all things concerned, our present constable can attend to all business which might come to his notice. There is no salary attached to this office. Our present local J.P. thinks there is no use in taking any more of our citizens. We think only common sense their career by small, petty trifles, if allowed to go off with them they feel encouraged to do more. If allowed to go free they will in time become full-fledged criminals. Now, we have enough crime and it is the duty of our citizens to do their part to keep down all inclined to begin a criminal career. Let the law be strictly enforced and J.P.s and constables will have the all and encouragement of all law-abiding citizens.

SONYA.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
It is our unpleasant duty to chronicle the death of Lachin McTaggart in St. Boniface hospital, Winnipeg, on the 22nd inst., at the age of 26 years. Deceased was the eldest son of Mr. Wm. McTaggart of this place, and in order to better his circumstances went West last spring and secured employment at his trade with a railway contractor. All went well until he was taken down with typhoid fever, and in two weeks a promising life was brought to a close. His virtues were many and his failings few, and while in the flesh he was a shining example to all young men. The remains arrived here on Friday evening, the interment taking place on Saturday afternoon with S.O.S. honors, Rev. P. F. Sinclair officiated, assisted by Revs. Currie and Cameron. The heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended to the afflicted household.

ROYAL OAK—MARIPOSA.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
On Friday evening, Oct. 25th, the many friends of Miss Pinkham assembled at the Royal Oak School to show their appreciation of her services for the past six and a half years. During this time she has taught with great success and won for herself the love and respect of both pupils and parents. Owing to a serious illness in June Miss Pinkham has been forced to resign the Royal Oak School, and her pupils, as a token of love, presented her with an address, an upholstered, plush easy chair, also an easel with oil painting. Rev. Mr. Sinclair in his usual happy manner acted as chairman, and a good program consisting of choruses by the children, recitations, etc., also speeches by the Secretary-Treasurer and others, was given. Miss Pinkham, although taken by surprise, made a suitable reply to the address. Then lunch was served, when all returned to their homes.

MILLBROOK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Miss M. Eakins is visiting her cousin, Miss May Eakins, of Peterboro.
Rev. Mr. Kennedy and W. R. Clarke, attended the Provincial Sunday School Convention in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins visited Toronto and the Pan-American recently.
The anniversary services in connection with the Methodist church were held on Sunday, Oct. 20th. Rev. Dr. Workman, of Toronto, preached both morning and evening to large congregations. His services were eloquent, logical and forcible. The pastor of the church, asked the congregation to place $150 on the collection plate, and over $152 were received, which was a creditable showing. The pastor and trustees are to be congratulated on the success of the anniversary services.

Mr. W. L. Gardiner has opened out a restaurant in the building formerly occupied by S. Bateson. Mr. Gardiner carries an up-to-date stock and will no doubt receive a good share of patronage.
Mr. Geo. Southerton left for Kinmount on Saturday last on a hunting expedition.

Messrs. Collins and Rudy were in Toronto last week.
Miss Ida Fair is visiting her brother in Peterboro.
Miss Ethel Richardson has returned from her trip to Toronto.

NORLAND.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. S. B. Trick, of Oshawa, who recently purchased Messrs. Stegions & Argue's saw-mill is making some extensive changes. He has purchased a large fifty horse-power boiler and a single machine from Mr. McLaughlin, of Cambridge, which he intends putting in as soon as possible. He has also purchased a valuable timber limit on the shores of Gull Lake. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

Mr. Will Bell is seriously ill at present with typhoid fever.
Rev. H. E. Curtis was taken suddenly ill with heart trouble on Friday evening last while addressing the Young People's meeting. He was unable on Sunday to conduct his usual services, but we hope to see him around again in a few days.

Mr. Chris. Woodcock, of Ball Lake, returned home from the North-West Tuesday evening last, looking hale and hearty after their long trip.
Mr. Geo. Day, of North Bay, is visiting friends in this place.
Mr. Ernest Adair, of Revelstoke, B.C., is visiting friends in these parts.

Mr. James Greer returned home last week after a long summer working near Bracebridge.
Mr. and Mrs. Lessa Cliff, of Cambridge, spent a few days last week visiting friends in Norland.

Mrs. R. E. Wager, of Fenelon Falls, returned home on Wednesday, after spending a few weeks visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Woodcock.

Miss Meta Woodcock, of Ball Lake school, Kilmoryn, and Miss J. House, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends here.
Mr. William Fox, of Cambridge, has become one of the residents of our little village, having moved in last week. He will occupy the residence of Mr. G. W. Alley for the present.

Mr. G. W. Alley, one of our enterprising merchants, has been making some necessary improvements to his residence by building a large and commodious kitchen.

LITTLE BRITAIN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. and Mrs. E. Z. Yerex and family were on their way to Sunderland on Sunday last, visiting their many friends and relatives.

One of our young sportsmen took a notion last Sunday to take a drive out to Port Perry to fish, and declares he had excellent luck. We would advise several others to try it.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 23rd, the Bible Society held a meeting at which Mr. Davidson delivered a fine lecture. There was no League on that night, but yet the crowd was small.

Mr. J. Rich, tailor, is turning out a number of stylish suits and overcoats, and seems to be making it lively on the once vacant corner.

We will be glad when the time comes and the young men will be able to enjoy themselves skating, because it keeps them out of mischief.

Our Public School was vacant on Monday last on account of our school teacher, Mr. C. H. Lopp, being absent to attend his mother's funeral.

It is now the time for deer-hunting again, and several of our sportsmen have departed to the deer regions.

The stone crusher passed through the village several days ago on its way down to Mr. J. Pogue's, where it is being engaged in the crushing of a great pile of stone. We hope it will proceed to Mr. M. Wickett's farm, north of the village, to crush several cords more, and we hope soon to see an improvement in the appearance of our roads.

Mr. D. Yerex's family were out on Sunday last enjoying a drive behind his white Indian pony, which he purchased from W. E. Yerex lately, and although it is a little while being hitched in a new harness made by E. E. Dillman, and a new buggy manufactured by R. S. Robertson, yet it drove along nicely after getting started.

WOODVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
County Constable A. L. Minthorne of Oakwood, was a visitor to our village Saturday on business.

The diphtheria is about stamped out of our village. The cases reported are few.

The services in connection with the Methodist church were conducted on Sunday by Mr. A. D. Weeks, of Toronto, and the subject on temperance lines was well and favourably received.

One farmer in this vicinity has over four thousand bushels of mangolds, besides a large crop of turnips. The surest growing time.

Village Council regular meeting was held on Tuesday night this week. Alex. Macmillan, of Napleton-st., arrived home from McGregor, Man., on Monday, having worked in the North-West nearly three months.

All the patients on the sick list are doing well and some were able to be out this week. Mrs. McKay and Grant have handled this matter well, and no further spread of diphtheria is now expected.

Aroh. Campbell, miller, left on Wednesday to join the Beaverton Hunt Club, who go to Muskoka for a week's deer shooting.

Mr. Newton Smith, the Liberal candidate for West Victoria, was calling on old acquaintances here on Monday.

Fire on Sunday p. m. burned the barn and outbuildings of Sam McKinnon on the 8th con. of Eldon. He had a small insurance in the Victoria Mutual Ins. Co. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss will reach fully five hundred dollars.

KINMOUNT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Kinmount can now boast of a Joint Company called the Kinmount Driving Park and Agricultural Association. The company has purchased land for agricultural and show purposes and work on the race-course and fencible will be pushed ahead this fall so that the track will be in good shape for next year. There is no doubt that with an able board of directors, and James Wilson as their president, this venture will be carried to a successful issue and Kinmount will be no longer a back number in the list of fall fairs, etc.

The smoke stack for Craig & Austin's kiln arrived Wednesday.

Considerable amusement has been given our citizens by a graphophone located in the parlor window of M. A. Hopkins' residence.

Mr. C. H. Cole and wife drove over to Norland Wednesday.

The Methodist congregation waited long and patiently last Sabbath for their pastor, but he did not come. We are sorry to announce that he was taken with a severe heart trouble while conducting a meeting in Norland and fell prostrate while singing the first verse of the opening hymn. He has been confined to his bed ever since, and his chances for recovery are doubted by some of his attendants. We hope that he will be spared to carry on the good work which he has begun in our midst.

J. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, was in town on business this week.

The I. O. O. F. are considering the advisability of forming a brass band in the local Court. We outsiders heartily applaud the idea and wish them every success.

Mr. Puley was in town last evening, but had to make a hurried visit on account of sickness in his home at Fenelon Falls, where no less than five members of his family are under the doctor's care.

The hounds, the hunter and the lithe brown jag are a trio that we frequently see in our town these days.

THINGS MUST HUM NOW!

GOUGH

Knocking the very life out of Clothing Prices.

Gough is getting great ovations these days; trade follows Gough and Gough holds trade. The people stay with the people's store. Business is humming. The clerks hustle to the merry click of the quarters, halves and dollars. The town is all astir.

THERE'S A NIGGER ON THE FENCE

And he's a "good 'un." Use your eyes for all your worth and notice the label on his back. He's a fore-runner of the greatest annual Clothing event that all Lindsay waits for regularly.

GOUGH'S EARLY WINTER SALE

Every year at this Season we hold SPECIAL SALE for the benefit of shrewd shoppers who wish to prepare in time for the cold days of winter.

Right now at the threshold of the season, we have strangled all regular prices, and begin a mighty Autumn movement, with prices that hypnotize bargain lovers. We intend to reach the summit of good values,

THE PINNACLE OF CLOTHING BARGAINS

In High Class Overcoats and Ulsters, Stylish Winter Suits, Hats and Caps and Fashionable Furnishings.

Look for our interesting four-page Clothing Circular with its trade startling price list reductions. If you don't secure a copy, come to the store and get one, and then "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest."

GOODERHAM.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Duck shooting will soon yield to deer shooting. On Monday evening we saw quite a number of sportsmen at Jas. Scott's hotel. Their intention is to shoot ducks and partridges until Nov. 1st, when there will be no more ducks seen.

Miss L. L. McElwain has returned to her duties apparently in good health again. We hope she will be able to remain now, as her absence during her illness was greatly felt, especially among the pupils.

Mr. C. K. Ward, station agent, has quit; recovered from a severe attack of illness.

Messrs. Davis & White are building a lumber camp about six miles distant, where they intend lumbering this fall and winter.

We are very sorry to report a mishap on the I. B. & O. R.; R., which might have resulted in a serious disaster. On Monday, 21st inst., while the train was progressing westward and about two miles from the G. T. It. Jct., something went wrong with the engine, causing the rails to spread from under the wheels and allowing the engine to plough along the track a short distance when it turned over on its side. Part of the train was thrown off the track, but the coach with its passengers remained on the rails. The conductor and brakeman received no injuries; the engineer, Jos. Webb, and his fireman, Thos. Murphy, had a miraculous escape from getting killed, but were not much injured, the former receiving only some slight bruises, and the latter getting one foot scalded.

OAKWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
On Friday evening last a very enjoyable evening was spent in the Methodist church. The Women's Auxiliary of the church held a fruit social. The chalice was ably filled by Rev. Mr. Clark, and a very nice program consisting of recitations, readings and music was rendered by local talent. The feature of the evening was the very interesting address given by Mrs. R. G. Webster, who was delegate to the convention held lately in Belleville, and we venture to say that if all delegates paid the same attention when attending to those duties as Mrs. Webster has undoubtedly given the results would be very beneficial. After the program was finished the congregation retired to the basement to partake of bananas, grapes and apples.

The pulpit in the Methodist church was occupied on Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Spencer, missionary among the Indians in British Columbia. In the evening the body of the church, altar and gallery were filled, and all heard a very interesting address by the rev. gentleman. Mr. Clark was at Fowler's Corner, near Fenelon Falls, taking part in a church anniversary.

Mrs. Dr. Chambers and Mrs. Orson Weldon, accompanied by several others, are in Buffalo this week.

Mrs. L. T. Pascoe, of Toronto, is visiting friends near here.

Alfred Lake, who has been laid up with a sore foot, we are pleased to see him out again.

The next thing of importance to be held in Oakwood is a concert in the interests of the Public Library.

on Saturday evening, Nov. 9th, the King's birthday. The different committees are hard at work procuring the best local talent available. One of the leading features, it is expected, will be the second appearance of Dan. Gilchrist, now becoming one of Canada's greatest favorites, and who was so well received here before. All are welcome. Don't forget the date, and look out for further particulars next week.

NORTH MANVERS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stinson and Miss Gladys, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting Mount Pleasant and Lebanon friends.

Miss Mildred Stinson, of Lindsay, is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Bushnell.

A large number from this circuit attended the anniversary services at the Janetville Methodist church last Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Mounteer, of Cavanahua, conducted the services in the afternoon he addressed the children in a very appreciative manner.

Mrs. Campbell, of Midland, returned to her home last week, after spending a few weeks at the home of her brother, Mr. Charles Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Irvine were visitors to Reabrook last Sunday.

Mr. Wesley Galloway, of Lifford, visited friends in this vicinity last Sunday.

BENLON.

(Special to The Post.)
It seems a long time since any news from here have been seen in The Post. Will you please accept a few items from me? The Post is a welcome weekly visitor.

Mr. Angus McLellan was the guest of Mr. John Hall on Friday last.

FENELON FALLS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. Wm. McKown has disposed of his engine and boiler, together with all of his shop machinery to Mr. S. S. Gahner, of McKown's lot and is going to Alameda, N.W.T., next spring, where he will engage in farming.

Mr. W. T. Junkin is suffering from a severe attack of inflammation of his elbow joints, the result of getting it hurt in a slamming door.

The directors of the Fenelon Agricultural Show met here last Saturday and transacted business.

Mr. P. J. Knox, of Lindsay Model School, spent Saturday and Sunday last at his home here.

L. C. I. Notes.

—The first meeting of the Literary was held last Friday, and was well attended by the teachers and students of the school. Miss Brown, M.E., who made her first visit to Lindsay as an elocutionist, gave two well-known selections, which were greatly appreciated. The music was supplied by Miss Marjorie Ross, Mr. N. Black and Miss Edith Workman, and was well rendered and received with evident pleasure.

The speeches given by the retiring officers were excellent and were listened to with great eagerness. The pleasant meeting was brought to a close about 5.30.

SUED FOR $5,000; GOT $800

Verdict Against James Graham, Owner of the Commercial Hotel, Cmemen.

David Minns, harnessmaker of Omemee, and his wife Margaret, sued the village of Omemee and James Graham, a hotelkeeper in the village, for $5,000 damages for an accident, which happened to Mrs. Minns on the night of the 14th Sept., 1900, when she stubbed her toe against a loose plank in front of the Commercial hotel, owned by Graham, and fell into the outside cellar hole, suffering severe injuries.

The action was tried at Lindsay by Chancellor Boyd, who yesterday at Osgoode hall gave judgment against the defendant Graham for the wife plaintiff of $550 and for the husband plaintiff $250, with costs of the action, owing to the negligence of the driver and hostler in leaving open the cellar door. As to the village, the action is dismissed with costs.

He leaves to fill a position with the Ferrol Company of Markham. The many Lindsay friends of Mr. Gillis will wish him success.

Chemong Lake Floating Bridge.

The new floating bridge over Chemong Lake, connecting Ennisville with Bridgton, in Smith township, Peterborough, was completed last week. It has a total length of 3,633 feet, the approaches measuring 913 feet, the steel swinging span 103, and the floating portion 2,620. The suspended section is securely anchored by five-eighth chains attached to immense boulders. At five places the roadway is 24 feet wide, to enable teams to pass, while the balance of the bridge spreads out to 18 feet. The structure cost $23,000, part of this amount being contributed by the Provincial and Dominion governments.

Church Notes.

—Hearer of the Primitive Methodist church of the United States will tolerate no money-making socials, bun-feeds, bazaars, festivals, etc., in connection with the church. The money will be asked for and members will be expected to shell out according to their wealth.

—Christ church, Omemee, after being renovated and improved to a degree that makes it almost a new building, was re-opened for divine worship with appropriate ceremonies on last Sabbath, November 3rd. Rev. E. A. Langfield, Rector of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, and formerly Rector of Omemee and Emily officiated and preached both morning and evening to congregations which taxed the capacity of the church to the utmost. As he was instrumental in bringing about the moving and re-opening of the church the wardens and members very properly decided to honor him by requesting him to preside on the important and joyous occasion. The chancel was artistically decorated with palms and flowers, and the whole church presented a festive appearance.

A Hunting Episode.

A Kinmount hunting party comprising the following members—Messrs. A. B. Brandon, G.T.R. agent at that village, M. A. Hopkins, P. Chessel, R. J. Graham, D. Mills, W. Joy and Wm. McCormack—started out in search of mountain mutton on Saturday last, and before they had got many miles away they had a rather exciting experience. When in the vicinity of the railway crossing near the Ironstone Junction they almost tripped over a bunch of nine deer. Mr. Joy sprang after a large buck, but when he got within a few yards of the animal, with gun at half-cock, he became so nervous that he could not pull the trigger. The buck then turned and charged, jumped over his pursuer's head, and knocked off his hat. Mr. Joy was so badly scared that he was unable to say in what direction the animal disappeared; one of his thoughts, when he saw the deer coming toward him, was that it was old Nick with an arm chair on his head, and a handkerchief hanging out of his hip pocket. The other members of the party fired ninety-nine shots at the rest of the bunch without effect.

Railway Notes.

—Messrs. W. T. Tiffin, Superintendent of the Northern division of the G.T.R., Roadmaster J. A. Cheer and E. Brown, master of bridges and buildings, who are on a tour of inspection, were in town for a few hours on Tuesday. They left for Peterboro and Belleville on the regular train at 10:58, Supt. Tiffin's special car being attached thereto. —Business is brisk on the road at present owing to the removal of wheat from the Midland elevators

Tolls on the Canal.

An order in Council at Ottawa makes some changes in the tariff of tolls collected in slide and booms in the Trent and Newcastle District. From Cameron Lake to Sturgeon Lake the tolls are to be the same as provided by order in Council of April 18, 1893. From Buckhorn to below Burleigh the charge is to be half a cent per log, and other goods in proportion, as settled in 1893. No tolls are to be charged on any other section of the river.

Fellow When He's Broke.

Oh, the sun may shine as brightly An of yore; the pale moon nightly Do the stunts that set us raving ere we put our watch in soak; It may be the finest weather, World decked out in finest feather But you cannot make it look so to a fellow when he's broke."

You may labor your doggonest, Hear folks call you "poor, but honest," But somehow you can't help thinking how your overcoat is in soak. It's a sad curse to be wealthy, So they say—and I most unhealthily. But somehow it don't appear so to a fellow when he's broke."

November Wedding.

Wednesday afternoon 2.30 o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Moore, Lindsay St., north, when their second daughter, Ethel Williams, was married to Mr. Sam C. Brass, of Toronto, formerly of this town and Oakwood. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Manning, B.A., in the presence of about fifty relatives and intimate friends. The bride was assisted by her sister, Cora, while Mr. E. Brass, of Oakwood, supported the groom. After the ceremony the usual congratulations were extended, after which the happy couple partook of an elaborate wedding dinner. The presents to the bride were numerous and handsome. The young couple left on the 6.17 train last evening for a honeymoon trip to Western Ontario, after which they will reside in Toronto. The Post wishes the happy couple a long and prosperous married life.

L. C. I. Notes.

—The meeting of the Literary of the L.C.I. took place last Friday, and as usual was well attended. Miss Alice Mat h-w gave an instrumental solo which was cleverly rendered and received with great applause. A vocal solo was given by Miss Jones which was received with pleasure and she heartily responded to an encore. Mr. Jamieson and Mr. McInnes gave an excellent account of the time spent by our Cadet boys during their visit to the city in honor of the Duke and Duchess of York and Cornwall. No doubt from what we heard they had a good time and will have many stories for the fall evenings and the blazing camp fires on the banks of the mighty Seagoug. Mr. Palmer favored us with a vocal selection which was given in a clear voice and greatly appreciated by his fellow students.

Keeping it out of the Paper.

The Kingston Whig's experience indicated in the following is not different from that of newspapers in other places: "There are interested parties ready to throw themselves into the breach at every important occurrence and importune the newspapers to suppress some news item, and sometimes it happens several times a week. Men will expect an item to be suppressed when the entire community is already talking about it, and its publication would harm no one. If the paper declines to 'leave out' the item the applicant 'becomes very indignant; if it yields and a contemporary later publishes the news it never occurs to the gentleman that he has injured the legitimate business of a newspaper and that he ought to apologize. On the contrary, when a local newspaper leaves out an item, which appears later in an out-of-town journal, the very men who ask for its suppression are the first to say, 'You must read foreign papers to get the news.' Did it ever occur to those who request a newspaper not to publish a report that it would be just as reasonable to ask a merchant not to make a sale? You are making the newspaper to omit its most attractive feature, and to become tedious merely for your benefit. Possibly you may have business relations with the newspapers. That certainly gives you no right to make exactions.

LAW IS TO BE CHANGED

Hon. J. M. Gibson on the Scrap Iron Assessment.

LEGISLATION FORESHADOWED

It Will Likely Be Introduced During the Coming Session of the Legislature—The Bill of Last Session Was Introduced by Mr. Carleton and Was Recommended by the Municipal Association.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Hon. J. M. Gibson, when spoken to yesterday, fore-shadowed further legislation in regard to the assessment of the plants of corporations in order to leave no doubt as to the meaning of the law. He said: "The clause that was adopted was the Ontario Municipal Association's clause, and formed a bill introduced by Mr. Carleton of Hamilton during the session. It had been submitted as the Municipal Association's proposed amendment for two or three sessions, and was supposed to be clear enough to settle any question as to the proper taxation of corporations. As a matter of fact, the assessment of Hamilton, and I think, also of other places, in many parts of the Province, is not on the scrap iron basis, but has been made and settled on the basis of what was supposed to be the effect of the new law. No doubt there will be further legislation at the next session."

DAY-LABOR DEPUTATION.

Hon. Mr. Tarte's Reply to the Building Trade Delegates.

Ottawa, Ont., November 6. — A deputation representing the building trades of the city waited upon Hon. J. Israel Tarte yesterday morning and asked that day labor be employed in the construction of the branch of the Royal Mint, the National Museum, the Dominion Astronomical Observatory and other Government buildings to be erected in the city. Messrs. I. E. Cross, Thomas Smith and A. Knapp were the speakers. They claimed that day labor has proved, where tried, to be much superior to the contract system. They maintained that experience had shown the contract system to be an expensive one for the country, whereas the day-labor plan is not only more economical, but gives a better class of work.

In reply, Mr. Tarte said that there was nothing new in the question. It had been discussed several times in Parliament, and he generally had to bear the brunt of the fight for day labor, even the labor representatives in the House not supporting him. He favored day labor, but would not say that it could be successfully applied in every part of the country. He would not hesitate to say that under proper foremen day labor is the best, but the other members of the Government and Parliament had to be convinced of the fact. He could not make any promise, as he was only one and a very humble member of the Government. In their own interest the workmen would have to realize that it will be some time before the contract system is done away with, and they would have to give and take. As regards himself, he could claim to have done as much as any man for day labor. The west block, after its partial destruction by fire, had been rebuilt by day labor and there is no finer piece of work in the country. The addition to the House of Commons is being built by day labor most successfully and without friction of any kind. At Sorel dredges and steamers were being constructed by the same plan. He believed that Canadian workmen can do all the work of the country. He might be prejudiced in favor of day labor, but he believed in giving young men of ability a chance to climb to the top. Mr. Tarte concluded by again reminding the deputation that there is an adverse House of Commons to contend with, and he could make no promises. He advised them to carry on the work of educating public opinion. The deputation were impressed by the cordial manner in which they were received and the frank manner in which the Minister discussed the question with them.

Arms and the Woman.

By HAROLD MacGRATH.

"Now, my king," concluded the chancellor, "put a medal on him and let him go."

"In time," replied the king. "You may go, Herr Winthrop."

"Go and scribble no more," added the chancellor.

I could hear them laughing as I made my escape from the room. It could not be expected of me to join them. And Gretchen was as far away as ever. Phyllis love me? It was absurd. Gretchen had played me the fool. She had been laughing at me all the time. Yet she had begged my life of the prince and on her knees. Or was it a lie of his? Oh, it seemed to me that my brain would never become clear again.

In the afternoon at 4 I was ushered into the boudoir of her highness the Princess Elizabeth. It was Phyllis no longer. Phyllis had passed, and I became conscious of a vague regret.

"I am glad," she said, "that you were able to come. I wanted to speak to you about—about my sister."

"Your highness?"

"She laughed. 'Our interview shall end at once if you call me by that title. Sir,' with a gayety which struck me as unnatural, 'you are witnessing the passing of Phyllis. It will not be long before she shall pass away and never more return, and the name shall fade till it becomes naught but a dear memory. Phyllis has left the green pastures for the city, and Corydon followeth not.'

"Phyllis," said I, "you are cutting me to the heart."

"But to the matter at hand," she said quickly. "There is a misunderstanding between you and my sister Hildegarde. She sent me this letter. Read it."

It differed but little from the one I had read in the king's chamber that morning. I gave it back to her.

"Do you understand?"

"I confess that I do not. It seems that I am never going to understand anything again."

Phyllis balanced the letter on the palm of her hand. "You are so very blind, my dear friend. Did you not tell her that there had been another affair? Do you not believe she thinks your regard for her merely a matter of pique, of consolation? It was very kind of her to sacrifice herself for me. Some women are willing to give up all to see the man they love made happy. My sister is one of those. But I shall refuse the gift. Jack, can you not see that the poor woman thinks that you love me?" Phyllis was looking at me with the greatest possible kindness.

"I know not what she thinks. I only know that she has written me that she is sorry for having played with my affections. Phyllis, if she loved me she would not leave me as she has done."

"Oh, these doubting Thomases!" exclaimed Phyllis. "How do you know that she does not love you? Have you one true proof that she does not? No, but you have a hundred that she does."

"But?"

"Do you love her?" demanded Phyllis, stamping her foot with impatience.

"Love her? Have I not told you that I do?" gloomily.

"And will you give her up because she writes you a letter? What has ink to do with love and a woman? If you do not set out at once to find her, I shall never forgive you. She is my sister, and by that I know that you cannot win her by sitting still. Go find her and tell her that you will never leave her till she is your wife. I do not mean to infer," with a smile, "that you will leave her after. Go to her as a master. That is the way a woman loves to be wooed. Marry her and be happy, and I shall come and say."

"Heaven bless you, my children," I have accepted the renunciation of her claims so that she may be free to wed you. If you do not find her, I will. Since I have her promise to teach me the lesson of being a princess she cannot have gone far. And when you are married you will promise to visit me often? I shall be very lonely now. I shall be far away from my friends. I shall be in a prison, and men call it a palace."

"I will promise you anything you may ask," I said eagerly. A new hope and a new confidence had risen in my heart. I wonder where man got the idea that he is lord of creation when he depends so much upon woman?

"And you will really be my sister, too?" taking her hands and kissing them. "And you will think of me a little, will you not?"

"Yes," She slowly withdrew her hands. "If you do not find her, write to me."

"Your highness, it is my hope that some day you will meet a prince who will be worthy of you, who will respect and honor you as I do."

"Who can say? You have promised the king to become a subject of Hohenphalia."

"Yes."

"Then you will be a subject of mine. It is my will—I am in a sovereign mood—that you at once proceed to find Hildegarde, and I will give her to you."

"Auf wiedersehen!"

"Goodbye!"

My ear detected the barest falter in her voice, and something glinted on her eyelashes. Ah, why could not the veil have remained before my eyes and let me gaze in darkness? Suddenly I was looking across the chasm of years. There was a young girl in white, a table upon which stood a pitcher. It was a garden scene, and the air was rich with perfumes. The girl's hair and eyes were brown, and there were promises of great beauty. Then, as swiftly as it came, the vision vanished.

On reaching the street I was aware that my sight had grown dim and that things at a distance were blurred. Perhaps it was the cold air.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Immediately Pembroke and I journeyed to the feudal inn. When we arrived, a mixture of rain and snow was falling. But I laughed at that. What if I were drenched to the skin with chill rain and snow, my heart was warm, warmer than it had been in many a day. Woman is infallible when she reads the heart of another. Phyllis said that Gretchen loved me. It only remained for me to find her.

"Where is the innkeeper?" I asked, my heart sinking.

"He is not here," was the answer. "Is her highness the Princess Hildegarde?"

"Her highness?" he cried in astonishment. "She has never been here. This is an inn. The castle is in the village."

"How long have you been here?" asked Pembroke.

"Two weeks, your highness." Doubtless he thought us to be high personages to be inquiring for the princess.

"Is Stalberg here?" I asked.

"He is visiting relatives in Coburg," was the answer.

"Do you know where her highness is?"

"No." It occurred to me that his voice had taken on sullen tones.

"When will the innkeeper be back?" The fellow shrugged his shoulders.

"I cannot say, your highness. The inn is not open for guests till March."

"Jack," said Pembroke in English, "it is evident that this fellow has been instructed to be close lipped. Let us return to the village. The castle is left." He threw some coins to the servant, and they rattled along the porch. "Come." And we wheeled and trotted away.

I cannot tell how great was my disappointment, nor what I did or said. The ride back to the village was a dreary affair so far as conversation went. At the castle we found not a soul.

"Where is the innkeeper?" I asked, my heart sinking.

"It is as I expected," said Pembroke. "Remember that her highness is accustomed to luxury and that it is not likely for her to spend her winter in such a deserted place. You're a newspaper man. You ought to be full of resources. Why don't you telegraph to all the news agencies and make inquiries? She is a personage, and it will not be difficult to find her if you go at it the right way."

I followed his advice, and the first return brought me news. Gretchen was at present in Vienna. So we journeyed to Vienna futilely. Then commenced a dogged, persistent search. I dragged my cousin hither and thither about the kingdom, from village to village, from town to town, till his life became a burden to him and his patience threadbare. At Hohenphalia, the capital, we were treated coldly. We were not known. They were preparing the palace for the coronation of her serene highness the Princess Elizabeth. The Princess Hildegarde might be in Brussels.

At Brussels her highness was in Munich, at Munich she was in Heidelberg, and so on and so on. It was true, courting. The vaguest rumor brought me to the railway, Pembroke, lay and grumbling, always at my side. At last I wrote to Phyllis. It was one hope left. Her reply was to tell me that she, too, did not know her sister was, that she was becoming a puzzle to her and concluded with advice to wait till the coronation, Gretchen would put in an appearance, weeks multiplied and became winter passed, the snows fell from mountains, the floods rose and red, summer was at hand with white blossoms and green grasses. She was blooming into June. Still Gretchen remained in obscurity.

"I shall be a physical wreck," said Pembroke when we finally returned to B—. "If you keep this up much longer."

"Look at me!" was my gloomy rejoinder.

"Well, you have that interesting palor," he admitted, "which women ascribe to lovers."

Thrusting my elbows on the table, I buried my chin in my hands and stared. After awhile I said, "I do not believe she wants to be found."

"That has been my idea this long while," he replied, "only I did not wish to make you more despondent than you were."

One morning when I had grown out of my gloom I said to Pembroke, "Phyllis, I shall go with you to India."

"Here is a letter for you," he replied. "It may change your plans."

My mail since leaving the journalistic field had become so small that to receive a letter was an event. Inside of the envelope I discovered only six words, but they meant all the world to me. "She is here at the inn." At was unsigned. I waved the slip of paper before Pembroke's eyes.

"She is found!" I cried.

"Then go in search of her," he said. "And you will go with me?"

"Not if I prefer to go to the palace. By the way, here is an article in the Zeitung on the coming coronation of her serene highness the Princess Elizabeth of Hohenphalia. I'm afraid that I shall be present to witness the event." He thrust the paper into my hands and approached the window, out of which he looked and stared at the garden flowers below. "When I asked her why it could not be, she answered that she had no love to give in return for mine."

"She may change her mind," I said, putting a hand on his. "Most women do."

"But there are exceptions," he replied, regarding me with earnest eyes as if to read what was going on behind mine. "There are some women who never change. Her highness is one of these. As I remarked before, she has no love to give me. It is gone, and as it is gone without reward she will make no attempt to recall it to give to another. I love her all the more for that. The game fate plays with our hearts is a cruel one. For one affluently there are ten undisciplined lives. Her highness loves a good man."

My hand fell from his, and I went over to the window. This was the first intimation he had given to me that he knew the secret, the secret which had made me so sad, the secret which I tried not to believe.

"You are determined to go to India?" I said without turning my head. I could find no other words.

"Yes. It will be the best thing in the world."

"You will promise to write?"

"Whenever I strike the post. Marry and be happy. It is the lot of the few."

That night he started for Bombay by the way of England, and the next morning I put out for the feudal inn.

CHAPTER XXV.

I was passing along the highway, a pipe between my teeth. It was the beginning of twilight, the trying hour of all our reveries, when the old days come back with a perfume as sweet and vague as that which hovers over a jar of spiced rose leaves. I was thinking of the year which was gone; how I first came to the inn; of the hour when I first held her in my arms and kissed her and vowed my love to her; of the parting, when she of her own will had thrown her arms about my neck and confessed.

The inn loomed up against the sky, gray and lonely. Behind me, far away down the river, I could catch occasional glimpses of the humps of the village. Presently there came a faint yellow glow in the east, and I knew that Diana was approaching.

She tossed loose her locks upon the night and through the dim wood Dian threads her way.

A wild sweetness filled the air. I was quite half a mile from the inn, yet I could smell the odor of her roses—Gretchen's roses. It was a long and weary year which had intervened. And now she was there, only a short way from my arms. But she did not know that I was coming. A million diamonds sprang into the air whenever I struck the lush grasses with my cane. Everywhere I breathed the perfume of her roses. They seemed to hide along the hedges, to lurk among the bushes, red roses and white. On the hill across the valley I saw the little cemetery with its white stones. I arrested my steps and took off my hat. The dust of Hilaria lay there. I stood motionless for some time. I had loved the man as it is possible for one man to love another. I had not thought of him much of late, but in this life we cannot always stand by the grave of those who have gone before. He had loved Gretchen with a love perhaps less selfish than mine, for he had sacrificed his life uselessly for her that she might—be mine! Mine! I thought.

The lights of the inn cheered me and lifted the gloom. Should I enter by stealth or boldly? I chose the second method. Gretchen and the innkeeper were in the old hall. I entered and threw my traps into a corner. As they turned and saw me consternation was written on their faces.

"I have found you at last," I said, holding out a hand to each of them. The innkeeper thrust his hands behind his back and snarled leisurely toward the window. Gretchen showed signs of embarrassment, and her eyes were studiously fixed on the cracks which yawned here and there in the floor. My hands were unnoticed.

"You have been looking for us?" she asked in even tones. "Why have you?"

Vaguely I gazed at her, at the innkeeper, then at my traps in the corner. It was apparent that I was an intruder. I struck my forehead in anger and despair. Triple fool that I was! I was nothing to her. She had told me so, and I had not believed.

"Yes; why?" asked the innkeeper, turning around.

"I believe," said I, my voice trembling, "that I am an unwelcome guest. Is it not so?"

"Oh, as for that," said the innkeeper, observing Gretchen, "this is a public inn on the highway. All wayfarers are of necessity welcome."

"Go, then, and prepare me a supper," said I. "I am indeed hungry, having journeyed far." I wanted him out of the room.

The innkeeper, a puzzling smile on his lips, passed out.

"Gretchen," I burst forth, "in heaven's name what does this mean? I have hunted for you day after day, week after week, month after month. I have traveled the four ends of the continent. I have lived—oh, I do not know how I have lived! And when I do find you it is for this! My voice broke, and I was positively on the verge of tears.

"And was all this for her?" asked Gretchen coldly.

"To her? I do not understand."

"I mean, was all this for my sister?"

"Gretchen," a light piercing the darkness, "has she not written to you?"

"A long time ago. She wanted to see me on an important matter, but I could not change my plans at the time. I shall see her at the palace next week. Ought you not to be with her instead of here?"

"Why should I be with her?"

Gretchen laughed, but the key was false.

"Are you not going to marry her? Surely it is easy after the king has given his permission. Have you already fallen out of love with her after all your efforts to make her a princess? Truly man is as unstable as sand and water. Ah, but you fooled us all to the top of your bent. You knew from the first that she was a princess, but you could not find the proofs. Hermann and I were the means to the end. But who shall blame you? Not I. I am very grateful to you for having given to me a sister. And if you fooled me I returned measure for measure. It is game and quit. Time hangs heavy on my hands, and the victory, however short, was amusing."

"I never loved her!" I cried. Where were the words I needed?

"So much the worse for you," disdainfully. "But here comes Hermann to announce your supper."

"I shall not break the bread of inhospitality," said I in the bitterness of my despair. I gathered up my traps and then I let them tumble back. The needed words came with a rush to my lips. I went close to her. "Why did you humiliate yourself in begging my life of the prince? Why if my life was nothing to you? Answer, that man if I was worthless to you? Why?"

Her cheeks grew red, then white. Her lips formed words which she could not speak.

"Herr Winthrop's supper is ready," announced the innkeeper.

"Go and eat it!" I said childishly. "Your appetite is gone then?" Imperceptibly.

"Yes, and get you gone with it!" The innkeeper surveyed for a space. "Will you kindly tell me from whom you received the information that her highness was at the inn?"

I produced the unsigned letter. He read it carefully, while Gretchen looked on nervously.

"Ach," said the innkeeper, "that Stalberg! He shall be dismissed." Unhappily for him that individual was just passing along the corridor. The innkeeper signaled him to approach.

"How dared you?" began the innkeeper, thrusting the letter under Stalberg's nose.

"Dare? I? Here," said the big fellow, "I do not understand. What is it you accuse me of?"

"This!" cried the innkeeper. "You have written to Herr Winthrop and told him that her highness was at the inn. And you were expressly forbidden to do so."

Stalberg looked around blankly. "I swear to heaven, here!"

"Do not prevaricate," the innkeeper interrupted. "You know that you wrote this."

"Stalberg," I cried excitedly, "tell me why you wrote this note to me and I'll see that you are taken care of the rest of your days."

"I forbid him!" commanded Gretchen in alarm.

"As God hears me, here," said Stalberg stoutly. "I wrote not a line to you or to any one."

"Oh!" cried the innkeeper, stamping. "And you deny that you have written here that you saw her highness in the garden three nights ago?"

Gretchen was shaking her head so violently for some reason. I myself was filled with wonder, knowing well enough that nothing about a garden had been written in the note I had received.

"Do you dare deny?" went on the implacable old man, "that you have written here that you saw her highness in the garden and that she was weeping and murmuring this man's name?"

"Oh!" cried Gretchen, gazing wildly at the door.

The innkeeper suddenly took the bewildered giant by the shoulders and pushed him from the room, following him swiftly, and the door closed noisily behind them.

My heart was in flames. I understood all now, though I dare say Gretchen didn't. All at once her head fell on the back of the chair from which she had but lately risen. She was weeping silently and deeply. I did not move, but stood watching her, drinking in with exultation the loveliness of a woman in tears. She was mine, mine, mine! The innkeeper had not really known her heart till the night in the garden to which he so adroitly referred. Then he had made up his mind that things were not as they should be and had sent me that anonymous note. Mine at last, I thought. Somehow for the first time in my life I felt what is called masterful—that is to say, not all heaven and earth should take her away from me now. Softly I passed over to her side and knelt at her feet. I lifted the hem of her gown and pressed it to my lips.

"My princess," I murmured, "all mine." I kissed her naveling hand. Then I rose and put my arms around her. She trembled, but made no effort to withdraw. "I swear to you, Gretchen, that I will never leave you again, not if the king should send an army against me, which he will never do, since he has commanded that I marry you. Beware! It is a dangerous thing to flile with a king's will. And then, even if the king should change his mind I should not. You are mine. I should like to know if I haven't won you! Oh, they do well to call you Princess Caprice! Oh, Gretchen," failing back to humble tones, "what a weary year has been wasted! You know that I love you. You have never really doubted it. You know that you have not. Had you gone to your sister when she wrote to you she would have told you that it was for you alone that "I love you better than all the world." I made her a princess, that all my efforts were to make you free to wed. Gretchen, you will not send me away this time, will you? You will be kind and bid me to stay?"

"She loves you," whispered Gretchen. This admitted no reply. I simply pressed my lips to her hair. The sobs were growing audibly less.

"I read it in her eyes," persisted Gretchen.

"Gretchen, answer me. Do you love me?"

"Yes."

I placed my hands against her temples and turned her head around so that those blue green eyes, humid and tearful, looked into mine.

"Oh, I cannot deny it. If I wrong her in accepting your love, it is because I cannot help it. I love you better than all the world. So well do I love you that—her head sank on my heart, and her sobs began afresh.

"That what, Gretchen?" I asked.

"Nothing." By and by she said: "Keep faith with me, and I promise to love as few women can."

Then I kissed her lips. "Gretchen?"

"What is it?"

"I have an idea that we shall be very happy. Now let us go and make terms of peace with the innkeeper."

We found him alone in the barroom. "Gretchen," said I, "read this note."

As her eyes ran over those six words she blushed.

"Hermann," she said, "you have betrayed me."

"And when will your highness order me out to be shot?" asked he, smiling.

"At sunrise. But I shall bludgefold the soldiers and take the charges from their guns. I forgive you."

"Now, Hermann," said I, "all me up a stein." I held it high above my head. "A health! Long live the king! Long live her serene highness the Princess!"

"Elizabeth," said Gretchen gently. "I fear she has lost something which is never to be found again."

I drained the stein, and as I set it down I thought, Phyllis is so far away and Gretchen is so near!

"Let us go into the garden," said I. For a long time we wandered here and there, saying nothing. I was thinking that I had found a castle at last which neither tides nor winds nor sudden awakenings could tumble down.

"Gretchen, you must never take up the sword again."

"Only in my lord's defense." From the movement of her arm, which clung to mine, I knew that she was laughing.

The moon had risen, the round and mellow moon of summer. The silver mists of night wavered and sailed through the aisles of the forests, and from the silver came the cool, fresh perfume of the river rush.

"And so you really love me?" I asked.

"I do."

"Why do you love me?"

"Because," said Gretchen.

Are Shop Signs Needed?

(Ottawa Free Press.)

It is certainly time overhanging signs were things of the past in a city of the proportions and pretensions of Ottawa. Certainly applications for new ones should not be considered. It is strange that tradesmen stick to the fossilized old system which is merely a survival of the customs of medieval times, when "at the sign of" this, that or the other was the tradesman's badge. To-day, the well-dressed window and the attractive advertisement in the daily press are the only methods whereby the merchants can attract custom. People do not go staring when they start on a shopping expedition. The advertisement has told them just what they want and exactly where they are going. And the overhanging signs are detrimental to the appearance of a street while not benefiting their owners. Imagine the fine appearance of Bridge-st. would present from the sparks if the signs were gone. How useless as a "draw" for business establishments these boards are was demonstrated not long ago in Montreal when they were abolished by the Council. The merchants found that their absence made not the slightest difference to the average run of business.

ACCEPTED CHALLENGE

National Review Gives the Buller "Spatch-Cocked" Despatch.

NOW ASKS FOR THE ORIGINAL

That Published, Which is Claimed to Be the Essential Terms of the Despatch, Was Obtained From a Civilian—Information as to the Lack of Co-operation Between the Generals.

London, Oct. 31.—The National Review gives the essential terms of the "Spatch-cocked" despatch of Sir Redvers Buller to General Sir George White, when in command of the beleaguered British garrison at Ladysmith. According to this authority the message ran as follows: "I have been repulsed. You will burn your fingers and destroy all your ammunition. You will then make the best terms you can with the Boers after I have fortified myself on the Tugela."

General Buller, in the speech which led to his dismissal from the command of the first army corps challenged The National Review to publish the completed despatch and to explain how it was obtained, declaring that he would then publish a certified copy of the original and allow the public to judge the matter.

The editor of The National Review now explains that he got the despatch from a civilian who was in Ladysmith at the time and who said there was nothing secret about it. He asserts also that he understands that both General Buller and General White have officially asked permission to publish the authorized version, and he cannot conceive why permission has been withheld.

The same informant, giving an alleged explanation of the fact that there was no co-operation between General Buller and General White during the battle of Colenso, says General White was informed that the attack was fixed for Dec. 17, but General Buller commenced the attack Dec. 15, to the dismay of General White, who had not completed his preparations.

Imaginary and Misleading. London, Oct. 31.—The Morning Leader characterizes The National Review's version of General Buller's despatch to Sir George White as "imaginary and misleading."

Col. Fortesque, the despatch adds, had a day-long running fight with Muller's Boer command on October 27, northwards of Balmoral. He killed 4 Boers and captured 54 prisoners, 36 wagons and much stock.

MR. ROSS AT OTTAWA

Plans for the Development of Ontario Discussed.

WORK TO BE DONE IN BRITAIN

The Premier's Words Have Ring of Sincerity in Them for the Advancement of This Province—How He Would Help His Government's Constituency—New Quarters for Imp. Institute Exhibits.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—Hon. Geo. W. Ross spent considerable time yesterday in discussing with members of the Dominion Government certain matters that will be of practical advantage to Ontario, and in which the authorities here will doubtless willingly co-operate. The Ontario Premier had a long interview with the Minister of the Interior in regard to adopting an immigration policy that would attract more agricultural laborers to Canada. The whole question was thoroughly discussed, and Mr. Ross is well satisfied with Mr. Sifton's desire to deal with it in a broad and comprehensive spirit. The class of immigrants wanted, of course, are those who are particularly disposed to engage in agriculture, whether they be from Great Britain, the United States, Germany or Scandinavia. Naturally it is Mr. Ross's desire that New Ontario shall get the benefit of any movement of this kind, as well as old Ontario. The Premier hopes to ascertain during the coming winter the extent of the demand for agricultural labor in Ontario.

Mr. Ross also met Hon. Sydney Fisher and discussed with him the matter of the permanent exhibition at the Imperial Institute in London, to which Ontario contributes. The Premier also urged upon the Minister of Agriculture the importance to Ontario, as well as to the whole of Canada, of presenting to the people of Great Britain in as striking a manner as possible, the variety and extent of the natural resources of Ontario, and particularly its manufactures and raw materials. This could only be satisfactorily accomplished, Mr. Ross thought, by finding quarters more convenient to the business men of London. Mr. Fisher informed Mr. Ross that he was already making some move in that direction, which would improve the existing condition of things. Mr. Ross laid special emphasis upon the importance of having the food products of Ontario, and particularly its fruits, exhibited in a way that would attract more fully the attention of the people of Great Britain.

Settlement of New Ontario.

In a newspaper interview Mr. Ross dwelt at some length upon the Ontario Government's desire to settle New Ontario and to secure Mr. Sifton's co-operation in so doing. "We have," said he, "in this region at least twelve million acres of good agricultural land, capable of supporting an immense population. It is a part of the Province which will one day add no small proportion to Canada's natural wealth. Our Government surveying parties have been over it, and we are satisfied as to its adaptability to farming. All it needs is settlers, and these it will be our endeavor to provide. Ontario contributes no small share to the large annual expenditure on immigration, and so we should have no hesitation in looking for our proportion of the returns. There is no reason under the sun why Ontario's sons should be moving to the prairies when they can avail themselves of splendid opportunities for successful farming in the northwestern portion of their own Province. That is the way the case presents itself to my mind. We have already spent some money in making known the splendid resources of this country, and I think a few years will show that the outlay has been made to good advantage. At any rate, we are bound to lay the matter fairly before the public, with the full assurance that our efforts are not to prove fruitless. Means of communication are being opened up through New Ontario, and before long there will be in operation a branch line of the Canadian Pacific Railway up to Lac Seul. Here is a district capable of yielding a handsome return to those who want to enter it. The railway company has given its promise that it will shortly provide transportation facilities. Lac Seul is a grand body of water that lies on the old route of communication with James Bay by way of the Albany River. We will spend some money on locks, and should with a very moderate outlay be able to provide a thorough waterway down to the main line of travel east and west. The waterway is there to our hands already. It has been traveled by the Indians for centuries on their way in and out from the great northern sea, and would need but little attention here and there to give settlement what they need—cheap transportation for their grain and other products to the markets of the world. It is a great problem we are facing in the development of this rich quarter of Canada. Its tilling will mean wonderful things for the whole Dominion, and particularly for the Ottawa Valley, through which it must have access to the business centres of the great world beyond. The Ontario Government fully realizes the importance of the question we have in hand. It is something worthy of our people's most careful thought. How Ontario shall make the most of the rich endowments that have been dealt to us by nature runs such is the hand. My chief concern is for the Province in which we live. We cannot spare to Manitoba and the Territories the best of our hardy sons. We need them to make the most of our home lands. We have in New Ontario the most fertile soil, well watered, and in parts wooded. Let us make these facts known."

Ottawa Mines Act.

The Conservative Press have represented Mr. Ross as coming to to discuss the Ontario Mines Act with the Minister of Justice. This is altogether fallacious. It was long ago settled between the Dominion and Ontario Governments that the act in question should form the subject of a conference to the Supreme Court, and there is no need for further discussion in regard to it. During the day Mr. Ross visited the Normal School, and was pleased to observe many evidences of its progress and popularity. In the morning he will go to Montreal, and will leave that city by the evening train for Toronto.

FROM LABOR TO REST.

Death of Monsignor Laurent, V. G., Rector of St. Mary's Church, Lindsay.

CLOSE OF A BUSY, USEFUL AND HOLY LIFE.

The People of St. Mary's Parish Bowed in Grief—All Classes of the Community Deplore the Sad Event—Over 2500 People Witnessed the Solemn Requiem Mass—Funeral Sermon Preached by Bishop McEvay, London—Funeral Took Place on Tuesday to the Parish Cemetery—A Large Concourse of People—In Memoriam.

For the second time within twenty years the Roman Catholics of this community are called upon to mourn the loss by death of a devoted and zealous pastor and friend—first the demise, on Nov. 12th, 1882, of that good priest, Father Stafford, and now that of Monsignor P. D. Laurent, whose hold on the affections of his people was not less sure than that of the great apostle of temperance, who labored for many years in our midst, and whose influence for good was felt throughout the whole province.

For some years Monsignor Laurent had been troubled with a slight affection of the throat caused by exposure long ago in the northern mission fields, but apart from that his health had always been of the rugged sort, and when it became known about two weeks ago that he was confined to his room owing to an attack of bronchitis the news caused no uneasiness. But the affection failed to yield to the ordinary remedies first applied, and Drs. Poole and Blanchard were called in. They found his breathing greatly restricted—so much so that he could only find relief at times by sitting in an easy chair in an upright position. At that skill could suggest was done in the hope of relieving the surcharged tubes and passages, and at first with some show of success, but the improvement in his condition did not last. It was only at times that his sufferings were acute, and when enjoying any measure of relief he joked and chatted with his visitors and those about him, and was particularly pleased to welcome Father Phelan, his late curate, who came up from Peterboro on learning of the illness of his superior. On Wednesday Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, and Bishop McEvay, of London, visited the patient, but had to leave by the evening trains.

Thursday morning, Oct. 31st, Mgr. Laurent appeared to breathe with great difficulty, but his pulse was strong and he retained full command of his faculties, speaking to Father Phelan and others several times. Soon after 11 o'clock he enquired: "What time is it?" and then became unconscious. His soul taking its flight a few minutes later while the prayers for the dying were being recited by those about him. So passed away one whose constant thought was for the uplifting of those in his charge, and whose memory will ever be treasured in the hearts of his now sorrowful people. May his soul rest in peace.

The deceased hierarch will be remembered with affection and regret by the Bishop and Clergy of this Diocese, who have best known his scholarly attainments, his piety and zeal for the advancement and cause of religion, and his cheering and unaffected geniality of soul, which made personal association so delightful, and made him beloved by all who came within the circle of his personal influence. Kindly memories of him will also dwell with the worshippers at St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro, who have shared his ministrations of the sacred offices and listened to the simple and earnest eloquence of his discourses. He will be regretted throughout the whole Church, and especially in the Diocese of Peterboro, in which he has labored every since it was erected. His scholarship, zeal and piety have long made him a marked man, on whose shoulders, had he lived, it would have been no surprise to see the purple of the episcopal vestments fall.

Sketch of a Busy Life.

MONSIGNOR PETER DOMINIE LAURENT, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Peterboro, Ont., Rector of St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, was born on April 16th, 1835, in New Nantes, Brittany, France. He studied classics in the clerical colleges of the Diocese of Nantes, and in 1854 took the degree of B. A. from this University of France. In the old historic city of Rennes. He also took a two years' course in philosophy and science under the Sulpicians in the Seminary of Philosophy at Nantes.

In January, 1857, at the age of 20, Father Laurent came to Canada and was chosen for the Upper Canadian missions by Right Rev. Dr. DeCharbonnel, then Bishop of Toronto, and spent one year and a half at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, Md., to study English and theology. He was ordained in St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, by the Bishop of Toronto in 1858, after which he was for about one year assistant to Father J. B. Proulx, Oshawa, when he was sent to Duffin's Creek to establish a mission. In 1861 he went to Sandwich, Ont., and after a four months' stay at Maldenhead Cross, Essex Co., was sent to start a new mission, including the towns of Mitchell and parts of the township of Logan and Ellis, with the principal church at Kincora. From there he went to Amherstburg in 1863, where he remained twelve years. He renovated the church, built a school for boys, and a convent for girls. Assumption College at Sandwich was also established by him and is now one of the leading Catholic educational institutions of Western Ontario. In 1875 Father Laurent followed the late Right Rev. J. F. Jamot, D.D., Vicar-Apostolic of Northern Canada, to the missions of Algoma, with residence on the Canadian side of Sault Ste. Marie, where he was a priest's house and later a neat church. His field here was a very extensive and trying one, there were no railways in those days, and when visiting the Indians scattered about that huge territory he travelled on snow-shoes which he carried in a winter trip entailed a tramp of 1800 miles on snow-shoes, sleeping in the snow wherever night overtook him when visiting the scattered emplacements of the Indians along the bleak shores of Lake Superior and the Georgian Bay. He ministered the Indian dialects and was beloved by his dusky flock, thereby being enabled to accomplish much good.

In October, 1882, his health having been impaired by the hardships and exposure, Father Laurent was transferred to Bracebridge. In February, 1884, His Lordship Bishop Jamot placed him in charge of the parish of St. Mary's, Lindsay, and soon after honored him by making him Vicar-General of the Diocese, a position for which his talents as administrator and his wide experience made him in every way worthy. Two months after his arrival in Lindsay the destruction of Loretto Convent by fire called forth his abundant energies, with the result that the building was restored the same year. Thus was the beginning of a series of improvements that has placed the church property and finances of St. Mary's parish in a position second to no other rural parish in the province of Ontario.

It may be added that during the vacancy of the See of Peterboro from May, 1886, when Bishop Jamot died, to May 1887, Vicar-General Laurent acted as Administrator of the Diocese with marked ability and acceptance. In 1896 His Holiness Pope Leo XIII., in recognition of his distinguished services to the Church, elevated him to the dignity of Appellate to His Holiness.

THE BODY TAKEN TO ST. MARY'S CHURCH MONDAY AFTERNOON.

Twelve of the Leading Parishioners Acted as Pallbearers—A Mournful Procession.

(From Monday's Daily Post.)

The most painful duty of removing the mortal remains of the late Mgr. Laurent from the Presbytery to St. Mary's church was performed soon after three o'clock this afternoon, and was witnessed by a very large concourse of people, many of whom found it impossible to keep back their tears when they saw the body of the late Mgr. Laurent being borne past them to the church, where it will repose until the funeral tomorrow, and where the members of the congregation and other friends may view for the last time the kindly features of one who aimed not at being proud or pretentious, but who ever remembered that the poor and lowly are placed in God's sight.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, arrived in town this morning to supervise the arrangements for the funeral and the receding of the prelates and clergy from outside points, many of whom will arrive this evening to attend the funeral.

The funeral service will be delivered by His Lordship Bishop McEvay, of London, who for years had enjoyed the close friendship of St. Mary's pastor.

The order of the funeral cortege will be as follows: Bishops, Bishops and Visiting Clergy, C.M.B.A. and B.A. members, and other men of the congregation on foot; members of Emily C.M.B.A. and Boys of Lindsay; and Children on foot; Parishioners and Citizens in vehicles and on foot.

The pall-bearers were Senator Geo. McHugh, John Kennedy, W. P. O'Brien, R. K. Lyle, Jas. Roach, T. Collins, D. Fitzpatrick, A. Pringle, P. Hurley, T. Brady, J. Flurey, D. O'Connor.

WORDS OF SYMPATHY.

At 10 o'clock St. Mary's yesterday morning Rev. Father Phelan referred with deep feeling to the death of Mgr. Laurent, and expressed his sympathy with the congregation in their great loss. But they should not grieve unduly—his devoted pastor's work was finished and God had called him hence. His memory would ever be cherished by his people, for whom he had labored so faithfully, and his works would stand as monuments of his zeal and diligence in God's cause. He hoped all would try to emulate his good pastor in their work, and ever be guided by the wise words of counsel and admonition they had heard spoken by their pastor conform with the holy altar. We must accept of God's will in all things and must accept the loss of loss of an ever loyal guide, counsellor, friend and comforter with resignation, and pray for his eternal rest. His work has been gloriously done, and his memory a monument to his people, and our faith teaches us to hope that he is now enjoying the delights promised by God to those who do His will.

In the course of his remarks last evening at Cambridge St. Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Manning spoke in feeling terms of the late Monsignor Laurent. He was a man, he said, highly respected by all, and greatly devoted to his work. By his death our Catholic fellow-citizens had lost a faithful pastor and a kind shepherd and he was sure he only expressed the feelings of the entire congregation in extending their sincere and deepest sympathy to the congregation of St. Mary's in their great bereavement. In his opening invocation Mr. Manning prayed that the Monsignor's successor might be a man who will as worthily fill the high office as did the deceased prelate.

At St. Andrew's church last evening the minister, Rev. J. W. Macmillan, in his opening supplication to the heavenly Throne made a feeling reference to the great loss sustained by St. Mary's congregation in the death of their highly respected pastor, Mgr. Laurent, and to the good work accomplished by the deceased prelate. He prayed also that the new spiritual head of the congregation may be as wise, discreet and energetic in every good cause as his predecessor.

LAID AT REST IN THE TOMB

IMPRESSIVE AND SOLEMN OBSEQUIES OF THE LATE MGR. LAURENT.

Over 40 Prelates and Priests in Attendance—Upwards of 8000 Citizens and Parishioners at the Cemetery.

(From Wednesday's Daily Post.)

Not since the obsequies of the lamented Father Stafford has such a strikingly solemn and impressive religious function been witnessed in Lindsay as was witnessed yesterday, when prelates and people assembled—with heavy hearts—around the catafalque in St. Mary's church on which reposed the black-draped casket containing all that was mortal of one beloved by many and esteemed and respected by all—Monsignor Laurent, Rector of St. Mary's, Lindsay, for a period of over seventeen years. On all sides evidences of grief were visible; strong men wiped away the tears that blurred their sight, and were not ashamed, and women and children wept unreservedly.

The interior of the sacred edifice was appropriately and tastefully draped, the altar being done in purple to unify the funeral with the communion of the Catholics church. The day being somewhat dark and dreary, as if in sympathy with the sad occasion, it was found necessary to have the electric lights turned on, and this heightened the impressiveness of the scene.

At 10 o'clock the hour set for the commencement of the solemn High Requiem Mass—the church was crowded to the doors, the common vestry was filled, and hundreds were unable to gain admittance. Seats had been reserved for Protestant friends, and very many of the leading members of the several congregations were present, as well as the following ministers: Rev. J. W. Macmillan, Presbyterian; Rev. L. S. Hughes, Baptist; Rev. T. Manning, B.A., Rev. E. Roberts, supernumerary, Rev. A. J. H. Strike, Methodist, Mayor Ingle and Aldermen Jackson, Hors, Robson and O'Reilly, with C. K. Krowson, representing the Town Council, Victoria County Council was represented by Warden Graham, Mr. R. Bryans, and Mr. J. R. McNeill, Clerk and Treasurer.

Among the leading citizens present were Judge Dean, Judge Harding, Sheriff McLaughlin, Messrs. J. D. Lyle, T. Stewart, D. R. Anderson, E. Bowes, J. B. Knowlson, C. Deacon, A. Campbell, F. W. Sutcliffe, J. McSwain, J. C. Barstone, E. A. Hardy, and many others whose names cannot be recalled.

Prelates and Clergy Present.

The following bishops and clergy were present from the various dioceses. Many who were prevented from attending by important engagements or duties forwarded letters of regret and condolence: His Grace Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston; Bishop O'Connor, Peterboro; Bishop McEvay, London; Monsignor Farrelly, Belleville; Vicar-General McEann, (representing the Archbishop of Toronto); Rev. J. L. Chaire, (representing the Archbishop of Montreal); Rev. F. Mahon, (representing the Bishop of Hamilton); Visiting Clergy—Vicar-Archdeacon Casey, Peterboro; Fr. Murray, Cobourg; Fr. Lynch, Port Hope; Fr. Collins, Brantford; Fr. Pringle, Smith St. Mary; Fr. Labourene, Peterboro; Fr. Aboulin, Toronto; Dr. O'Leary, Ottawa; Fr. Kennedy, Toronto; Fr. McGuire, Hastings; Fr. M. Spratt, Eldon; Fr. T. Spratt, Wolf Island; Dr. O'Brien, Fr. O'Sullivan, Peterboro; Fr. Conway, Norwood; Fr. McKee, Toronto; Fr. McGuire, Wood R. Fr. Scallan, North Bay; Fr. Tooley, Peterboro; Fr. McCloskey, Campbellford; Fr. Kelly, Trout Creek; Fr. Bretherton, Downeyville; Fr. Jeffcott, Stayner; Fr. O'Connell, Burnley; Fr. DuMouch, Toronto; Fr. Scanlon, Grafton; Fr. McCall, Ennismore; Fr. Coty, Hamilton; Fr. Aylward, Leiston; Fr. O'Malley, Ottawa; Fr. Cline, Brock; Frs. Phelan and O'Sullivan, Peterboro; Frs. Nolan, Thurme, Toronto.

The Requiem Mass.

The grand requiem high mass offered for the repose of the soul of the departed pastor was celebrated with all the wealth of ceremonial prescribed by the Roman Catholic ritual for such occasions, and impressive even to those not familiar with Catholic tenets respecting the dead.

The celebrant of the Mass was Rt. Rev. A. O'Connor, D.D., Assistant Bishop, Vicar-General McEann; Deacon, Rev. Fr. Spratt; Sub-Deacon, Rev. A. B. Danochel; Masters of Ceremonies, Frs. J. O'Sullivan and Dr. O'Brien. Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, assisted by Vicar-Archdeacon Casey, Bishop McEvay, of London, assisted by Rev. H. Coty. The mass of the dead was well chanted by the choir of the church. Fr. Rhoder, organist of St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, presided at the organ. At the Offertory Fr. Phelan rendered a beautiful "O Salutaris" with pleasing effect.

The Funeral Sermon.

Bishop McEvay delivered the funeral sermon, and his discourse was eloquent, earnest and practical. Allusion was made to the virtues of the deceased, but there was no undue eulogy. The following is a synopsis of his remarks:

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted"—St. Matthew, 5th chap., 5th verse. Your Grace, Right Rev. Bishops, Rev. Clergy and dear Brethren, on a sad occasion like the present, we are brought face to face with the fact that there is a three-fold Church of Christ; the church militant, whose members are engaged in constant strife and warfare with evil powers and influences for the supremacy of that which is good; the church suffering, whose members have died in grace, but are expiating certain of desired is the honor of being the chosen ambassador of the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords?

Some people imagine a young man selects a vocation as one does a profession, and that he chooses his profession as he chooses his career, and that God selects his priests, as is told us in diverse passages in the holy scriptures. Even our blessed Lord himself waited for the call from the Father to assume the dignity of the priesthood, and He selected others in good time to continue His work for ever. "As the Father sent me, I also send you." Oh, friends, rarely is it a great and a high office to be chosen of God and to be given power over heaven and hell.

"Whoso sins thou shalt forgive will be forgiven; whoso thou shalt retain, will be retained." In the service of God, and for the honor of His priesthood, it is well known that Catholic priests the world over are ever ready to offer up their lives to God. This was the call extended to young Father Domine Laurent. He was told that he would have to leave his home and loved parents, go to a new land, learn a new language and become a missionary, yet he flinched not but mastered every difficulty, supported by the grace of God, he faced the land and the institutions. From the very outset he enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the priests and bishops with whom he labored. He believed that the bishops were divinely appointed to govern God's church, and his obedience to the call of duty was always prompt and unflinching. It mattered not to him where he was sent—whether to a rich parish, to a struggling mission, or to the wilds of Algoma, his cry was "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" Whether in the midst of Irish, English, German or French communities, or with the untutored Indians, his advice was always faithful, his work always thorough, because he had the true heart of a priest of the Catholic church, whose sole aim is to serve God in the position in which he has been placed, and to continue so to until he is called elsewhere—whether he knows not until the summons comes.

His Lordship next referred briefly to Mgr. Laurent's great work in the parish of Lindsay, and referred particularly to his deep interest in the cause of Catholic education—his heart had always been with the little ones in the schools, because he realized that they must be trained for heaven as well as for the things of this world. You all know how he hated shame of all kinds; how he abhorred vice, and reasoned with and encouraged sinners to amend their lives; and how he unceasingly preached against intemperance and prayed for its victims. Such a man is the mission of a good priest—he advises and comforts the living, and even after death he ceases not to labor for the salvation of their immortal souls. No wonder you people of St. Mary's, gathered in sorrowful concourse to pay the last tokens of respect to the body of your good priest, but you can best honor his memory by remembering his good advice and spiritual admonitions, and by never failing to pray that the Eternal Light may shine upon him. May his soul rest in peace. Amen.

The Route to the Tomb.

After the solemn asperges and final prayers, at which His Grace Archbishop Gauthier officiated, the casket was carried down the main aisle to the hearse in waiting, escorted by His Grace, Bishops O'Connor and McEvay, and the reverend clergy in solemn procession. A few minutes later the funeral cortege formed and started for the cemetery. A thousand of people, in reverent attitude, lined Russell and Lindsay streets, while the long procession travelled slowly past. Following the hearse came the Right Rev. Clergy and priests, ministers of other congregations and members of the Town Council, in carriages; next the members of Lindsay and Downeyville C.M.B.A. Societies, on foot; the boys of Lindsay Separate School, led by Captain Cairn; parishioners and citizens in vehicles. Probably three thousand persons in all followed the remains to the temporary resting place in the mortuary chapel at St. Mary's cemetery, where the final prayers were recited over the body of the departed, and memory will long endure in the hearts of the Catholics of this community.

MGR. LAURENT'S GOOD WORK.

During the seventeen years Monsignor Laurent was in charge of the parish of St. Mary's he accomplished great things for its material prosperity. As mentioned above, his energies were devoted a few weeks after his translation here to the rebuilding of Loretto Convent, and it is not exaggerating to say that ever since that day he had been constantly engaged in the overseeing or planning of some work or improvement calculated to make the church property more valuable or to enhance the comfort of his parishioners. When he took charge he found a debt of $18,000 and heavy interest charges to be met. To the extinguishment of this heavy burden he applied himself with unflinching zeal, and by careful management of the ordinary revenues, and with the hearty assistance of all, he made the last payment on the debt at the end of about five years. Then he told his people that so long as he remained their pastor a mortgage never again be placed on the property of the church, and he kept his pledge.

A few years later, with money saved and in the bank, helped out by the special contributions of his people, he began the enlargement and renovation of the church, which included the erection of a new spire and the placing therein of a chime of bells. The cost of the whole was about $15,000. Next he found that the presbytery needed repairs, and the building was placed in thorough condition at a cost of about $1,100. Then followed improved systems of heating in the church, convent and presbytery, substantial new fencing, and many small, but needed improvements that called for a considerable sum in the aggregate.

His next undertaking of magnitude was the securing of a new cemetery in a more convenient locality. A plot of 23 acres along the river near the southern boundary of the city was purchased at a cost of $2,800, a car taker's dwelling and outbuildings were erected at a cost of $1,200, and a mortuary chapel at a cost of about $700. Roads and walks were constructed, and the site put out on a total of over $5,000.

His last and crowning work—due to his heart and long meditated—was the securing of a Parish Hall as a meeting place for the Catholic Society and the men of the congregation. This was opened last year at a total cost of over $4,000. The hall of good works might be made much longer if space permitted. When we say that during his pastorate of seventeen years Monsignor Laurent, in paying the debt and providing for all improvements, expended close on $85,000 without imposing any undue burthens on his flock, the fact speaks volumes for his executive ability and careful management.

Funeral Notes.

Hon. F. R. Latchford, Commissioner of Public Works, Toronto, was among the visitors from a distance.

His Grace Archbishop Gauthier, Bishops O'Connor and McEvay, and the visiting clergy and priests have returned to their dioceses and parishes. Several were called away on Tuesday evening, but the majority left by next morning's train.

Fr. Thrummell and Fr. Nolan, Redeemptorist order, who conducted the recent mission at St. Mary's, were among the visiting clergy. It is just a month since they took their departure, leaving Mgr. Laurent in excellent health and spirits, and the news of his death came as a startling proof of the uncertainty of life.

If Mgr. Laurent had not been called to the church he would have been either a prime minister or a merchant prince," remarked a prominent citizen on Tuesday. All who knew him will admit that the deceased was possessed of remarkable talents as an administrator and financier.

IN MEMORIAM.

(Right Rev. Mgr. Laurent, Died Oct. 31st, 1901.)

The tears of his people fall fast on the bier,
For the hand of the Lord is upon them;
And bowed down with sorrow, with anguish and fear,

They gaze on the home that's beyond them;

The face of their pastor has lost its life bloom,

His voice is now silent and still;

His form that they cherished is fit for the tomb—

His soul has gone out at God's will.

Yet, why should we murmur, from him that we part!

Who showed us the road we should tread;

And who bore through life's burdens a kind trusting heart

In the merciful love of his God:

Who in you and in manhood one object alone

Had sought without favor or gain,

To live for his God, and for sin to atone,

And Heaven's high glory attain.

No base thought of self ever clouded his soul,

No struggle too hard or too weary:

No work over great that would lead to the goal

Some poor wandering heart that was dreary,

Many wounded and sore has he found by the way,

And from shoulders the burden has taken;

Many groping in darkness he's brought to the day,

Who through sin, by their God were forsaken.

He has led his loved children with fatherly hand

Up the hill where science abides,

And taught them that knowledge and truth alone stand at the door.

In the mind where religion resides.

Ever urging, e'er helping them strength to acquire

In a life that was noble and great;

He accomplished in life his one grand desire,

His reason to labor and wait.

In the close of the year, in that church where he loved

Closed the door of his earthly life's day;

May the dawn of the Saints, God's chosen beloved,

Shine on him and show him the way

To the home he has carved on the great book of life,

To the foot of the throne of the King;

To that rest of the weary that follows the strife,

And where angels God's praises shall sing.

Dead bells shall toll for our father that's gone—

To join the fond friends of his youth;

But bend him the light of his virtue hath shone

With holiness, justice and truth:

Then let miseries our sorrows tell,

Spare in mercy, O Lord! our good priest;

May his purity, love and kindness to all

Be the garment he'll wear at the Feast.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 8th, '01

They Sought Tax Reductions

APPEALS ENTERED AGAINST ASSESSORS' VALUATIONS.

Many a bed for Relief but Few Were Accorded It.

A meeting of the Court of Revision was held in the Council chamber on Monday last, 25th October, at 10 o'clock, to hear appeals from the assessment of the year 1901-2. Present, Ald. O'Rourke, Chairman, Mayor Inglis, Ald. James Ross and Sinclair, and Messrs. Spier and Flury, assessors. The following were the appeals dealt with and the arguments:

Mrs. C. Walker, assessed too high. Reduced to $300.

Thos. Willicott, wrongly assessed confirmed.

T. E. Bradburn assessed too high; confirmed.

McLaughlin, McDermid & Peck, on behalf of Mrs. Graham, wrongly assessed for lot east part 17, south 1/2 of J. A. Roddy as owner from Thos. D. Staples.

Maria Callaghan, over-assessment. Assessed to comprise all of Park C lying north of lots 3 east Albert, et al., and west Dal-et., in Park C, containing one acre.

H. & Correll, on behalf of the Farmers' Mutual Ins. Co., objecting to the assessment of the company. Assessment on personally struck off.

Rev. P. D. Laurent, not liable for assessment. Adjudged for two weeks.

John Wilson, appealing N. Desautel and J. Hooper being wrongly assessed. Wilson assessed for south-west part 6, north Bond, $150, and N. Desautel for the south-east part 6, north Bond, for $300.

Robt. Griffin against assessment for dog tax. Allowed.

M. Ambrose, on behalf of the Bell Telephone Co., assessment too high, irregular, and too highly assessed. Confirmed.

J. C. Ray, against over-assessment. Lot 15 Block C to J. C. Ray for $1,000, from W. D. Hunter.

McLaughlin, McDermid & Peck, on behalf of the estate of Samuel Davidson, over-assessment. Reduced to $350.

R. J. McLaughlin, on behalf of the T.M.C.A. and J. B. Walker not being liable for assessment. Adjudged for two weeks.

Mrs. M. Weldon, on behalf of the estate of J. Weldon, over-assessment. Confirmed.

R. Smyth, on behalf of J. A. McCamus, over-assessment. Assessed to J. Bryson, tenant, and reduced to $900.

John Douglas, over-assessment. Reduced to $200.

J. Douglas, on behalf of Wm. Eakins, over-assessment. Adjudged for two weeks.

J. B. Southerton, on behalf of Midland Loan & Savings Co., and self. Tenement reduced to $800.

Margaret E. O'Keefe, on behalf of Jos O'Keefe and self, wrongly assessed. O'Keefe entered as joint owner with Margaret O'Keefe. Poll tax remitted.

Catherine Twomey, on behalf of Julia Hickey and self, wrongly and too highly assessed for lot 3, Park B, east Adelaide-st. quarter assessed to Mrs. Twomey for $500.

McSweeney & Weldon, on behalf of Ed. Thornton, against personal assessment. $100 struck off.

McSweeney & Weldon on behalf of Mrs. E. B. Weldon, over-assessment. Confirmed.

Len P. Newton, over-assessment. Poll tax assessment struck off.

J. H. Southerton, on behalf of Mr. Henry Oliver, poll tax. Allowed.

O. O. R. Robinson, against over-assessment. Received too late; not entertained.

J. H. Southerton, against wrong and over-assessment. Confirmed.

J. D. Smith, against over-assessment. Confirmed.

The Court considered the assessment of the east part of lot 4, east Lindsay-et. (a lane), and on motion the assessors were instructed to place the strip of land 10 1/2 feet wide upon this non-resident roll.

A communication from F. Robert, asking for remission of part of his taxes of 1901 owing to his property having been destroyed by fire, was considered, but was not entertained.

A communication from Jas. Hamilton, claiming double assessment on rooms occupied by Dr. Tolton, was not entertained.

The Court adjourned to meet Monday, Nov. 11th.

LOCAL BRIEVITIES

The year seems to be noted for its short crop of apples, potatoes and corn politicians.

The electrical wiring in the new hospital building is being done by a Belleville expert.

The Stratton Co. sent two small gangs of men into their north country limits on Wednesday.

"Have you paid your poll tax?" is now a live question. Chief Neilson has a long list of names.

Men employed by the Rathbun Co. have taken out over 1000 cords of lumber in the north country since last June.

The Str. Stranger is in Bobcaygeon dry-dock undergoing repairs.

Mr. Wm. Walters, of this town, is superintending the work.

Midland Free Press: Mr. Timmins, of Lindsay, having purchased a lot on Midland-ave., has started to erect a dwelling thereon.

Mr. Wm. Workman has secured the contract to carry His Majesty's mails from Lindsay to Bobcaygeon.

He started on Friday, Nov. 1st.

The new bridge over Mud Lake, at Chumpon, has been inspected by a Dominion government engineer, who pronounced it an excellent structure.

Seems to be quite a spell since the Secretary of the Fire Brigade submitted a report to Council. These little matters of detail should not be neglected.

Wages are going up in the lumber camps, labor being scarce. The W.C.T.U. missionary in Muskoka says that the lumbermen are the best men in the world to-day, the hardest workers and cleanest livers in Ontario.

The very pretty grass plot at the town hall is being destroyed by people making a short cut diagonally across it. The chairman of the Town Property committee should take steps at once to put an end to the trouble by instructing Chief Neilson to summon one or two of the offenders for trespass.

Thanks to the labors and speeches of Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, about 20 per cent. of the townships in the province have already abolished statute labor, and many others will take a vote on the question at the January election. It is to be hoped that our nearby municipalities will not be among the last to see the advantage of modern methods.

The Belleville Intelligencer, in approving of the return to the old ward system of electing the Council, says: "Is the multitude of councillors there wisdom?" And the writer might have added "and confusion also." All things considered, Lindsay citizens have no reason to regret the change. It has abolished the ward healer and led to an improvement in the calibre of the men elected.

A drover from the south passed through town on Tuesday afternoon with about two hundred head of cattle from northern ranches. When the Ops swing bridge was reached about twenty of the animals took to the river and swam across. Two of them got mired in the bogs on the south side and Mr. Armstrong's team, with a strong rope, had to be utilized in order to extricate them.

For the benefit of those young men who hang around church doors waiting for the young ladies to come out, the following is given: "Mary had a little lamb. It followed her to church, and there it stood around the door like an owl upon a perch. Why don't the lamb come in, the watchful people cried; Why, Mary told the silly thing to wait for her outside. So you, each gentle maiden, may one and all still find, poor patient one waiting near the door, if you admire that kind."

Chief of Police Neilson has completed his house, and has turned it into the treasury about $175 more than was collected last year. His work has been done with thoroughness, the wards being gone over street by street, and house by house, many instances where the ownership of a dog was denied him in the second and even a third time, with the result that he occasionally found two or perhaps three dogs on the premises. It was found necessary to name a few citizens before Police Magistrate Steers, who in every case imposed a fine of $1.00, cheering to know that many persons preferred to destroy their useless curs rather than pay the tax.

ONE KIND OF POVERTY.

Though many may be rich in pocket, if their blood is poor they are sick unhappy mortals. A pallid face and wrinkled skin result from impoverished blood. "Climax Iron Tonic Pills make new, rich blood, tone up the system and nerves. Each box contains ten days' treatment. Price 25 cents, at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. Address: The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

Guelph Public Library Board will receive $20,000 of Carnegie money. Lindsay's turn may come soon.

Mr. Bert Smyth, youngest son of Mr. R. Smyth, whose home has been at Midland for several years, is lying seriously ill at the Toronto General hospital.

Mr. Douglall Robertson, of the Scotch Line, Verulam, recently sold eight hogs to Mr. J. Bell, drover of Dundas, and realized $181.50 on the lot. The animals were monsters, being only six months old.

Mr. John Mitchell, of Lifford, Munster, shipped a carload of mixed stock to the Toronto markets to-day. He paid $5.50 per hundred live weight for hogs. Mr. Mitchell is a brother to Mr. Jas. Mitchell, of this town.

Mr. Jas. Graham, who owns the building north of the Town Clerk's office as long used as a warehouse by Mr. Arch. Campbell, has decided to improve the property, and a number of men are at work putting in a stone foundation. The building will be fitted up as a shop or dwelling.

Foreman Maurice Dineen will have charge of the Rathbun Co. camp in Ingram's swamp, a few miles west of Bobcaygeon, this winter. The camp will be started at once, and about 25 men will be employed. The cedar will be drawn to "Turgeon Lake, about three miles distant.

In view of the widespread dissatisfaction felt during the past two years by the medical profession as a result of the use of vaccine, the Provincial Secretary, Hon. J. R. Stratton, has authorized an expenditure of $100 to investigate the cause of the failure of a large proportion of the vaccine to act.

The Frost & Wood Co., makers of agricultural implements, wish to rent a suitable and commodious warehouse and showroom in our town, and as there is no such building available, we understand that Mr. J. B. Knowlson has agreed to erect one on the lot immediately south of the Town Clerk's office. The removal of the ramshackle shed thereon, and the erection of a substantial brick building in its stead, will greatly improve the appearance of that part of William-st.

A few years ago slabs and other refuse mill cuttings possessed no value; to-day they command the price of cordwood a dozen years ago. The sale of mill refuse now represents a very big item in the receipts of every mill-owner, and very often stands for the difference between profit and loss on the season's operations. It is estimated that when the season closes Mr. J. Carew will have turned out about 5,000 cords of slabs and edgings, for which the demand has been keen, and that his receipts for the same will be close on $10,000.

Mr. W. Hockin, who has been spending a few days in town with his parents, returned to Toronto to-day.

Mr. W. Robinson returned to the city last week, after spending a couple of pleasant days with friends in town.

Mr. J. Henderson, of Bobcaygeon, returned home lately from Millbrook, where he had been on business for the M. Boyd Co.

Miss L. E. Wright, of Alliston, passed through last week to Bobcaygeon, where she has accepted a nomination as governess in Mr. M. M. Boyd's family.

Miss May McLeod, of Woodville, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis in Toronto, is no recovering as rapidly as was at first expected.

Miss Barbara Campbell, Miss Emma O'Shea, Miss Aggie Powers, Miss L. Powers, Mr. W. Duggan, and Mr. John Powers, of Fenelon Falls, were in town recently.

Mr. Henry C. Hamilton, of Minto, arrived in town last week. Mr. Hamilton has been appointed organist of St. Andrew's church, to succeed Miss Rosa, who has resigned.

Mr. J. G. Borthwick, of Edinburgh, Scotland, secretary of the Caledonia Fire Insurance Co., was in town lately interviewing the local agent, Mr. T. W. Greor.

Peterboro Review, Oct. 30th: Mr. T. F. Matthews leaves to-day for Ottawa, from whence he goes to New York and sails for the Old Country on a business trip for the company.

Deafness is Curable!

Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhazone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhazone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficacy is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Foxall, of St. Thomas, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhazone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE POST WILL BOOM LINDSAY.

The advisability of making some special effort from time to time to focus our town and bring its special advantages before the public, is very apparent to those who take note of the methods employed by up-to-date towns. The publication of a special issue of the local paper is undoubtedly the most successful method employed. The great expense and extra labor of most publishers from engaging in such work often deter them from doing so. We have decided, however, to issue such a publication, and in order to make it a success in every particular we have secured the services, temporary, of Mr. Huley Chase, of New York, a gentleman who comes to us highly recommended, as a specialist in this particular line of journalism. We shall put forth every effort to make the review and trade edition a creditable issue, and one that our citizens may take pride in sending to their friends.

The special features of the number will be an interesting and very full write-up of the town's early history, the facts connected with its special advantages as an industrial, agricultural and business centre, and a biographical sketch of the leading officers, business and professional men of the town. The edition will be profusely illustrated with half-tones and make it more attractive and valuable as a souvenir. We trust the citizens will afford us every assistance that lies in their power to make the coming issue a success. We bespeak for our representative, Mr. Chase, a cordial reception.

Esther Turned Him Down.

The Orillia News-Letter refers as follows to a young lady whose charms required military protection during her stay in town, so numerous were her admirers. For the past two weeks Tom Marks and company have been holding the boards at the Victoria theatre, Kingston. Among the company, Orillia people will remember Miss Esther Evans, the attractive young blonde southerner, who was warmly received here this season. Well, this angelic young lady has been the cause of trouble in the afore-mentioned city. It seems that Mr. Lester Moffatt, son of the proprietor of the Campbell house, Naperville, and traveller for a Toronto firm, got struck on the wine miss. Now, Miss Evans did not worry herself over his infatuation, so Lester attempted suicide at the Toronto hotel by inhaling chloroform, after writing a billet-doux to the object of his affections. Physicians were summoned and the young man was finally restored to consciousness.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With a new "mountain of gold" in the Yukon and a valley of it in the Cariboo, Canadian prospectors ought to be happy.

Toronto Telegram: Hon. Geo. E. Foster was unable to inform an enquiring British Premier as to the rainfall in Canada, but with November 7th, 1900, bright in his memory Mr. Foster could tell a good deal about the snowfall.

The Underwriters have been giving Brantford an unpleasant surprise in the shape of increased insurance rates. The increases generally range from 12 to 30 per cent., and in one case quoted from the increases is 100 per cent. The Brantford agents condemn the great increases, but approve the specific rating system.

A great copper mine has been located forty miles from the Saint and only three miles from the Algoma Central Railway. A vein 25 feet wide and two miles long has been traced. As the demand for copper is constantly increasing with the extension of electric railways, this discovery will be worth more to Canada than a gold mine. New Ontario is an asset not to be despised.

Hon. Frank Latchford, commissioner of public works, announces that the Ontario government, in view of the rush of settlement in the Temiskaming country, has decided to build a government railway from North Bay into the new settlements next spring. The line will be built into the great clay belt to the northwest of Lake Temiskaming, and will be afterward pushed to Lake Abitibi, which is half way to James Bay.

A beggar was arrested in New York recently, with $2,017 in his pockets. The money included a thousand pennies. He assured the Magistrate that he got the money by begging, and that he cleared $7,000 a year by begging. "You have no idea," he remarked, to the court, "how warm-hearted the public is until you appeal to its sympathies." This artist has evidently succeeded in fooling some of the people all the time.

Hamilton Times: Rev. Mr. Go-forth, late of China, told a Hagersville audience a few evenings ago that "the land-grabbing greed of the great nations of Europe was wholly to blame for the Boxer outbreak." The Boxer movement, he said, was wholly patriotic. Perhaps Mr. Go-forth is nearer right than some people choose to admit. Applying the Golden Rule, are the "Christian nations," or even the Christian missionary bodies, dealing fairly with China?

Premier Ross wants the Dominion government to do its duty to Ontario in its immigration expenditure, this province being a large contributor to the cost. Mr. Ross has great faith in the north country and has been liberal in provincial expenditures to give access to its stores of wealth. But Ontario needs population as well as Manitoba, and the report from Ottawa is that Mr. Ross is well satisfied with Mr. Sifton's desire to deal with the question in a broad and comprehensive spirit. The Minister of the Interior is a native of Ontario.

The following hint from the Ottawa Free Press is worthy of some attention:

The Board of Trade proposes at its meeting on Tuesday next to resume the consideration of the subject of improved municipal government. It was met before and it is to be regretted that it has been permitted to lie in abeyance so long. But better late than never, and it is to be hoped that the efforts of the Board will not be made too late to exercise a beneficial influence on the composition and administration of the city.

Why should not our Board of Trade—if still a live body—devote an evening to the discussion of municipal affairs, and plan an organized effort to induce a few more of our leading citizens to offer for the town Council. We want progressive, but careful and far-sighted men at the helm for a few years, and there are a couple of vacancies to be filled.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain cables the Governor-General: "It is His Majesty's wish that the usual birthday dinner in the colonies be given in 1901 and 1902 on 9th November." That means that the day will be observed as a holiday according to statute, but let necessary that Saturday be observed? Why not postpone the celebration, till Monday, when it will interfere less with business? Merchants tell us that Saturday's business means to them at least a third of the receipts of the week, and that when they close on that day a considerable portion of the business is lost. Why this should be so is strange, as one would think people would supply their wants on some other day, but the merchants having experience to guide them, are better able to judge as to that. Probably the business that is lost by holidays goes to the larger towns in the country, which do not observe holidays so closely. In view, however, of there being two holidays in November, we should think loyalty to the King would not suffer through his birthday celebration being postponed from Saturday to Monday.

The dial of the punch-machine won't answer that question. Strength depends on nutrition. When the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased, the body fails to receive its full supply of nourishment and hence grows weak. That is why no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition. The food eaten is then perfectly digested and assimilated and the body is made strong in the only possible way—by nutrition.

"I was troubled with indigestion for about two years," writes Wm. Bowker, Esq., of Julietta, Lahti Co., Idaho. "I tried different doctors and remedies, but to no avail, until I wrote to you and you told me what to do. I suffered with a pain in my stomach and left side and thought that it would kill me. Now I am glad to write this and let you know that I am all right. I can do my work now without pain and I don't have that dread feeling that I used to have. Five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the liver.

South Huron loses an old and much respected resident and liberalist, a sturdy defender in the death of Mr. John McMillan, ex-M.P. He was of the type of self-made men who have done so much to transform Ontario from a wilderness into the flourishing land it now is, and without average educational or other advantages he raised himself to the highest positions of trust and confidence in the gift of his neighbors. He was admired for his candor, earnestness and clearness of view, and many in Lindsay and district will regret his demise, he having appeared here at several political gatherings and at meetings of West Victoria Farmers' Institute.

The output of the Yukon gold mine for the year is stated at $23,000,000. That is, in one sense, a substantial addition to the national wealth, but it is by no means all profit. Indeed it has been estimated that every dollar's worth of gold taken from the earth since the dawn of history has cost more than a dollar's worth of time, labor and commodities. Forty-six million bushels of wheat at fifty cents a bushel would pay for the Yukon gold yield, and the wheat does a great deal more to benefit the railways, the manufacturers and the merchants than the gold does. However, the craze for the yellow metal will not be affected by moralizing. Men love gold, and the recent additions to the world's supply have knocked Mr. Bryan's silver platform to smithereens.

Montreal Witness: The Premier of the province of Ontario, the Hon. G. W. Ross, who was in the city yesterday had been in Ottawa to confer with the federal ministers concerning immigration to New Ontario. Mr. Ross was satisfied with the interview, every one being agreed that New Ontario is a splendid field for their settlement. Mr. Ross, at least, is an authority upon the subject. Some two and a half years ago he visited the Algoma, Thunder Bay and Rainy River region, travelling some thousands of miles, and convincing himself of its richness in minerals, its agricultural possibilities, its forest wealth and the potential commercial importance of its almost illimitable water powers. The last census shows that the population is increasing steadily, but there is room for many thousands more, and there is no place in Canada where a capital of intelligence and energy can be laid out to better advantage. We presume, however, that nobody knows better than Mr. Ross the heart-breaking results which follow from planting settlers on land which is too rocky and broken to be profitably tilled after the first crops have been taken off it. There are considerable regions in eastern Ontario and on the Quebec side of the Ottawa which after being redeemed from the forest under conditions of extreme hardship have gradually been deserted, the families who had worked hard for an assured possession having had to forsake them either sooner or later, and the latter the worse. It is to be hoped that no mere delight in big immigration figures or desire for momentary prosperity at the expense of newcomers will induce the government to make itself a party to planting simple people on land that is not equal in its promise to the best that is anywhere within reach.

COULD NOT WALK.

Some people become so crippled with rheumatism that they cannot walk for months at a stretch. Mr. John Connell, Bedford Mills, Ont., suffered great agony with muscular rheumatism in his legs and could not walk for two months. Four bottles of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure made a well man of him. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment, 50 cents, at all drug stores, or Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

A ROYAL PUBLICATION.

Illustrated Time-Table of the Canadian Tour of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York.

One of the most handsome pieces of printing, and a publication that will come to have historic interest, is the specially prepared time-table of the tour through Canada, of T. R.H., the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, embracing that portion of the Grand Trunk Railway System over which the Royal couple travelled in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. Never before did a time-table assume such a sumptuous guise, and it reflects the utmost credit upon the Grand Trunk Railway System.

The book in question is a full octavo one of one hundred pages, printed on special deckle-edge paper. The letter press is in black and red; the text is descriptive of the route from North Bay, Ontario, to Toronto, London, Niagara Falls, Brantford, Woodstock, Hamilton, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, Cornwall, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Richmond and Quebec, with marginal time-tables, distances from North Bay and distances from Montreal, as well as showing the altitude above sea level of every point along the route. Blank pages are interleaved opposite every page for pencilled memoranda. The book is profusely illustrated, the numerous half-tones being being printed on superfine paper ornamented with emblematic devices printed in grey ink, the half-tones being printed in black ink.

Edition-de-Luxe copies for presentation to T.R.H., The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, and other persons of distinction in the Royal party, are bound in blue-grey oze calf with appropriate stamp and silk binding ribbons in the Royal colors. The Duval crown, which appears on the front page of cover, being printed in gold and enameled. The ordinary edition is bound in stiff grey paper, the side title with Duval crown and maple leaf decorations in red and gold; all bound with scarlet silk cord and enclosed in grey envelope. The Edition-de-Luxe copies were enclosed in boxes of the Royal purple color, with the Duval crown printed on the outside in gold.

Nowhere in all their tour had the Royal Highnesses provided for them so beautiful a hand book, and the Duchess remarked on this beautiful work. It reflects great credit on the enterprise of the Grand Trunk Railway. In addition to this Royal Souvenir, the Grand Trunk also issued a very handsome edition of their book entitled, "Across Niagara's Gorge," bound in green oze calf lined with brown silk, the inside being printed in heavy enameled paper in the Luxotype process. They also issued a Vest-Pocket map of the entire System, showing the route of the Royal party while on their line. This map is printed in four colors mounted on silk bound in smooth calf skin cover, ornamented in gold.

Church Notes

—Christian Guardian: Rev. G. W. Henderson, of St. Mary's, has been invited by the quarterly board of Lindsay to become their pastor for the next conference year, and Rev. T. Manning, of Lindsay, has been invited to St. Mary's. Both brethren have accepted, subject to the action of the Transfer and Stationing committees.

After a Long Absence.

Mr. James Simpson, an old resident of this vicinity, but now living retired in Toronto, was in town on Friday, passing through to Bobcaygeon to join a party of hunters. It is twenty-two years since Mr. Simpson was last here and he thinks the town has greatly improved. He was surprised to see such fine stores and residences. He says the Hospital and post office buildings are a credit to any town.

October Weather Notes.

It is a long time since we had a month with such a light rainfall as last October. There were light rains on eight days to the total amount of 85-100ths of an inch. Between three and four inches is the average monthly rainfall. The fall rains this year have been missing. The first snow flurries were seen on the 17th. The highest temperature was on the 30th, 71 degrees. The coldest weather was experienced on the 25th, 24 degrees. First below 32 degrees, freezing point, on the 3rd of the month. The latter half of the month was particularly fine. Trees were generally defoliated by the 15th.

Hockey Notes.

—The local hockeyists are beginning to talk business and the organization meeting of the Peterboro club will be called in the course of a week or two. The management has not been asleep to the interests of the club, but have been quietly looking over the situation. The Peterboro rink will, it is understood, be allowed in the association for this season on conditions which the management are agreed to undertake. A strong team will be placed on the ice and an effort made to bring one of the championships this way.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

—Mrs. E. E. Sharpe, of town, who has been attending the W.C.T.U. Convention in Stratford during the past week, returned on Saturday, and speaks in the highest terms of the hospitality extended to the delegates by the citizens. Heartily greetings and cordial addresses of welcome were tendered the White Ribbons by the Mayor of the city and representatives of several fraternal organizations. The ladies, however, and good will still borne by Judge Barron and family to Lindsayites, was manifested by the kindness of Miss Barron in taking the Lindsay delegates all through and around the Classic City and pointing out the many places of interest. A banner bearing the word "Welcome," in large letters spanned the principal street in close proximity to the new City Hall, where the delegates were held, and at first the delegates were a little puzzled to know whether this invitation had been intended for them or the recent Royal visitors, but ere long these doubts were dispelled and the honor appreciated by the Ontario temperance women.

LARGE POWERS.

(Toronto Evening Star.)

Provin 1st Detective Joseph Rogers, who is at present engaged in enforcing the game laws, recently saw venison exposed for sale out of season, and he apprehended the offender, convicted him forthwith, and fined him $40 on the spot.

Detective Rogers is an officer of the highest repute, but if he has such large powers it is probable that others have them also, and it may be feared that the system will develop men who will abuse their authority.

In New York there is a great row because representatives of the law have been going about among those who violate the law, apprehending, convicting, and fining them on the spot. These officers are corrupt. They keep the money or use it for party purposes, and they promise the offender immunity from interference by the law.

The infraction of the game laws is in some respects different from other offences, but the system of giving to one man the authority to inform, convict, and collect a fine is one that a dishonest man could make money out of. If used at all, it should only be where the circumstances do not permit of the calling in of a magistrate, and such cases cannot often occur. If hunters caught with illegal game in their possession can be tried by the game-keeper who has caught them, they will not have so much respect for "the court" as to fail to tempt him by offering to settle in a way advantageous to all present.

NORLAND.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A number of our local sportsmen left on Wednesday to prepare their camp for the hunting season, which opens on Friday. We notice that Mr. Geo. Day, Ed. LeCraw and Ernie Adair are among the young men who have gone in search of deer. We hope they will be as successful in the search for the wild deer on the rocks as they are for the tame ones at home. Licenses are needed in all cases.

Mr. J. J. Brownlie occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday evening last in the absence of the pastor, who was unable to attend his services owing to sudden illness.

Mr. S. B. Trick spent Thursday in Lindsay on business.

Mr. Wm. Bowday is spending a few days at Wilberforce on business.

Miss Nellie Allister returned on Thursday evening, after spending a week visiting at her grandfather's, Mr. R. Rillance, of Beaverton.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 8, '01

EVERY MAN IS GOING

All Available Infantry at Aldershot for South Africa.

PRINCE ARTHUR GOES WITH THEM

A Single Regiment of Regular Cavalry, 21st Lancers, Left in the United Kingdom—Mr. John Morley, M.P., on the War—Gen. Buller's Straight Denial and His Popularity.

Aldershot, Eng., Nov. 1.—It is understood that as a result of the conclusion arrived at by the Cabinet Monday, every available effective infantryman here will be sent to the front in South Africa between now and Christmas. The departure of the cavalry brigade from Aldershot will leave only a single regiment of regular cavalry, the 21st Lancers, in the United Kingdom. Prince Arthur of Connaught, nephew of King Edward, who is a second lieutenant in the 7th Hussars, goes with his regiment to South Africa.

JOIN MORLEY ON THE WAR.

He Says It Is Drifting Into Extinction of the Boers.

London, Nov. 1.—John Morley, M.P., addressing his constituents yesterday at Arbroath, said: "The Government are aggravating the essential mischief of the situation in South Africa by their management of the concentration camps. The death rate of children, measure it as you will, is hideous, excessive and appalling. The policy of devastation has been admitted to be a mistake. 'I wonder what Lord Palmerston would have said of a Government justifying themselves by saying that Russia in Poland and Austria in Bosnia had done something like the same. The war had entirely changed in character and is drifting into a war of extermination of a people, fighting for their own land. 'The policy of unconditional surrender and submission means extermination and annihilation. The present attitude of the Government is one of sullen desperation. There is nothing worse than muddle in a blind hero. 'The King will, perhaps, at no distant date, have to seek other Ministers with a better insight and a more pliant mind in face of the dangerous and complex situation which confronts the country.'"

Gen. Buller's Denial.

London, Nov. 1.—General Buller, speaking yesterday to a reporter of The London Evening News, regarding the telegram to General White, attributed to him by The National Review, said: "That is not my telegram." "Gen. Buller threatens to blossom into a British Bowdler. He does not appear to court privacy or to discountenance demonstrations. He attended a theatre in London Wednesday evening, and when recognized was cheered. He rose to his feet and bowed his acknowledgments. Outside the building Gen. Buller was mobbed by cheering crowds, and the police had to be called in to clear the streets."

Holland and the War.

London, Nov. 1.—The Brussels correspondent of The Times says Dr. Kuyper, the Dutch Premier, declared in the Second Chamber of the States-General yesterday that the Government had done all it was able to do to secure peace in South Africa.

Another Canadian Killed.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—A cable was received at the Militia Department late yesterday afternoon, stating that Sgt. J. E. Pemberton, Canadian Scout, was killed in action at Erpassababoon on Oct. 27. Next of kin is given as Prof. Pemberton of Halifax.

Schley's Case Closed.

Washington, Nov. 1.—At the conclusion of Captain Borden's testimony in the Schley court of inquiry yesterday, counsel for Admiral Schley announced that they had closed their case.

OUTPUT OF THE YUKON.

Official Figures Place It at $33,000,000 Gold-Yukon Navigation Closed on the 22nd October.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—The Globe has received the following from its special correspondent: Dawson, Oct. 28, via Ashcroft, B. C., Oct. 30.—The total season's output of gold in round numbers, according to the accurate official record, was twenty-three millions. The total freight imported during the season of navigation was thirty thousand tons. Of this two-thirds came by the upper river. Real estate is firm, and the mining market quiet; prices steady. The Administration building is nearing completion.

The mail service has been unsatisfactory during the past month. Ice is running and the last boat left on the 22nd. The direct telegraph line has been down for the past two weeks. Communication is open via Skaguay only. Faith Fenton-Brown.

AUTOMOBILE IN A CRASH.

Struck by a Wildcat Engine—One Man Fatally Injured.

Westbury, L.I., Oct. 31.—A collision occurred here yesterday between an automobile run by Henry Fournier, the French automobile expert, and a wild cat engine of the Long Island Railroad. Besides Mr. Fournier, there were on the automobile H. D. Fullerton, an official of the Long Island Railroad, H. J. Everall, Arthur Lewis and two newspaper men, named Batchelder and Garrie. It is feared Mr. Fullerton was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured. He was badly hurt about the head, and his face was frightfully cut. Mr. Batchelder also was severely injured, though the doctors say he probably will recover.

A Toronto Man In It.

All six men were hurt and the machine demolished. Those injured: N. B. Fullerton, special agent of the passenger department of the Long Island Railroad, badly cut about the head and face and compound fracture of one leg. A. G. Batchelder of The New York Journal, and who is chairman of the National Cystitis Union Board of Control, broken leg and other injuries; J. H. Garrie, New York Herald, broken shoulder and leg. (Mr. Garrie was formerly of The Toronto Mail); Arthur Lewis and Henri J. Everall, this city; Henri Fournier, this city, foot sprained.

JUDGESHIP IN THE WEST.

Cabinet Council Said to Have Made at Least Two Appointments.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—At yesterday's Cabinet meeting it is said that the question of vacant Chief Justiceship of the Northwest Territories was settled. It goes to Justice Maguire, who was in the Yukon for a time, but who is now on the Supreme Court bench of the Territories. He will be removed from his present district at Prince Albert and go to Calgary.

Judge Prendergast, a County Court judge in Manitoba, will get the vacant judgeship on the bench, and will be located at Prince Albert, where Justice Maguire now is.

Judge Scott, now at Calgary, will probably go to Edmonton.

KING TO GO TO ITALY.

His Majesty, It Is Said, Will Spend the Winter in San Remo.

London, Oct. 31.—The Italian newspapers, according to despatches from Rome and other Italian cities, report that King Edward will pass the winter at San Remo.

No Illness at Homburg.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Advices from Homburg state that people there who most constantly saw King Edward during his recent visit declare that he manifested no symptoms of illness, and refuse to believe the sensational reports printed of late.

Schley's Generosity.

Washington, Oct. 31.—At the inquiry yesterday Admiral Schley was allowed to explain that Admiral Sampson declined to receive the first report because it did mention the presence of the New York.

"I felt that the victory at that time," said Admiral Schley, "was big enough for all, and I made this change out of generosity, and because I knew if the New York had been present she would have done as good work as anybody else."

Committed for Trial.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Hansen, the self-confessed Westmount murderer, was formally committed for trial at the November term of the Court of King's Bench yesterday. While he still pleaded guilty to all that he has confessed, the law reads that a man charged with a crime must be entered at his trial with all the chances of an ordinary prisoner.

Duke of York Nears Home.

London, Oct. 31.—4 a. m. — The British squadron escorting the royal yacht Ophir, bearing the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, was sighted at 1 o'clock a.m. to-day, six miles off the Lizard.

A wireless message had previously reported the Ophir 50 miles from Scilly Islands.

Whale in Montreal Harbor.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Here is a whale story. Yesterday afternoon a whale 40 feet long appeared in the harbor and a member of the harbor police fired a dozen shots into the monster and still the whale lives. The visitor is one of the thresher species.

New Zealand's Labor Laws.

London, Oct. 31.—A despatch to The Times from Wellington, N. Z., says the Upper House of the New Zealand Legislature has affirmed the principle that either party to an industrial dispute may go past the Conciliation Board direct to the Arbitration Court. The fact that this motion was carried by both houses against the Government is regarded as significant of a change of feeling in regard to labor legislation.

HELD BOTH 36 HOURS

Details of His Attack of Col. Benson's Column.

THE CAPTURED GUNS SAVED

Botha and the Boers Suffered Most—Boer Losses Reported at Between 300 and 400—Praise for Our Scouts—Sergeant Sellwood and Others Doing Good Work Northeast of Pretoria.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—Further details have been received regarding the attack by the Boers under Commandant-General Louis Botha last week upon Col. Benson's column near Brakenlaagte, Eastern Transvaal. It appears that General Botha, who had been joined by another big commando, aggregating 1,000 men, attacked Col. Benson's rear guard on Oct. 30 on the march and captured two guns, but was unable to retain them.

Col. Benson fell mortally wounded early in the fight.

Major Wools Sampson took command, collected the convoy and took up a position for defence about 500 yards from the entrenchments prepared by the Boers. The captured guns were so situated that neither side could touch them.

The Boers made desperate efforts to overwhelm the British force, charged repeatedly right up to the British lines and being driven back each time with heavy loss.

The defence was stubbornly and successfully maintained through the whole of the following day and the succeeding night, until Col. Barter, who had marched all night from Bushman's Kop, brought relief in the morning of Nov. 1.

The Boers then retired. Their losses are estimated as between 300 and 400.

Col. Benson did not long survive. Not only did Gen. Botha direct the attack, as already cabled, but he personally shared in the fighting.

Twelve Officers Killed.

London, Nov. 4.—Lord Kitchener reports that three additional officers were killed and that two more were wounded during the attack recently made on the rear guard of Col. Benson's column, near Brakenlaagte, Eastern Transvaal.

Not a Canadian Colonel.

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 4.—The Col. Benson mentioned in Lord Kitchener's despatches as having been killed near Brakenlaagte, Eastern Transvaal, South Africa, is not the Col. Benson who formerly lived here. Charles I. Benson, when seen Saturday, stated his brother had been in London for the last nine months. He had been chief staff officer to Gen. Kelly-Kenny, and returned to England with that officer. He has since that time held a commission in the War Office. Mr. Benson had a letter from his brother, dated London, last week.

Devot Active.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Boers under Dewet have raided and cleaned out the principal British remount station in South Africa, despatches from a trustworthy quarter there report. The station is within four hours of Cape Town by the railway. Six thousand relief horses were kept there. The Boers took away all the animals they needed, after having killed the rest.

From Boer Scouts.

Brussels, Nov. 4.—Boers here in close touch with South Africa declare that the recent disaster to Col. Benson's column was the forerunner of a vigorous campaign, the season being favorable of swift concentration of commandos and severe blows against located British columns. Commandant Grobler, who it is believed participated in the Bethel fight, is considered a second Delany.

PRAISE FOR CANADIANS.

Sergeant Sellwood With a Colt Gun Saved the Day to British in a Perilous Position.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—The chief part in the recent operations to the north-east of the Pretoria district has been taken by the Canadian scouts, who have been ably assisted by the Australians.

About a week ago an advance guard, with a 15-pounder and Colt gun came upon a hidden Boer force in a perilous position for the British. The day was saved by the coolness of Sgt. Sellwood of the Canadians, who, with a Colt gun at close quarters swept the firing line of the Boers. The Boers retreated when the gun continued to shell them and lost heavily.

On a subsequent occasion, when seventeen Boers were killed or wounded and fifty-four captured, the same column had made an extended night march. With the Canadians in the vanguard, they rushed the Boers at dawn. The burghers had a pom-pom, which Commandant Muller saved by clearing from his laager at the first surprise, leaving part of his force still sleeping. The British reported that the Boers were taking advantage of the season for growing some crops.

Among the prisoners taken at Muller's laager were a number of train wreckers, one of which was captured with a Martini exploding mechanism and dynamite in his possession. The leader of this party was Jack Hinton. The prisoners taken state that Hinton regularly employed them in the work of attacking train convoys, and that they were remunerated according to the results. In the attack referred to Hinton, himself, escaped, but Ryan, his chief assistant, was caught. According to one military authorities, his gang numbered about fifty. Some of them are what are called renegade English, Irish and Scotch. The remainder are Americans, foreigners and Boers. The day before he was captured, Major Wolmarans came into the British lines under a flag of truce to obtain lines for his wounded.

Col. Kekewich's capture of the laager of Commandant Van Albert, with seventy-five unwounded and four wounded prisoners, including Commandant Kloppe, occurred north-east of Rustenburg, and was the result of clever night marches by the British columns, which lasted over two nights. More fighting is reported to have taken place east of here, but the details have not arrived.

PRO-BOERS ROUGHLY USED.

Attempted to Hold a Meeting, But Were Dispersed.

London, Nov. 4.—A riotous scene occurred yesterday in Peckham, a suburb of London. A small gathering of the local branch of the Democratic League undertook to hold a meeting to protest against the war in South Africa. The manifestants started in procession for the place of meeting, but before they arrived there they were hooted, buffeted and dispersed. A crowd estimated at 20,000 gathered to oppose them. There were many ugly rushes, and the police were hardly able to protect the struggling pro-Boers from the fury of the populace. After considerable fighting, during which a man was stabbed, the pro-Boers were removed under police protection. The victorious crowd then held a jingo meeting and sang "Rule Britannia."

REACHED PORT IN A GALE.

Ophir's Passage Across the Atlantic Was Tempestuous.

London, Nov. 1.—The royal yacht Ophir and the escorting war ships encountered the full force of the severe easterly gale blowing yesterday over the Channel, and were obliged to abandon their intention to put into Portland Roads, which was a great disappointment to the crowds lining the coast.

Anchored Off Yarmouth.

Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, Nov. 1.—The Ophir and the fleet anchored off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, at 4 p. m. yesterday.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra left London by special train at 5 p. m. for Portsmouth. The children of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York are with Their Majesties.

Was a Canadian Girl.

Buffalo, Nov. 1.—Miss Mabel Freeman, 26 years old, died at the General Hospital early yesterday morning under peculiar circumstances. She was brought to that institution from the Pan-American Exposition, where she died in an unconscious condition. She did not regain consciousness and died at 3 o'clock. The surgeons believe that morphine poisoning caused her death.

Coroner Wilson was notified. He ordered the surgeons to perform an autopsy on the body of the woman to ascertain the cause of death.

Miss Freeman has relatives living in Canada. Her brother, Albert Freeman, lives in Kilbuck, Brant County. He was notified of her death. The body will in all probability be removed to Canada for burial.

Burned Child Dies.

Quebec, Nov. 1.—The death occurred yesterday morning of a young son of Mr. L. H. Walker, from injuries the child received the previous night by his clothing taking fire, as reported yesterday.

Won't Exclude Peas.

City of Mexico, Nov. 1.—The session yesterday morning finally resulted in the admission of the members of the press to the sessions of the Pan-American Congress.

Killed by a Train.

Halifax, Nov. 1.—Mrs. James Smith was struck by a train on the railway crossing at Merigomish yesterday morning and instantly killed.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight.

You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

ROYAL TOUR IS ENDED

Special Signalling of Train Going to London.

COLONIAL ELEMENT PROMINENT

Precious Freight Carried by a Single Train—A Contrast With February Last—Address Presented by the Colonial Agents—The Reply of the King—Prince Edward's First Appearance.

London, Nov. 4.—Three generations of the royal family in line of primogeniture came from Portsmouth on Saturday by a single train. Extraordinary precautions were required for making assurance of their safety doubly sure. For the 59 miles the track was guarded by several hundreds of plate layers, with flags, and the royal train, running at a high rate of speed, was virtually signalled by hand the whole distance from the coast. All the ordinary traffic was suspended for several hours, and Victoria Station was virtually closed during the busiest portion of the half holiday.

Saturday's pageant offered a fine effect of antithesis to the memorable scene of Queen Victoria's funeral. The assemblage on Saturday was in merry mood, laughing and joking while waiting for the royal cortege, and cheering the King, the Queen and the heir to the throne when the carriages with the scarlet liveries appeared, and the streets were decorated with the gayest colors, in keeping with the joyous occasion. The royal travelers were reinforced at the station by the Duke and the Duchess of Connaught, the Duchess of Argyll, other members of the royal family, and while there were military escorts and 4,000 soldiers lined the route, it was mainly a procession of royal carriages with guards of honor at the station and at Marlborough House, and military bands at several points.

It was the Duke's homecoming and joyfully shared in the honors which he had won by rendering a notable service to the Empire. The heir to the throne had been little known and not adequately appreciated before the journey was undertaken; he has proved that he has inherited the King's tact and sagacity, and his hearty reception on Saturday is an earnest of his greatly increased popularity and prestige.

The City of Westminster, having emerged from the humility of Bumblebee, is striving to rival the Gog and Magg Guildhall indignity. It presented an address of welcome at Victoria Station, dividing the time with the representatives of the colonies, and assumed the duty of decorating a portion of the route of the procession. Its intentions in decorative art were perhaps better than the results accomplished. The work was begun at the last moment, and barely completed in time.

There were Venetian masts along the upper portion of the route, and one arch with a snowy banner. Piccadilly was left to its own devices, and some householders were thrifty and used purple and white hangings left over from February. St. James' street was the handsomest thoroughfare, with an abundance of wreaths, garlands and flowers between the Venetian masts, and an enormous blue banner with the words "Welcome Home" as the most conspicuous device. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Balfour and Lord Roberts were the conspicuous figures at the reception, and there was no lack of public enthusiasm.

Cheers greeted the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York as they passed on their triumphal return from their world tour through the crowded streets of London. The ceremonies passed off excellently.

The royal train arrived at Victoria Railway station at 12.56 p.m. Immense crowds of people gathered there to welcome the royal party.

All the way to Marlborough House the route was well lined, and several parties were profusely decorated, colonial colors being particularly noticeable.

The agents-general of the colonies presented an address to the King, who handed them a written reply, as follows: "I thank you for your loyal and dutiful address on the return of my beloved son and daughter-in-law from their visit to the portions of my realms of which you are the representatives. It was not without natural anxiety and hesitation that I sanctioned the departure of the heir-apparent to my throne on a voyage which involved many miles of separation. But it was my earnest desire to give effect to wishes of my late revered mother, and to the aspirations of my loyal subjects in the colonies, of whose devotion and patriotism I have received such signal proof in the splendid service they have rendered to the Empire in South Africa, and I am fully repaid by the complete success which attended the visit, and by the manifestations of devotion and loyalty which the presence of the Duke and Duchess everywhere evoked."

The members of the royal family and their suites rode in open carriages. The King wore a field marshal's uniform, the Duke of Cornwall and York wore the uniform of a rear-admiral, and Prince Edward of York was dressed in sailor clothes.

Prince Edward made his first public appearance during the royal progress from Victoria to Marlborough House. He saluted the crowds with earnestness and gravity, and both his grandfather and father beamed with pride and delight. The boy took himself so seriously that the crowds tilted with amusement.

TRIED TO KILL TZE HSI.

Attempt to Assassinate China's Empress Dowager Near Hoonan

Peking, Nov. 3.—While the Empress Dowager was embarking to cross the river to-day before entering Ho Nan an assassin attempted to murder her, and killed an attendant with a spear before he was cut down.

The court has left Ho Nan en route for Peking.

Tze Hsi, Empress Dowager of China, is one of the most noted women in the world. She has been likened to Catherine of Russia, a child of poor parents who rose to the greatest power in the empire. She is the maternal aunt of the Emperor Kwang Su. At an early age she was sold as a slave by her parents on account of their poverty. She became the property of a famous general, who, charmed by her beauty, adopted her and offered her as a present to the Emperor Hsien Feng. The Emperor made her his second wife, and on her bearing him a son, the future Emperor Tung Chih, she was raised to the first rank. On the death of Tung Chih she became Regent of the Empire, administering its affairs for fifteen years with more vigor than any of her predecessors. She is said to have put out of existence her own sister, the present Emperor's mother; the Marquis Tseng, Prince Chun and many others who stood in her way, though these rumors have been denied. During the minority of Kwang Su she reigned until 1889. In September, 1893, she virtually deposed Kwang Su because of his desire for reform, but subsequently allowed him to assume the throne. Her baleful influence and acts did much to bring about the Boxer rebellion, which was followed by her flight with the court when the allies drew near to Peking.

An Untractable Patient.

Peking, Nov. 8.—The condition of Li Hung Chang, who has been seriously ill, shows improvement. His physicians diagnose the malady as ulceration of the stomach, and the hemorrhages have been severe. As a rule he is an intractable patient, but, having been told that his life depends upon his adhering to a liquid diet, he is complying with the medical orders.

SLANDERED McKINLEY.

Stern Punishment for a Soldier for Foul and Abusive Language.

Washington, Nov. 4.—"To be confined one year in such a place as the Secretary of the Navy may direct; to do extra police duty during that time; to lose all pay except $2 a month for prison expenses, and the further sum of $20 to be paid him at the expiration of this confinement, and to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States," is the sentence imposed by court-martial upon John W. Stoll, a third-class electrician on the receiving ship Columbia, lying at the New York navy yards, for foul abuse of the late President McKinley.

On the day of President McKinley's death, Stoll, in the company of a number of sailors, is charged with having declared with an obscene oath that the President should have been shot long ago, and to have added other foul and profane expressions of the same tenor.

FRANCE TO THE PORT.

Explanations Wanted in a Hurry by the French Foreign Minister.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Yesterday morning M. Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs, telegraphed M. Bast, Counselor of the French Embassy in Constantinople, directing him to present yesterday to Tewfik Pacha, Ottoman Minister of Foreign Affairs, a note asking how the Turkish Government proposes to pay the Lando claim, and demanding the execution of the Sultan's irade dealing with that matter. The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France, which are defined in the various capitulations and treaties, and which in some cases have not been respected, and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey.

Admiral Caillaud is expected to reach his destination to-day.

COLLUSION BY RICE

The Jury Thus Find That the Prisoner Was Guilty of Murder

HAS STILL A CHANCE FOR LIFE

Chief Justice Falconbridge Granted a Reserve Case—Mr. Robinette Allowed to Take His Case in the Court of Appeal—Here the Peculiar Finding of the Jury Will Be Argued.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—After listening to Chief Justice Falconbridge's charge and talking over the evidence in the case for over four hours yesterday, the jury in the case of Fred Lee Rice, which had been in progress for four days, returned to court and announced their finding. It was exactly 4 o'clock when Sheriff Mowat brought the twelve men in, and Thomas Shortliss, their foreman, in answer to the usual question from Clerk Nichol, said: "We disagree on the first count, but we find the prisoner guilty on the second count."

There were very few in the courtroom who heard or understood the full effect of the verdict. Rice apparently did not, for he leaned over the railing and consulted Mr. Robinette's partner, Mr. Godfrey, regarding the outcome of the case. Many were relieved, however, when His Lordship broke the stillness which reigned over the crowd and courtroom by asking:

Is there no prospect of agreeing as to whether the prisoner fired the shot?

"None, my Lord," replied Mr. Shortliss.

Then Mr. Robinette arose and put forth a forcible argument with a view to having the pronouncing of the death sentence postponed. He said: "My Lord, I move that judgment be stayed on the verdict as found, and ask you to reserve a case for the Court of Appeal on the ground that there has been no concert, no collusion, no common design between the prisoner and the three prisoners prior to the firing of the shot that killed Constable Boyd." Mr. Robinette urged that even if the three prisoners separately made up their minds to escape when the pistols came into the hall, the prisoner Rice could not be convicted of conspiracy, and went on and cited several cases dealing with the point at issue, and was right in the midst of what looked like a lengthy and complicated argument when His Lordship interrupted him by saying:

"Pardon me, I think there ought to be a case reserved. I entirely agree with your argument, and even if the application had not been made, I had made up my mind to grant a reserved case."

Mr. Guthrie took no part, except to say that he admitted the force of Mr. Robinette's argument.

His Lordship was about to direct that a case be stated, when Mr. Robinette urged that a second objection to the effect that there had been a mistrial, owing to the fact that no direct verdict was returned on the principal fact be included.

"Yes," said the court, "and on any other grounds that seem tenable." Mr. Robinette was advised to submit his case to the Crown prosecutor and thence to His Lordship, who will send it on to the Court of Appeal. Thus the trial of Fred Lee Rice ended. The jury in the case was discharged till Monday at 11 a. m.

The effect of the verdict returned by the jury is that Rice was found guilty of murder, and had not the reserved case been granted by His Lordship, the prisoner would have been sentenced to be hanged. It is a source of great satisfaction to Mr. Robinette that he has put forth every effort in connection with the case, knowing that he still has a chance to save his client from the gallows.

Providing the Court of Appeals does not grant the application to have the verdict set aside or grant a new trial, the prisoner's counsel intends to take the whole matter to the Supreme Court at Ottawa. Mr. Robinette is confident that the verdict will be set aside on the ground that there was a conspiracy between the three men up to the time the fatal shot was fired. Chief Justice Falconbridge charged the jury particularly on this point yesterday, agreeing with the theory of the defence, and the argument in the Court of Appeal will probably be confined to what followed the shooting.

The closing scenes in the trial were impressive. His Lordship delivered his charge at the opening of the court, bearing somewhat against the prisoner, and the jury retired at 11.45 a. m. to consider their verdict. The court was then adjourned till 2 p. m., but His Lordship did not take his seat on the bench till 3.45 p. m., when he was summoned to give the jury some advice. He was accompanied by Judge McGuire of the Yukon. The foreman explained that there was a difference of opinion among the jurors as to what constituted collusion in the second count in the indictment. Mr. Robinette was appealed to, but no objection was offered, and His Lordship reproduced what he had said earlier in the day as nearly as possible in his own phraseology.

He said: If you find that Rice did not fire the fatal shot, or if you find doubt about it, then you must consider the second branch of the case. When you come out of the jury room I will ask you: Was the fatal shot that killed Boyd fired by the hand of the prisoner at the bar? If you say "Yes," that's the end of it. If you say "No," your common sense as to the people in the case. You must not push the doctrine of conspiracy too far against the prisoner. I am bound to tell you that there is no evidence of a conspiracy to the time the parcel came into the hall. The Crown is bound to prove that and has not done so. The jurors retired again, and in 15 minutes it was announced to the crowded courtroom that they had agreed. When the verdict was given "Rice was the most unconcerned man present. He looked straight at his counsel. Mr. Robinette, until Mr. Godfrey enlightened him regarding the jury's findings."

In charging the jury at the opening of the court His Lordship emphasized the fact that the American citizenship of the prisoner was no element in the case. Neither was it an element in the case that there are homes in either Toronto or Champaign, Ill., which have suffered or will suffer as a result of the crime and the verdict.

"The crime," said His Lordship, "has been described as a diabolical one. One can hardly realize that an escape should be attempted with so little apparent chance of success, and the crime which occurred as a result was therefore made the more repulsive. Still, even this, must not influence the jury." The judge then went on and dealt minutely with the theories of the Crown and the defence, and in conclusion said: "Now, I leave the matter in your hands, gentlemen. May the Supreme Ruler guide and direct you to a correct decision on the evidence."

Mr. Robinette immediately arose, and took exception to one or two points in the judge's charge. He asked that the jury be reminded that Stewart did not actually see the shot fired, and that Stewart's evidence was not infallible. The jury was accordingly recalled and instructed on these points.

PUBLIC HEALTH REGULATIONS.

What the Canadian Authorities Are Doing to "Scotch" Bubonic—A Glasgow Barmal Has the Plague.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Dr. Montizambert, Director-General of Canadian Public Health, is ordering the enforcement of strict regulations to prevent the introduction into Canada of the bubonic plague, which has now made its appearance at Glasgow. All steamship companies are required to furnish the quarantine officers at Canadian ports with a record of the temperature of every passenger within the previous 24 hours. It is believed that the indication of a rising temperature will furnish the ship's medical officers with the means of detecting the disease before it develops very far. The special regulations against bubonic plague, which were called into operation last year, will again be enforced. The department here think these steps fully justified, and is confident that with care Canadian ports will continue to show clean bills of health.

Glasgow, Nov. 2.—Another case of the bubonic plague has been certified to here. Large numbers of people who have been in contact with plague cases or suspects have been isolated. The foreign consuls yesterday refused to grant clean bills of health.

A bar maid, who was recently transferred from the Central Station Hotel (which belongs to the Caledonian Railway), to the station at Airdrie, is pronounced to be suffering from the plague.

No New Cases.

Liverpool, Nov. 2.—The three cases of bubonic plague now in the hospital here are doing well, and no fresh cases have been officially reported.

SIR WILFRID WILL GO.

Coronation Ceremony in June—Short Session of House First.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—La Patrie's Ottawa correspondent says: "The news spread about by the Conservative press to the effect that Sir Wilfrid had received an invitation to attend the coronation is premature. The Prime Minister informed me yesterday that he expects it from day to day, and will accept."

The ceremony will take place in June, and this will be a good reason for a short session, in order that the Premier may leave Ottawa after the prorogation of the House. He will be accompanied by Lady Laurier and Mr. Bordeau, his private secretary.

Notes From Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—General O'Grady left yesterday to inspect the permanent corps at Halifax and Fredericton.

Joseph Pope, O.M.G., has been commissioned by the Government to write an official account of their royal tour through Canada. It will be illustrated with photographs taken by the Government photographer.

Electric Road Sold.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 31.—The Windsor Street Railway System was formally transferred at a meeting yesterday afternoon to the Everett-Moore syndicate. By the transfer the railway becomes purely American, every Canadian director having sold his stock.

Accident to Mr. Bickerdike, M.P.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—Word was received yesterday of a serious accident which befell Mr. Robert Bickerdike, M. P., this week, while hunting near Fort Coulonge. Mr. Bickerdike was knocked down by a falling tree and suffered a fracture of one of his legs. He was conveyed to Fort Coulonge, where he is at present.

Negotiations With Bulgarians.

London, Oct. 30.—"It is officially stated that the United States Legation in Constantinople has opened direct communication with Miss Stone's captors," says a despatch from Sofia to The Daily Telegraph. "The Bulgarian Government has allowed the celebrated Hilo Kloster (southwest of Samokov) to be searched, and two suspected monks to be arrested."

Li Hung Chang Here.

Pekin, Nov. 1.—Li Hung Chang's foreign physicians to-day pronounced his condition grave. He has had hemorrhages for the last two days. His death would probably affect the negotiations as to Manchuria, which he has been conducting with M. Paul Lessar, Russian Minister to China.

The Spanish Chamber of Deputies has passed the bill prohibiting the free coinage of silver.

WELCOME TO BRITAIN'S HEIR.

A Naval Pageant at Portsmouth and an Affectionate Greeting From King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 2.—Yesterday's naval pageant in honor of the return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was almost a reproduction of the ceremonial attending their departure. The town and harbor were astir early, immense crowds assembled along the sea front, and rounds of cheers mingled with the National Anthem and salutes from the harbor ships and land batteries as the royal yacht Victoria and Albert started to meet the Ophir. On board the royal yacht, the King, in the undress uniform of an admiral, stood on the after bridge at the salute, while the Queen and the children of the Duke and Duchess paraded the hurricane deck. The bands presented a striking spectacle, owing to the great gathering of warships dressed from stem to stern, with their yards manned and their sides lined with their crews. Nelson's old flagship, the Victory, started the salute to their Majesties, and each ship in turn took it up as the Victoria and Albert moved down The Solent, accompanied by a flotilla of older royal yachts.

Off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, the Victoria and Albert and the Ophir met and exchanged signals of greeting. At about two o'clock the booming of distant guns announced the approach of the royal vessels, and the naval procession soon hove in sight. As the Victoria and Albert, the Ophir, and two ironclads, steaming in file one after the other, passed down the lines of the fleet, guns, bands and cheers mingled in the welcome to the royal travelers. As the Victoria and Albert neared the harbor the troops on shore presented arms, and the garrison battery fired a final salute. The bands everywhere struck up "God Save the King," and thousands of blue-jackets on board the ships in the harbor repeatedly cheered the royal party.

The demonstrations were renewed as the Ophir entered, her band playing "Home, Sweet Home." The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York occupied a conspicuous position on the upper deck of the yacht, bowing in response to the demonstrations of the thousands of people lining the harbor.

Immediately after the Victoria and Albert and the Ophir were moored at the jetty, the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York joined Their Majesties on the former yacht. The children of the Duke and Duchess met the latter at the gangway with joyful exuberance, and they entered the saloon of the yacht, where the King and Queen greeted them affectionately.

Sales Biggest in Years.

Winnipeg, Nov. 2.—The C. P. R. land department closed Thursday the heaviest month in the history of the company. The sales were heavier by nearly 100,000 acres than any other month for the past ten years, and show a very large increase over any month this year. The sales for the month of October were 150,592.95 acres for $465,655.62; for the previous month the sales were 60,060.46 acres for $197,057.61. For the month of October, 1900, the sales aggregated 18,858.89 acres, for $62,769.54. Up to the present date the sales for 1901 amount to 546,848.42 acres, for $1,824,062.41. This is an increase over the same period for the previous year, the sales for the corresponding month, 1900, being 382,189.18 acres, for $1,224,159.62.

Took Poison by Mistake.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—"We find that the deceased came to his death on or about Oct. 22, 1901, at his home, 229 Huron street, in this city. We find that death was caused by deceased having accidentally taken a dose of strychnine in mistake for morphia, which the evidence shows he was in the habit of taking to induce sleep. We are of the opinion that there is nothing in the evidence to show that deceased took either drug with suicidal intent."

Such was the verdict returned about midnight last night by Coroner W. A. Young's jury, empanelled to enquire into the death of Police Inspector Robert Armstrong of the Wilton avenue station.

London, Nov. 1.—"Miss Stone's release is not likely to be effected within a week," says a despatch from Sofia to The Daily Telegraph.

A TILSONBURG BUTCHER

Plus His Faith to Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

Mr. C. D. Park, a Tilsonburg, Ont., well-known butcher of that town, has been using Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets for a backache and kidney trouble that had been bothering him. When asked to give his opinion of these Tablets, he made this statement:

"During a recent sudden and sharp attack of backache and kidney trouble, due to cold caught in the shop, I was induced to try Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. I got a bottle and after I had used half of them the pain was gone. This I think is rapid enough results for anyone. I think they are a mighty good medicine."

Dr. Fletcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the newest and most effective remedy for backache, lame or weak back, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, gravel, rheumatism, specks floating before the eyes, kidney weakness of children and old people and all urinary troubles. The Canada Life Assurance Co.

A Business Proposition.

We offer you a better investment than Government Bonds.

Better for three reasons.

1st.—Canada Life 5 per cent. Gold Bonds yield a much higher rate of interest than Government Bonds.

2nd.—They are paid for by instalments—thus placed within the reach of men without capital.

3rd.—They are insured. That is, should the investor die after paying only one instalment on his bonds, all his future payments to the Company would be immediately cancelled and the benefits of his investment would at once become available.

Add to all these advantages the very material one that the investor or shares in the surplus earnings of this leading Company, and you have an opportunity for safe and profitable investment rarely equalled. A handsome booklet, giving a full explanation, will be sent on request.

VANDALS AT BUFFALO

They Do $80,000 Damage at the Closing of Pan-American.

MONEY LOSS ABOUT $3,000,000

Notwithstanding Financial Deficit the Exposition Will Be of Great Value Commercially in the Future—Over 8,000,000 of People Visited the Show in the Six Months of Its Existence.

Buffalo, Nov. 4.—The Pan-American Exposition ended at 12 o'clock Saturday night. At midnight President John G. Milburn pressed an electric button and the lights in the now famous electric tower were dim for the last time. Slowly, one by one, the lights on post and pinnacle and tower faded away. A corps of buglers standing in the tower sounded "taps," and one of the greatest glories of the Exposition, the electrical illumination, passed away, and the Exposition was ended.

The Exposition has not been a financial success, but the benefits derived from it will of great value to the commercial interests of the country. The financial loss will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. The loss will fall upon the holders of the common stock, the holders of second mortgage bonds, and the contractors who erected the buildings. Two hundred and ten thousand shares of common stock were sold at $10 a share. The stock was subscribed for by the citizens of Buffalo and the Niagara frontier in small lots of from one share to 100, so that this loss of $2,100,000 will not be seriously felt by any one. The first mortgage bond, amounting to $2,500,000, will be paid in full. Congress is likely to be appealed to for a grant of $2,000,000.

The total number of admissions for the six months was close to 8,000,000. An average of 2,000,000 a month had been figured on by the Exposition officials.

The great snow storm of last April was a severe blow to the Exposition. An immense amount of work was undone, and work on the grounds and buildings was delayed for a week. Strenuous efforts were made to make up for the lost time, but on May 1 a vast amount of work remained undone, and the formal opening of the Exposition was postponed until May 20.

The lamentable tragedy in the Temple of Music, which robbed the nation of a beloved President, was another blow to the Pan-American. The attendance had been increasing steadily up to the date of the assassination of President McKinley. The gates were closed for two days, and when they re-opened there was a drop of 12 per cent. in the attendance, and no improvement followed.

The Government exhibit, which is a beautiful and instructive collection, will be at once shipped to Charleston.

A large crowd attended the Exposition Saturday. The exhibit buildings were jammed during the afternoon, and there was considerable petty thieving of exhibits by souvenir hunters. The fruit and wine exhibits in the horticultural building suffered the most loss from the depredations of the crowd, and it finally became necessary to turn the people out of the building and lock the doors.

There was a veritable riot on the Midway Saturday evening. The disorder started from a quarrel between an intoxicated man and a waiter. The crowd took the part of the stranger and wrecked the place, smashing chairs, tables and windows. A stream of water from a fire hose finally put the mob to rout.

The closing hours of the Pan-American were marked by scenes of the most disgraceful vandalism. Crowds were there apparently for no other purpose than to destroy and steal. What they couldn't carry away they smashed and the police force was inadequate to cope with the vandals.

Giant palms, valued all the way up to $100, were smashed and destroyed. Valuable cases were carried away or ruined and other splendid specimens of plants used for the decoration of the beautiful walks of the memorable Rainbow City, were stolen. Hardly an electric bulb in the gardens in front of the electric tower was left; the ruffians knocked arms and legs off statues all over the grounds, while in some instances the corners of buildings were crushed in. Opposite the Mystery of Man group of statues on Sunday morning early officials saw clearly that the glory of the fair had indeed departed. A great number of black crayon figures were chalked on the walls, of which this is a sample: A large bottle, presumably of whiskey, with a label, "Killed by Old Rye."

One admission is made by officials, which is satisfactory to the outside public: There were no foreigners guilty of these acts of vandalism; they were simply due to the roughest element of Buffalo.

The officials estimate the damage done by hoodlums to be $80,000. It is to be regretted that the fair should have gone out in a scene of disorder, as the closing ceremonies were certainly of a most impressive character.

Cardinal Moran's Menacing Address.

London, Nov. 4.—Cardinal Moran's menacing address, delivered recently in Sydney on the subject of the anti-Catholic clause in the royal declaration, has caused a decidedly uncomfortable sensation in the Colonial Office, where the full text of the speech was received last week. Other utterances of like character are reaching Mr. Chamberlain both from Australia and Canada. The latter are especially biting and insistent. As a matter of fact, the situation between the Government and the Catholic subjects of the Crown is so acute as to threaten an open rupture.

Over Ten Millions of Wheat.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 4.—The official figures on the amount of wheat, barley, oats and flax shipped through Winnipeg out of the province during the opening of the present grain year of 1901, from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31, are given out by Chief Grain Inspector Horn. The total amount of wheat shipped during this period was 10,800,000 bushels. This is greater than the big year of 1899 by two million bushels.

Betting Results in Crime.

London, Nov. 4.—Statistics collected by the National Anti-Gambling League show that 191 bank-rupcies and 320 embazements in England during the last two years were directly attributable to betting. It further demonstrates that 80 per cent. of the robberies of money from letters, by Postoffice clerks and letter-carriers is due to the same evil.

Brigands Still Active.

London, Nov. 4.—"It is reported from Salonika," says the Vienna correspondent of The Daily Express, "that brigands have carried off the mother of the chief of police of Serez in Macedonia, about fifty miles northeast of Salonika, to the same spot where Miss Stone is detained."

Conservative Nominations.

Erland Lee of Hamilton was nominated by the Conservatives of South Wentworth at Hamilton on Saturday last for the Local Legislature.

The Conservatives of East Middlesex, in convention at London on Saturday, nominated Capt. Robson for the local elections.

Outbreak in Australia.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 2.—From Brisbane, Australia, news has been received of a fresh outbreak of plague. On Oct. 10 a man was taken sick with the plague and died. There had been no cases for two months prior to that time.

On the Black Sea.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2.—Ships leaving or entering the port of La Toum, on the Black Sea, have been ordered to be closely inspected, owing to a death from the plague having occurred in the town.

W.C.T.U. Closes.

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 2.—The sessions of the W. C. T. U. convention were resumed yesterday morning. The important item of business brought down was the report of the plan of the Work Committee. The convention adjourned this afternoon to meet at Toronto in 1902.

Miss Levlina Connor left Saturday for Orillia, where she will spend some time.

OMEMEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Every farmer is well on with his ploughing and roots crops are well saved.

There are three new buildings going up in our village and yet not sufficient accommodation to meet the demand.

The anniversary occasions are not falling off in any respect. The visits of such divines as Mr. Vail, of St. Paul's, and that of Rev. D. C. Dyer, of Kingston, never fail to lift people up and renew their strength for good efforts. Overflowing congregations at each service and great heartiness was shown in every respect. The choir of the church rendered excellent service and the collection reached the handsome sum of $106.

The Methodist church intend having an organ recital in the near future, when the new compensating pipe organ will be introduced.

The Presbyterian services in connection with the Anglican church Sunday and Monday were crowned with success in every respect. The proceeds amounting to about $280. The Anglicans are receiving great contributions on placing their church one of the choicest sites in the County.

Dr. J. N. Thompson and family have removed to Cobocook and they will be very much missed in our village in many ways as citizens.

Mr. Trench Thorton is the lucky winner of a two week deer hunt over many competitors with, of course, many game killing from those who were unsuccessful.

Messrs. Thos. R. Lindsay, George Ross, Geo. English and George Griffin have gone on a two week deer hunt and must be succeeding at this time from all accounts.

Master D. Duffly, son of Mr. Patrick Duffly, came to learn the blacksmithing with our expert workman, W. Merion, who is doing a rushing business.

SALEM.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. Geo. Snegrove has been remodeling his barn. The new building will give him ample accommodation for his crop.

Mr. G. Renzin has been trading roosters. His last acquisition will be double prize winner, or we shall be greatly mistaken.

Mr. T. H. Noble's sale last week was a great success. Mr. Noble will have rented his place to Mr. Geo. Lane.

DUNSFORD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
We regret to chronicle the demise of Mr. Geo. English, of the township of Verulam. Mr. English was one of the pioneer settlers of Verulam, and always lived a quiet and reserved life and was highly esteemed in the neighborhood as a strictly honest man and good neighbor. Mr. English lived to the ripe old age of eighty-four years and passed quietly away on Friday night, last, at his residence, which was followed by his funeral services in the Emily cemetery by a very large concourse of sympathizing friends and acquaintances. Mr. English was a member in full communion of the Church of England, and the burial services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Creighton. Mr. English left a family of four sons and six daughters, all in good circumstances and respected as honorable and industrious men and women, to whom we extend our sympathy in their bereavement.

Mr. John Bell cattle buyer, of Verulam, is prostrated with a severe attack of bronchitis, and is recovering very slowly.

LITTLE BRITAIN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. M. Wickett has been very ill, but we are glad to note that he has taken a change for the better. The stone crusher is at present engaged in the crushing of a great pile of stone on the farm of Mr. Mark Wickett's farm. The stone is being put on the road between the station and our village, so we may expect much better roads.

Kindly bear in mind the concert to be held in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening Oct. 12th, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid. A splendid time is expected. For particulars see posters.

Several loads of ladies left here on Tuesday last to attend a quilting bee at Mrs. G. Wickett's.

Miss Bryce, of Whitby College, who was visiting at Mr. J. Jenkins', and who is a beautiful singer, sang in the Christian church on Sunday morning last, and her singing was highly appreciated by everyone.

Our temperance lodge has re-opened again, and the number present is increasing rapidly. We hope to see more out this week.

Mrs. C. Ford presented her husband with a fine baby boy on Monday last, and Mrs. T. Shenes also presented her husband with a fine boy.

The weather this week being so rough and could go against the grain since we have been having the last two weeks. However, most of the farmers had their root crop in.

WOODVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Dr. Neelands, dentist, will be at the Queen's Hotel, Woodville, on Tuesday, Nov. 12th. Keep the date in mind, wif.

Duncan Ray and Arch. Carmichael, of Islay-st., started for the hunting grounds in the north on Wednesday. The ranchers are having a busy time delivering cattle to their patrons just now, and considerable grumbling is being done on account of the poor condition of many of the animals returned.

Wm. Dorland has his new house on Queen-st. nearly all ready for occupation and will soon be at his own place again.

Mr. J. Stoddard has the brick-layers at work this week, and a few more days will complete his factory and office, which will make a decided improvement as well as ornament to the place.

Mr. Arch. McTaggart and family removed to the village from Grass Hill on Tuesday.

Mrs. C. E. Weeks is visiting with relatives in Toronto.

Dr. A. Galloway, of Glenarm, was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. Campbell and Miss Currie have moved to the residence of Miss Tenn.

Miss Winnie Ferguson visited with relatives in Toronto last week.

Miss Annie McArthur continues very ill with no improvement from last week.

The work on the Methodist church will soon be completed, but probably not in time for next Sunday's services; however an announcement of the re-opening will be made next week.

GALWAY.

(Special to The Post.)
It is with feelings of deep regret that we record the death on Thursday, of one of Galway's oldest and most respected settlers in the person of Mrs. Daniel Reid. Deceased was born in May, 1821, in the village of Eskaton, County of Limerick, Ireland. With two of her sons she immigrated to Canada in 1845, and made her home at Gore's Landing, where she remained about one year. It was at that place that she became acquainted with Mr. Daniel Reid, whom she married the following year. They both moved to the township of Otonabee and settled on a farm near what is now known as Indian River station. Not being satisfied with their surroundings, they removed to the township of Galway in the spring of 1855 and settled on Lot 2, Con. 15, until the time of her death. Mr. Reid, who still survives, feels very keenly the loss of a most devoted partner. Notwithstanding the difficulties and hardships connected with clearing a bush farm, she bore it all with Christian fortitude. It must be remembered that when the first settlers came to Galway the Bobcaygeon road was but little more than a trail. There was no market for timber, and little market in fact for anything else. Notwithstanding all this Mr. and Mrs. Reid succeeded in making for themselves a comfortable home. Deceased possessed rare qualities, which endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She will not easily be forgotten. The only members of the family besides her husband who survive to mourn her loss are Mrs. J. Alton, Mrs. Wm. Clark, Mrs. James McGrath, daughters, and Mr. D. Reid, a son, all of Galway. Mr. Reid, the bereaved husband, is also in his declining years, and has the sympathy of the entire community in his bereavement.

Rev. P. J. O'Leary's beautiful and up-to-date residence is now completed. It is heated with a furnace and has all modern appliances. It is expected that he will be able to move into it on All Saints' day. The dwelling commands a splendid view as it is built directly opposite the church on a beautifully elevated plot of ground donated by Mr. Thomas Buckley.

GLENARM.

(Special to The Post.)
The hunting season is here and the din of dogs and guns is heard everywhere. A large number of hunters passed through here on their way north last week. Mr. Harrington remained here over Sunday.

Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Quick, of Orillia, were the guests of their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, last Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Mr. L. L. Malley is at present visiting his parents at South River, in Fanny Sound district.

Messrs. House and Woodcock were guests of Miss Emma Sedgwick on Sunday.

Church was well attended Sunday evening, and Mr. Peel preached a very touching sermon. The singing was unusually fine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quibie have moved up over Mr. Sharpless' place to be convenient to his work, he having taken Mr. Phil. Robinson's place on the section, Mr. Robinson having resigned.

Mr. R. G. Haight is away again on his travels, having spent the week before last at home.

Mrs. Scott, with Master Russell and little Gordon, of Calgary, are visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scott, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hughes have recovered from their illness.

Mrs. Kerr is very low at present—all hopes are given up, but Miss Lizzy Kerr is about the same.

Messrs. Ernest and J. B. and Misses Emma and Pearl Sedgwick spent the 27th with friends in Stanhope.

Mr. Phil. Robinson's family, who intended moving to British Columbia, have changed their minds, and are not going till spring anyway, and perhaps not then.

Albert Webster, son of W. H. Webster, has gone to Carman, Manitoba, to look after his brother Herbert's interests in that place, who has been laid up with rheumatism and lameness, and having a few days ago—upwards of one hundred acres of wheat and oats in the shock.

Mrs. Sykes, of Oakwood, who had been the guest of Mrs. W. H. Webster, left for her home on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Furs, of Orillia, daughter of Mrs. Hancock, has been spending a week with her mother. We understand it is the intention of Mrs. Hancock to return with her daughter to spend the winter. Any purpose going to Peterboro in the meantime.

The inhabitants of the village will be pleased to learn that Miss Ryland, instead of going away for the winter, as has been customary, has decided to remain in Oakwood this winter, and purposes making her home with Mrs. Sanderson. We presume she has come to the conclusion that there is no place like Oakwood after all.

On account of it taking more time than anticipated to get the Parca ready for the concert in aid of the Public Library by the 9th of November it has been found necessary to postpone it until a future date, of which due notice will be given. The committee are working cheerfully hard and promise the public a genuine treat. Very possible the evening of Thanksgiving day will be the time fixed.

Messrs. Rows & Son shipped a car of lumber from Mariposa on Wednesday.

A number from here took in the Y.M.C.A. concert in the Academy of Music, Lindsay, on the evening of Nov. 5th.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Cond. is in poor health.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

How to Keep the Baby Healthy and Happy—Avoid the So-called Soothing Medicines

Every mother is naturally solicitous as to the health of her children, but not everyone treats their little troubles in the right way. The so-called soothing remedies are still used altogether too much, although physicians have preached against them for many years. The fact that they put children to sleep is no sign that they are helpful. On the contrary, soothing drugs are dangerous and distinctly harmful. At the slightest sign of ill health or disorders give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets. This medicine is purely vegetable and is guaranteed to contain no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. For indigestion, simple fevers, diarrhoea, the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth, there can be no better, no safer remedy than this. Baby's Own Tablets are a sweet, pleasant little tablet which any child will take readily, and dissolved in water, may be given with absolute safety to the youngest infant. Mothers who have used these tablets cheerfully testify to the benefit their little ones have derived from them. Mrs. R. L. McFarlane, Bristol, Quebec, says:—"In my estimation Baby's Own Tablets have no equal as a medicine for little ones. In cases of children teething I would not be without them on any account, as they keep my baby healthy and happy." Druggists sell them, but if you cannot find them conveniently send 25 cents direct to us and we will forward a box by mail prepaid. The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

At Home to Their Friends

L.O.O.F. SOCIAL AND ENTERTAINMENT LAST TUESDAY.

Was a Grand Success—The New Rooms Were Beautifully Decorated—An Enjoyable "Hop".

The members of Lindsay Lo'gs, No. 100, L.O.O.F., are known for their thoroughness, whether it be the undertaking to give an evening's entertainment, celebration, or the initiation of a candidate into the mystic circle. Tuesday night the "At Home" and concert was another score in their long list of successes, when they formally opened their new and beautiful lodge rooms in the Blackwell block.

Fully three hundred people responded to the invitations sent out, and by 8 o'clock the magnificently furnished assembly hall was packed to the doors. Bro. R. J. McLaughlin was called to the chair and acted in his usual efficient manner. In the course of his remarks he said he was pleased to welcome such a large crowd to the home of Lindsay Odd-fellows. He congratulated the lodge on having such fine and beautifully furnished rooms. He made reference to the members' wives, who accompanied a great deal of their husbands, and he said that instead of devoting their time at home, but they should remember that they were sisters as well. He said perhaps no other lodge in town contained as many eligible young men for marriage as the Oddfellows. They are also noted for being excellent cooks as they frequently serve a supper to the members comprising pork and beans. Bro. J. W. Anderson and the Vice-Grand, Bro. T. C. Matchett are particularly fond of late suppers. After the conclusion of the program refreshments will be served in the dining hall, and then you will have an opportunity to judge for yourselves.

The concert was by far the best of its kind that has been presented in Lindsay for some time, and every piece went away well played. The first number on the program was an instrumental duet by Misses Jones and Winters, which was nicely rendered. Mr. W. J. White, of Toronto, gave a comic selection, "The Comforts of Home," which was a good deal of amusement, and Mr. White was compelled to respond to an encore to satisfy the delighted audience. Miss Ella Gross gave a vocal selection in her characteristic good voice and manner, which has won its way into the hearts of the Lindsay public. Mr. Black of the Public School staff, gave a very proper recitation of Kipling's "East and West," and carried the sympathy and interest of his audience. Mr. Will White concluded the first part with a reading in character, "The Beautiful Sea." After an intermission of ten minutes Mr. J. Parnell Morris rendered a very pleasing vocal selection, and was compelled to respond to a hearty encore. Mrs. K. White acted as his accompanist. Mr. W. J. White followed with a descriptive selection. Miss Cora Waters' vocal number was much appreciated. A reading by Mr. White was a feature that will be long remembered. Mrs. Collis favored the audience with a very pleasing vocal number, and Mr. White concluded the program with a comic selection. Mr. White is certainly a clever comedian and an excellent impersonator. "The Imitations of John Chinaman," being dressed as a Celestial, which was given to an encore, was cleverly put on. Mr. White's initial appearance in Lindsay last evening will no doubt ensure many future visits. Miss Gregory officiated as accompanist. The entertainment was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

The party then returned to the dining hall, where refreshments were served. The two ladies in charge looked after by about a dozen young men all members of the order. The dining hall was profusely decorated with Union Jacks, red, white and blue streamers, and beautiful oil paintings. The ceiling looked gorgeous with its magnificent decorations. The hall was adorned with chrysanthemums and other flowers. After all had done justice to the good things, about twenty-five of the young gentlemen and ladies remained until one o'clock, when one of the most successful "At Home" socials and entertainment was brought to a close. Mrs. Lillian Jackson, whose reputation as a dance music pianist is so well known, furnished the music.

The current committee, comprising Bro. W. R. Wilkes, chairman, Geo. Mathie, Ed. Gregory, T. W. Greer and Geo. Harvey, who had charge of the entertainment, are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

The entertainment was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

The party then returned to the dining hall, where refreshments were served. The two ladies in charge looked after by about a dozen young men all members of the order. The dining hall was profusely decorated with Union Jacks, red, white and blue streamers, and beautiful oil paintings. The ceiling looked gorgeous with its magnificent decorations. The hall was adorned with chrysanthemums and other flowers. After all had done justice to the good things, about twenty-five of the young gentlemen and ladies remained until one o'clock, when one of the most successful "At Home" socials and entertainment was brought to a close. Mrs. Lillian Jackson, whose reputation as a dance music pianist is so well known, furnished the music.

The current committee, comprising Bro. W. R. Wilkes, chairman, Geo. Mathie, Ed. Gregory, T. W. Greer and Geo. Harvey, who had charge of the entertainment, are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

The concert was by far the best of its kind that has been presented in Lindsay for some time, and every piece went away well played. The first number on the program was an instrumental duet by Misses Jones and Winters, which was nicely rendered. Mr. W. J. White, of Toronto, gave a comic selection, "The Comforts of Home," which was a good deal of amusement, and Mr. White was compelled to respond to an encore to satisfy the delighted audience. Miss Ella Gross gave a vocal selection in her characteristic good voice and manner, which has won its way into the hearts of the Lindsay public. Mr. Black of the Public School staff, gave a very proper recitation of Kipling's "East and West," and carried the sympathy and interest of his audience. Mr. Will White concluded the first part with a reading in character, "The Beautiful Sea." After an intermission of ten minutes Mr. J. Parnell Morris rendered a very pleasing vocal selection, and was compelled to respond to a hearty encore. Mrs. K. White acted as his accompanist. Mr. W. J. White followed with a descriptive selection. Miss Cora Waters' vocal number was much appreciated. A reading by Mr. White was a feature that will be long remembered. Mrs. Collis favored the audience with a very pleasing vocal number, and Mr. White concluded the program with a comic selection. Mr. White is certainly a clever comedian and an excellent impersonator. "The Imitations of John Chinaman," being dressed as a Celestial, which was given to an encore, was cleverly put on. Mr. White's initial appearance in Lindsay last evening will no doubt ensure many future visits. Miss Gregory officiated as accompanist. The entertainment was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

CHAPTER I.

Rat-tat-tat!

This summons, in shape of several hearty blows, is bent on the door of a room—the best house afforded of an hotel on the Calle del Prado, in Madrid. Within the chamber there is a movement among the bed-clothes, a smothered yawn, and then a voice, resonant and unmistakably American, calls out:

"Hello there, what's the row?"

The senior wished to be awakened at nine. It is a beautiful day for the bull-fight. Besides, there is a gentleman waiting to see you," comes the voice of the landlord from beyond.

Jack Evans sits up in bed. The sleep is gone from his eyes entirely as he sees the golden sunlight creeping in through the small windows.

"Send him up in ten minutes, landlord, and have breakfast for two in double that time."

"Oh, senior," says Evans, "I am not in a hurry to get up, but I will get up in ten minutes, and have breakfast for two in double that time."

He has just finished his ablutions, and is applying the coarse towel vigorously, when a rap sounds upon the door.

"Enter!" he sings out, whereupon the door, which he has unbarred, is flung open, and a Spanish gentleman greets him warmly.

"You are a late riser this morning, senior Evans. The fandango last night must have been too much for you," laughs the new-comer.

"I confess that I dreamed of the gipsies, and the clattering castanets haunted me, but that was not my first zana-cueca, Don Carlos."

"Indeed, I thought you had only been a few days on Spanish soil. Where have you seen the national dance before?"

"My dear fellow, I spent three years of my life in Mexico. It was there I made my fortune in the gold mines, you know. That is how I speak Spanish so well," and Jack Evans proceeds to arrange his tie in a negligé style that has always seemed a part of himself.

The Spaniard looks at him in a peculiar way, as though the answer brings amusement. "This young American, whose acquaintance he had formed in gay Paris, excites new feelings within his breast every day."

"Three years in Mexico, senior Evans. And you have hunted grizzlies in the Rocky Mountains, played cowboy in Texas, shot moose while on snow-shoes in Canada, trailed the jaguar in the Amazon, hunted tigers and elephants in India, been chased by the wolves of Siberia, explored China, been lost in Alaska, sailed on a whaler into the Polar seas, and traveled across the Dark Continent with Stanley—in the name of Heaven, man, how old are you?"

Jack Evans laughs aloud. He is amused at the astonishment of the Spaniard.

"Seventy by experience, but really just thirty-two last month, Don Carlos—we Americans live fast, you know. At twelve I was riding the wildest mustangs of Texas, so you see there has been twenty years for the rest."

"Caramba! You are a wonderful man, senior." Then a flash of suspicion leaps to his eyes—"Perhaps you have already seen a bull-fight. I am told they have terrible encounters in the land of the Montezumas."

"Yes," replies Jack, quietly, "I have seen some bull fights that would set a stout old Madrid wild. I imagine, for the Spanish-American blood would never put up with the tame affairs you have over here, if what I hear of them is half true."

"Ah! senior, I think they will give you a slight wound seeing to-day—black to the face, the fiercest bull south of the Apennines, and instead of the worn out hacks usually put in to bait his fury, they mean to have noble horses for the pleaders. This is the greatest day Madrid has had for a decade. Your blood will be thrilled by the daring of our bravo bull-fighters."

Jack listens with some skepticism of a snar, for he has had much experience among this class of boasters, and knows what little bravery they usually possess, sinking away whenever a fierce bull turns upon them, prodding him from the rear, and vaulting the fence as he makes a rush. The Spanish character, as seen from a foreign standpoint, has little in it for an American or Englishman to admire, and Jack has never been able to overcome this prejudice. All candor himself, brave to a fault, and daring, too—a splendid boxer, dashing rider, keen sportsman, and no mean hand with the fells or the rifle, this American adventurer cannot understand the crafty tactics that generally go hand in hand with the Spanish nation—their methods, so different from his own.

"I trust it will be as you say, Don Carlos. My blood grows stagnant again, and I long for excitement. I hope your black bull will be the equal of some I have slain in Mexico."

"What! you a bull-fighter, too, senior?"

"Oh! I've taken a turn in the ring along with the rest, and became disgusted with it. By the way, what did you do with the skin of the bear I shot when with you in the Pyrenees?"

"It is made into a rug. You shall see it when you go home with me. My niece is all excitement at the thought of meeting my American friend, of whom I have talked so much."

Jack is using his hair-brush vigorously, for his curls look like thick. He does not even smile at the implied compliment, for even at thirty-two one is a little too much of jeune homme. Truth to tell, the fellow had been so astonishingly smart that I forgave his little shortcomings. We watched the gipsy dance, and when it became too warm for my American blood I stepped out.

Francisco declared he had another sight for me, and led me along a gloomy street that ran into the Calle San Pablo. Here we were attacked by a clique of rascals, and a long story short, and I realized that my guide had sold me to a lot of bandits. Luckily I am always armed, and my long experience with danger has taught me the art of self-defence. I gave them more than they bargained for, and laid several of them blood on the ground, receiving in return a tremendous blow from the flat of a machete on the head that would have cut me to the chin had the edge been turned properly.

"Then a cry was raised that the alcazula, or police, were coming, and my assailants fled. I thought I would follow, for I felt an almost insane desire to lay hands on that villain of a Francisco, but my head began to swim, I clutched at a railing for support, and crashed against the door of a house."

"My senses must have left me immediately, for I knew no more until I opened my eyes in a chamber, and found a woman dressed in sombre black attending me. She did not know I had regained my senses, and I lay there some minutes observing her. You can imagine my surprise when I declare that the face of the nun was the face of the peasant girl who sold me the flowers in the mart on the wonderful Rambla."

"I coughed to let her know I was in a sensible state again, and she hastily dropped her heavy veil, as if desirous that I should not see her countenance. I was not badly hurt, only stunned, and while my head ached, could get upon my feet, though somewhat tempted to play invalid in order to feel those white hands bathe my brow again with eau de Cologne."

"She would tell me that she was Sister Agatha, from the cloister of the Benedictine church of San Pedro, at Gerona, and happened to be visiting this house at the hour I fell at the door in a senseless condition. I knew better—the face I had seen had colour in it, which a nun's never has, because they shut themselves away from the health-giving sun. Naturally I have puzzled over several questions since that hour—who is the beautiful flower girl of the Rambla in Barcelona, what interest does she take in me, for I am convinced in my soul she does, and why should she be going about disguised as a nun? When I find an opportunity I mean to have these things explained to me, as I am convinced that there is a mystery somewhere."

"During the brief recital of this little adventure in the ancient Spanish city, Jack's companion has listened eagerly, almost breathlessly—indeed, it is evident that he feels more than an ordinary interest in the narrative. The mention of Jack's discovery concerning the identity of the nun with the Catalan peasant girl in the flower market causes a light to appear in Don Carlos's eyes, but his natural craftiness enables him to speedily smother this, and when he speaks it is in a very ordinary way."

"Quite a little adventure, senior—almost equal to the one you told me about in Quito, Peru, where you saved a girl from a beast that had escaped from a cage—am I right?"

"Just so. I bear the marks of the jaguar's teeth on my left arm. I'll show you," and drawing up his sleeve he holds out the arm to the Spaniard, who goes into raptures at its wonderfully powerful structure, and then examines with deep interest several long-healed wounds, as regularly in a circle as the teeth of a wounded tiger cat could make them."

"You have a powerful physique, senior Evans. I've never met a man, but one, like you."

"And he?"

"You shall see him to-day. He is the matador who is to finish this terrible bull—Pedro Vasquez. All Madrid loves him because he has yet never quailed before a mad toro, but I venture to predict Pedro will have his hands full to-day. But your build is deceptive. When dressed you look like an ordinary gentleman, with a desire to take life easy, and yet, as I know, these muscles are like springs of steel, and lightning is no quicker than your movements when once you have decided what to do."

Jack pushes his cap from him, and proceeds to roll a cigarette—he believes in the old adage that "when in Rome do as the Romans do," and in Spain the cigarette is everywhere—the people live on tobacco, and as a writer expresses it very neatly, "one might reasonably look for the spontaneous growth of the weed upon the Spaniard's grave did he not prefer to be hermetically sealed up above the ground."

Don Carlos Castella follows suit, ready to cut upon the street can be heard the excitement that heralds in the day of the great bull-fight. Others have been known in the past, the management have spent money lavishly to make this affair the most notable of the decade. People have been pouring into Madrid for a week. Jack Evans has found the five principal hotels near the Puerta del Sol, or central plaza full, and has been obliged to seek quarters further away, but money will do almost anything in this world, and he has had no reason to feel sorry because of his being obliged to feel sorry.

The two strange friends saunter outside to view the scene. Banners are flying, and the bustle and noise make the American think the occasion is the glorious Fourth represents to his native countrymen.

Every one seems in his best clothes, the streets present an animated appearance, and men and women all head in one direction, where lies the monster pavilion, the arena of many a bloody battle between Taurus and the tormentors in the past.

Jack is surprised at the tremendous interest the populace of Madrid takes in the affair. It is equal to the greatest championship game of baseball ever attended, more so because the capacity of the pavilion is greater, and even those who do not go don their holiday attire.

"Come, we will be late, Don Carlos. If this mob finds an entrance there will be no standing room in an hour," and the American plucks his companion by the arm, but the Spaniard coolly takes something out of his pockets, which he holds aloft.

"There is no need to be late, but I have a friend among the directors. You will sit next my niece at the tournament, and there have a chance to make our acquaintance."

"Your niece at this bloody business," exclaims the American, and then adds: "Oh! I forgot, it is your national game. Of course foreigners cannot understand such things. I, for one, fail to see how a young lady like to look upon such slaughter."

"It is in the blood, I suppose, senior," mutters Don Carlos, "you shall hear my niece cry 'Viva toro' when the bull chases a cowardly chulo over the fence, and if by rare good luck the beast tosses a wretched banderillero with his gay darts among the audience, those little hands will clap, and her voice, a sweeter one never sang."

"Ave Maria!—will you have to the toro, yet I know Mercedes has a tender heart. I have seen her cry over a wounded bird, and sit up all night with a sick woman. Yes, it runs in the blood, senior. We have had bull-fights in Spain for centuries, and always shall. But we might as well go to save ourselves being crushed in the crowd."

They join in the throng that heads in the direction of the Plaza del Toro, and finally sight the walls of the great pavilion. Jack Evans looks upon the stirring scene with its gay colouring. Somehow his usual debonaire air is absent, a look that one might even term concern gathers upon his face as he turns to his companion, and remarks:

"You may laugh at me, Don Carlos, but I have a strange feeling—a premonition that this day is to be a red letter one in my career. I cannot explain it—do not ask me, but wait and see if I am right."

CHAPTER II.

The crowd is tremendous, but they avoid the worst of it, for there is a separate door or gate arranged in the interest of those who hold tickets for the shade. Once inside they find their way to the reserved seats, and Jack has time to look around him.

He sees an immense amphitheatre, circular in shape, with the arena in the centre. Around this the seats arise in successive tiers. The place will seat perhaps fifteen thousand, and to-day there will be standing room only, for the battle is to be a royal one.

Around the arena is a small wall of boards for the hunted chulos to leap over when pursued by the bull, and to protect the spectators in case the maddened animal should plunge over this; just a little way beyond is a sturdy barrier as high as a man's head.

Music sounds upon the air, and a military band dashes off some popular airs that make the pulse beat quicker. The scene is a gay one, not like a gathering in our land, where men dress in black or gray. Here the natives appear in gaudy colours, men as well as women, and the effect of this, added to by the uniforms of hundreds of soldiers, is to form a scene which for gay holiday appearance we never see off the opera stage.

"Look yonder, senior, we are favoured to-day," and Don Carlos points across to the left, where seats are reserved for royalty.

A party is just settling down, some of them officers in high state, and among others Jack becomes interested in those who wear the peculiar red fez of the Turk.

"Who are they?" he asks—"the Turks, I mean."

"Ours is the Turkish ambassador. That stout man with the decorations on his breast is Abdallah Fasha—he won his medals in the late affair with the Russians. I have the honour of his acquaintance. If you should desire an introduction, senior, I can arrange it later."

Senior Jack hears, and yet forgets to reply, for he is staring hard at the Turkish pasha, as though something within warns him that this man will cross his path soon. Whether he has any reason for such a belief or not the near future will prove. At present Jack takes a decided interest in the Turk.

The pasha is heavy set, with a face that bespeaks cunning as well as bravery. He is a man with an iron will—once his mind is made up, all the powers of the earth cannot prevail upon him to change it. Even as Jack watches him the pasha looks that a steady gaze fasten upon him, returns it with a scorn, just as if in the American he has recognized an old foe.

How singular that these two men, who up to this time have never seen each other, should instinctively hate at sight, and yet soul language, speaking through the eyes, its windows, has communicated Jack's aversion to the pasha, and quick to take offence, he returns the challenge.

Presently Jack looks farther around, and sees a party of English and American tourists, who have secured seats in the shade. He watches this section closely, as though expecting to see some familiar face appear. There is even a wistful look in his eye as though he missed certain friendly company he had met on some former travel—perhaps something more.

Then he starts as a voice near his ear calls out flowers for sale, and glancing up, half expecting to look up on the beautiful Catalan girl of the Barcelona market, he sees another, who takes his glance as an invitation to hand down her wares, so presently Jack has a boutonniere, one for his companion, and a handful of beautiful flowers for the ladies.

This puts him in mind—where are the ladies, indeed? The two seats still remain vacant, and it is now nearly by time. His reflections are suddenly brought to an end, for the ladies have arrived, both dressed in the regulation Spanish style, and wearing the veil down over their faces; but this will not be for long—when the toro rushes into the arena they will throw back those gauzy screens in order to see all.

Jack is introduced, and rises gallantly, taking the gloved hand of each. He notes that the senior is rather plump, and about the figure one expects at forty, while her companion seems to be a modern Hebe, her outlines so charmingly contour, and Jack responds with her, for he feels sure that what would be called in the rowdy west "a stunner."

He catches her name—Mercedes.

Somehow he has always fancied that name, and there is something peculiar about this meeting. What if he, the cynical old bachelor, who has mapped out a life of sybaritic comfort and ease for his future, has finally met his fate, and at a bull-fight to the last place in all the world he would think of looking for the angel who might comfort him through life.

He remembers receiving something of a genuine thrill when he took the senior's little hand, and more than once wishes Mercedes would raise her veil, it is so tantalizing to see the flash of wondrous eyes back of a shimmer of gauze, and imagine beauty that is just beyond the reach of one's hand; but Jack has been well bred, even if he has led a wild life as a sportsman, and he knows he must possess his soul in patience a little longer, when time will bring his revenge.

So he enters into conversation with the senior. To his surprise and gratification she speaks fair English, with a peculiarity of accent now and then that charms him. Eagerly she discusses each theme he advances, and almost before he knows it Jack is admitting to himself that Mercedes is a bright scholar.

Now and then Don Carlos joins in with some remark, and finally speaks of Jack having among his multitudinous sports enjoyed participating in a Mexican bull-fight. The ladies are interested at once, and Mercedes, perhaps thoughtlessly, declares that the bulls in Mexico are what they are in Spain, where they are bred for the purpose. Jack flushes a little under the thrust, but quietly says—

"The bulls we use out there are running wild on the prairies—great, fierce brutes, full of fire, and ready to charge Satan himself. I shall be better able to judge of the respective merits of the different breeds after I see your game here."

Then the conversation turns to the people present, and Jack notices that his companion seems to be interested in the members of the Turkish embassy, for her glance wanders that way. A dim suspicion enters Jack's mind that there may be a reason for the scowl of the pasha, but before he has time to fully turn this idea over in his mind something occurs.

There is a grand burst of music, followed by vivas from thousands of throats, "kerchiefs are waved, and hands clapped, while the eyes of the immense audience are fastened upon the saddest-strewn arena, empty no longer.

A number of gaudily attired men have appeared in the court—some mounted and others on foot—all nimble looking fellows, who seem capable of choosing instantly between a bull's horns and the board fence. A number of them bear the scars of previous battles, where the barrier was too far away, or the toro too speedy, but all are smiling and bowing now. The chulos are the fellows who irritate the bull, and divert his attention by scarlet cloaks when he is pursuing a companion too closely. Picadors on the horses are armed with lances, and the public expects them to prick the bull in the flanks, show dexterity in doing this, and avoiding his terrible rushes, and be exceedingly nimble at mounting the fence in case the short horns rip up the body of their steed. Then come banderilleros, whose duty it is to stir up the fury of the tired bull, and goad him to a state of frenzy, after which appears the executioner, the matador, who is to finish the scene with a brilliant stroke from his sword. He is the hero of the hour, while the mob has shouted itself hoarse up to this time in laughter and cheering, a death-like silence always falls over the whole amphitheatre as the bold matador awaits the mad charge of the furious brute.

All are present in a line, facing the high functionary, who represents the government, the captain-general of the province. To him they must make their obeisance, and a proper interchange of civilities then takes place, after which the official searches his pockets for the key of the toril, where the bulls are kept, and which he is now expected to throw down to the attending alcazula, who will at the proper time let the first bull out.

While the captain-general is thus engaged, and fifteen thousand anxious hearts await the feast that is soon to gladden their appetites, that singular American, Doctor Jack, spends his time in scrutinizing the famous matador, whose name, if not as illustrious as those of his old time predecessors Montes, Romero, and Castilleiras, still has a magic charm about it with the populace, whose idol he has been up to this hour.

The reason of this lies in the fact that as yet Pedro Vasquez has never met his match in the arena—no bull has avoided his fatal thrust. When that time comes—and it is liable to arrive at any hour—this same sickle audience that has shouted itself hoarse in his honour many a time will turn and rend him. He who lives by the sword must die by the sword—the plaudits of the multitude have been Pedro's staff of life, and they will be his doom.

Jack sees a remarkably clever figure that challenges his admiration, for he is not the man to disparage a rival, and yet there is a certain amount of braggadocha in the strut of the matador he does not like—it is a trait characteristic of the Spanish character, and can never be eradicated.

Somewhat to the surprise of the American, Pedro Vasquez walks over to the fence, vaults it with the ease of an accomplished gymnast, and then stands directly beneath the Turkish pasha, who leans over the railing, and enters into a warm conversation with the matador.

Each is a boîte de sômbra. Depend upon it, senior, we will witness this affair in comfort from the shade. I have a friend among the directors. You will sit next my niece at the tournament, and there have a chance to make our acquaintance."

"Your niece at this bloody business," exclaims the American, and then adds: "Oh! I forgot, it is your national game. Of course foreigners cannot understand such things. I, for one, fail to see how a young lady like to look upon such slaughter."

What if he, the cynical old bachelor, who has mapped out a life of sybaritic comfort and ease for his future, has finally met his fate, and at a bull-fight to the last place in all the world he would think of looking for the angel who might comfort him through life.

He remembers receiving something of a genuine thrill when he took the senior's little hand, and more than once wishes Mercedes would raise her veil, it is so tantalizing to see the flash of wondrous eyes back of a shimmer of gauze, and imagine beauty that is just beyond the reach of one's hand; but Jack has been well bred, even if he has led a wild life as a sportsman, and he knows he must possess his soul in patience a little longer, when time will bring his revenge.

So he enters into conversation with the senior. To his surprise and gratification she speaks fair English, with a peculiarity of accent now and then that charms him. Eagerly she discusses each theme he advances, and almost before he knows it Jack is admitting to himself that Mercedes is a bright scholar.

Now and then Don Carlos joins in with some remark, and finally speaks of Jack having among his multitudinous sports enjoyed participating in a Mexican bull-fight. The ladies are interested at once, and Mercedes, perhaps thoughtlessly, declares that the bulls in Mexico are what they are in Spain, where they are bred for the purpose. Jack flushes a little under the thrust, but quietly says—

"The bulls we use out there are running wild on the prairies—great, fierce brutes, full of fire, and ready to charge Satan himself. I shall be better able to judge of the respective merits of the different breeds after I see your game here."

Then the conversation turns to the people present, and Jack notices that his companion seems to be interested in the members of the Turkish embassy, for her glance wanders that way. A dim suspicion enters Jack's mind that there may be a reason for the scowl of the pasha, but before he has time to fully turn this idea over in his mind something occurs.

There is a grand burst of music, followed by vivas from thousands of throats, "kerchiefs are waved, and hands clapped, while the eyes of the immense audience are fastened upon the saddest-strewn arena, empty no longer.

A number of gaudily attired men have appeared in the court—some mounted and others on foot—all nimble looking fellows, who seem capable of choosing instantly between a bull's horns and the board fence. A number of them bear the scars of previous battles, where the barrier was too far away, or the toro too speedy, but all are smiling and bowing now. The chulos are the fellows who irritate the bull, and divert his attention by scarlet cloaks when he is pursuing a companion too closely. Picadors on the horses are armed with lances, and the public expects them to prick the bull in the flanks, show dexterity in doing this, and avoiding his terrible rushes, and be exceedingly nimble at mounting the fence in case the short horns rip up the body of their steed. Then come banderilleros, whose duty it is to stir up the fury of the tired bull, and goad him to a state of frenzy, after which appears the executioner, the matador, who is to finish the scene with a brilliant stroke from his sword. He is the hero of the hour, while the mob has shouted itself hoarse up to this time in laughter and cheering, a death-like silence always falls over the whole amphitheatre as the bold matador awaits the mad charge of the furious brute.

All are present in a line, facing the high functionary, who represents the government, the captain-general of the province. To him they must make their obeisance, and a proper interchange of civilities then takes place, after which the official searches his pockets for the key of the toril, where the bulls are kept, and which he is now expected to throw down to the attending alcazula, who will at the proper time let the first bull out.

While the captain-general is thus engaged, and fifteen thousand anxious hearts await the feast that is soon to gladden their appetites, that singular American, Doctor Jack, spends his time in scrutinizing the famous matador, whose name, if not as illustrious as those of his old time predecessors Montes, Romero, and Castilleiras, still has a magic charm about it with the populace, whose idol he has been up to this hour.

The reason of this lies in the fact that as yet Pedro Vasquez has never met his match in the arena—no bull has avoided his fatal thrust. When that time comes—and it is liable to arrive at any hour—this same sickle audience that has shouted itself hoarse in his honour many a time will turn and rend him. He who lives by the sword must die by the sword—the plaudits of the multitude have been Pedro's staff of life, and they will be his doom.

Jack sees a remarkably clever figure that challenges his admiration, for he is not the man to disparage a rival, and yet there is a certain amount of braggadocha in the strut of the matador he does not like—it is a trait characteristic of the Spanish character, and can never be eradicated.

Somewhat to the surprise of the American, Pedro Vasquez walks over to the fence, vaults it with the ease of an accomplished gymnast, and then stands directly beneath the Turkish pasha, who leans over the railing, and enters into a warm conversation with the matador.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 15th, '01

TO PROTECT THE NORTH.

DR. C. A. HODGETTS APPOINTED MEDICAL EXAMINER.

Will Guard Against the Invasion of Smallpox and Also see to the Enforcement of the New Sanitary Regulations.

In order to secure the observance of the recently adopted sanitary regulations, and to protect the newer portions of the province from the spread of smallpox, the government yesterday appointed Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, of Toronto, to the position of Medical Inspector for the unorganized districts of Ontario. The appointment takes effect at once, and Dr. Hodgetts left in the afternoon for Sudbury, where a case of smallpox had been reported. The necessity for such an official has been apparent for some time. There is a population of about 100,000 scattered over some 400 unorganized townships, extending from the Ottawa river to the Manitoba boundary, some 1,200 miles. This territory has a frontier of 6,000 miles of railway, lake and river, over which the population is distributed, and from which there is danger of contagion being brought in. To meet the conditions of the scattered population, the government recently adopted regulations for the protection of the health of the working in the lumber and mining camps, saw-mills, smelting works, or railway construction camps. To see that these regulations will be uniformly observed will be part of Dr. Hodgetts' duties. The danger from smallpox contagion is the greatest coming to the attention of the government, and the frequent arrival of workmen from across the line. In fact, cases are reported almost daily. The Provincial Secretary, Hon. Mr. Stratton, has also communicated with Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of the Interior, and the Dominion government in the proper protection of the frontier from this disease.

In appointing Dr. Hodgetts, a wise selection has been made. He has already had extensive experience in the control of smallpox, and his prompt and decisive action last winter did much to curb what threatened to be a most serious and widespread epidemic of smallpox.

LI HUNG CHANG'S WEALTH

Dead Statesman was Probably the Richest Man in the World

In an article on the "Six richest men in the world," published in the New York World in 1895, Li Hung Chang was made to head the list with the sum of $300,000,000, the second being Mr. John D. Rockefeller, with $180,000,000. The writer says: "As Viceroy of the Chinese Empire Li Hung Chang was for years in a position to accumulate wealth of every sort. With his five hundred millions he had the power of great empires and his numerous pawns shops, which are most profitable. In the district where he resides he is looked upon as a veritable god. Hundreds of slaves and servants wait upon him and except when he is called to court he is the owner of the time. Li Hung Chang is a self-made man. Rumor says that a large part of his fortune is invested in English consols and American railway securities. His fortune is said to be increasing at the rate of $50,000 per day. Li Hung Chang was the most interesting of all the rich men. While some rich men inherited their wealth, nearly all the others amassed theirs by simply devoting their lives entirely to it. But Li did neither. He built up his fortune and administered his own private financial matters while he administered the affairs of a nation.

Night Navigation Made Easy.

An important patent connected with St. Lawrence navigation has been issued and submitted to Mr. Thorne, Minister of Public Works, by whom it will be laid before the cabinet. The patent is designed to do away with the light-houses, buoys, and in fact the entire paraphernalia for night navigation between Montreal and Quebec, and substitute a submerged electric light system. The main idea is to sink an electric cable in the centre of the navigable channels with power transmitted from a power house at Montreal, and lines of colored lights at or above the water level each side of the channel. The lights on one side being of a different color to those on the other side. The lights will be supported by cork floats.

DOMESTIC HINTS.

—A bloodless person needs blood-making foods, not drugs.

—If a little salad oil is mixed with mustard for the table it is greatly improved.

—Cover sandwiches that are not to be served at once with a damp cloth and bowl.

—The dirtiest frying-pan will become clean if soaked five minutes in ammonia and water.

—According to assurance statistics, testotestosterone will expect seven years more life than druggists.

—Wrinkles are caused by worry, proper thinking and will power.

—Moth-infested articles should be saturated in naphtha or benzine. It injures nothing and kills the destroyer.

—On attending fever cases, or any sick persons, wash the mouth, nostrils and hands with vinegar on leaving the sick room.

—An eminent medical man gives it out that the high collars now worn by men and women produce cancer of the throat.

—It is beyond question (says a writer in a London paper) that artificial teeth are prolonging life, probably to an extent that would cause a surprise if it could be accurately determined.

—When peeling apples for douching or douching, put each into a basin of cold water with a little salt in it, as you cut it up. This will prevent the apples from getting brown and soft.

—When washing fine china do not use the water too hot, as it is this that causes the fine cracks to appear over the surface of the china. Water that is too hot for the hands is too hot for delicate china.

—Housekeepers will welcome a recent invention, the result of the ingenuity of a Berlin machinist. It is a pot which cannot boil over. By means of a perforated rim the overflowing fluid returns to the pot, which need not, of course, be watched.

WHERE THEY MISSED IT.

(Hamilton Times.)

There has been a great deal said and written about the Pan-American Exposition and its failure to pay expenses, but one of the chief causes contributing to the unfortunate financial result has not received sufficient attention. The management knew in advance that 100,000 publicists were almost entirely neglected, also it would not even. Wisdom said, advertise. Yet systematic and extensive advertising was utterly ignored. Press associations, telegraph companies and railway organizations were utilized, but the newspapers, the prime mediums of publicity, were almost entirely neglected. What they did was largely a matter of courtesy, yet it is not to be denied that but for the publicity secured by them the failure would have been even more disastrous than it has been. As the Philadelphia Record says, it is a closing study of the show and the management.

"Like one winking in the dark, the Exposition managers knew what they were doing, but by the same token, the American people, broadly speaking, knew nothing about the great affair."

The lesson in this for more than exposition managers. If you would prosper in business, use the newspapers.

Roberts and Buller.

The disposition being shown by some Canadian papers to blame Lord Roberts for the downfall of General Buller is thus regarded by the Toronto Telegram:

Whoever may or may not be to blame for the downfall of General Buller, the architect of his defeat certainly was not Lord Roberts.

When Gen. Buller was absolutely in the power of Lord Roberts he was treated with every consideration and left in a position to retrieve his misfortune by bulking large in the relief of Ladysmith, which was largely the logical result of British success in the Free State.

There is no proof that Lord Roberts ever harbored an ungenerous thought or uttered an ungenerous word regarding Gen. Buller, and the English public, in remembering Gen. Buller's virtues, should not forget the genius of good luck of the great soldier who first brought order out of chaos and turned defeat into victory in South Africa.

Rheumatism

No other disease makes one feel so old. It stiffens the joints, produces lameness, and makes every motion painful. It is sometimes so bad as wholly to disable, and it should never be neglected.

M. J. McDonald, Trenton, Ont., had it after a severe attack of the grip; Mrs. Hattie Turner, Bolivar, Mo., had it so severely she could not lift anything and could scarcely get up or down stairs; W. H. Shepard, Sandy Hook, Conn., was laid up with it, was cold even in July, and could not dress himself.

According to testimonials voluntarily given, these sufferers were permanently relieved, as others have been, by Hood's Sarsaparilla which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and builds up the whole system.

A NOTABLE SPEECH

Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Banquet of Manufacturers.

QUESTIONS OF RECIPROCITY

The Premier Reminds His Audience of the Time When Canada Was Sending Delegations to Washington, But He Would Not Be Surprised If in Time to Come It Would Be the Other Way On.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association discussed the tariff yesterday, and passed resolutions requesting the Government to impose the following duties:

All classes of finished woolen, worsted and knitted goods and carpets, 30 per cent. net.

Yarns, 20 per cent. net.

Ontario (specific), 60c. per 100 lbs.

Lithograph covers on package goods, 6c. per lb.

Increases on agricultural implements (not stated).

Folding boxes, 6c. per lb.

Shirts, collars, cuffs and blouses—ad valorem—same as paid on their new material, plus specific duty.

Shirts, collars, cuffs, 45c. per doz., shirts 10c. per doz., blouses 1c. per doz.

White pine, red (Norway) pine, hemlock, tamarac, spruce, Douglas fir, cedar, 2c. per thousand feet.

Shingles, 30c. per 1,000.

Laths, 20c. per 1,000.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected: President, Robert Monroe, the Canada Paint Company, Montreal; first vice-president, Cyrus A. Birge, the Canada Screw Company, Hamilton; Ontario vice-president, W. George Sheppard, Standard Soap Company, Toronto; Quebec vice-president, J. J. Mc Gill, the Canadian Rubber Company, Montreal; New Brunswick vice-president, C. J. Goss, the Albert Manufacturing Company, Hillsboro, N.B.; Manitoba vice-president, W. Thompson, the Ogilvie Milling Company, Winnipeg; Nova Scotia vice-president, J. Hendrie, the British Columbia Mills, Timber and Trading Company, Vancouver; treasurer, G. Booth, the Booth Copper Company, Toronto.

The Manufacturers' Association decided yesterday that Halifax should be the next place of meeting.

At the Banquet.

The banquet of the Manufacturers' Association last evening at the Windsor was a splendid success, 400 leading manufacturers of Canada being present, as were the Prime Minister, the leader of the Opposition, Lord Strathcona and Hon. Messrs. Fielding, Tarte and Patterson.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was received with enthusiastic cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs. He said: Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, it is not my good fortune to be a manufacturer. (Hear, hear.) I am but a simple and humble consumer. But it has been my good fortune for the last 25 years to see a great deal of the development of the manufacturing industries of Canada. For during 25 years and more it has been my privilege to be a member of the House of Commons of Canada. Twenty-five years is a long period in the life of a man; it is simply a dot in the life of a nation. But 25 years, whether it be in an individual life or in national life, is sure to develop a good many changes. I have seen the development of relations between Canada and the empire. I have seen with still greater interest the development of Canadian life. I have seen the ups and downs of politics. I have seen the surging rise and fall of party tide. I have served under Mr. Mackenzie. I have fought against Sir John Macdonald, and I have felt, as you all have felt, the loss of those two great men—one my chief leader, the other my friend. (Cheers.) But in these many changes and vicissitudes there is one thing which remained constant and unaltered. It is the devotion, if I may use the term, and I do use it advisedly—the devotion which all classes represented in the Canadian Parliament have ever bestowed and shown to the development of the industries of Canada.

When once these questions have been debated and crystallized into legislation you will agree with me that legislation should not be lightly disturbed. Tariffs are not permanent. In a country like Canada, susceptible of great developments, everything changes, everything progresses and the tariff, of course, must move with the times. But at the same time I have always felt, and you more than I must have felt also, that stability in the tariff is one of the securities of manufacturing industries. (Applause.) Of course I do not pretend that even the tariff which has been framed by my friend Mr. Fielding, the Minister of Finance, is absolutely perfect. But even though there be blemishes in it, I believe the manufacturers on the whole are pretty well satisfied with it.

Some cries of "No, no."

Sir Wilfrid: That only shows there is room for improvement. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) That only shows that there are some "spots on the sun," or in the tariff, but it does not prevent the orb from doing its beneficent work in the interest of Canada at large. (Cheers.)

What is wanted by the manufacturers, I assume, is the development of markets. The home market was supposed to be the best of all. Unfortunately the home market has not developed as we had reason to expect. The last census has been disappointing to all of us, but even in the face of the last census my heart is full of hope.

Larkin Committed for Trial.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Joseph Larkin was committed for trial in the Police Court yesterday for the alleged theft of the bag of gold, worth $350, from the Customs House last month. Several witnesses were examined.

Re-Elected Vice-Chancellor.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The first meeting of the new Senate of Toronto University was held last night. Mr. Justice Moss was re-elected vice-chancellor. Several degrees were conferred.

Too Rapid for Russia.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—"It is reported here," says a despatch from St. Petersburg to the Cologne Gazette, "that France and Russia have arrived at an agreement for common action with a view to the execution of reforms in Armenia and the European provinces of the Ottoman Empire guaranteed by the Sultan in the Berlin treaty. They propose to invite the signatory powers to meet in conference for this subject. It is expected here that all the powers will accept this invitation, but the conference could not well be held before spring."

In well-informed circles in St. Petersburg a fear is expressed that the present steps of France may force matters to develop so rapidly that Russia, despite the Czar's love of peace, may find herself driven in to an attitude of another kind in order to safeguard her own interests. Events in Turkey and the Balkans are regarded in political circles with great anxiety.

The Rev. Charles Gore, Canon of Westminster since 1894, has been appointed Bishop of Worcester.

St. Patrick's Society of Ottawa has invited Mr. John Redmond, M. P., to lecture in Ottawa. Mr. Redmond will be in Montreal on the 20th inst.

The capture of the Montreal whale by Alex. Sabourin of Louquell, a lucky thing for him. Louis Payette, a museum manager, paid him $800 for the monster.

The coroner's jury in the case of Miss Toner of Belleville, who was killed by being knocked down by bicyclist Pinkney in Toronto, returned a verdict of accidental death.

It is announced that Andrew Carnegie will give $100,000 to build and equip a technical college in Southern Ontario. The institution will probably be located at Galesburg, Counties of Roxburgh and Selkirk.

SQUARING WITH THE SULTAN.

French Marines Landed and Customs at Midhill Seized.

Paris, Nov. 8.—Admiral Gailard has landed marines on the island of Midhill and seized the customs at Midhill without resistance.

The French Government has received satisfactory replies from all the powers without exception, to its note explaining the measures taken against Turkey. An excellent impression has been created in official circles by the tone of the response of the United States, which is couched in the most friendly terms.

The Government is satisfied with the progress already achieved. The Sultan has promised to settle all monetary claims, and has offered guarantees which fall little short of those demanded. France, however, will insist on full guarantees, and also on the transfer of Turkey in the case of treaty rights before evacuating Midhill. No international complications are expected.

The Porte has given France authority to rebuild sixteen churches, convents and other institutions. Since the negotiations have been so successful it is understood other powers will discover claims against Turkey.

Sultan Gives Up.

Paris, Nov. 8.—The Greek Minister in Constantinople, according to a despatch to a Paris news agency from Athens has telegraphed to the Greek Government that the Porte has accepted all the demands of France. No appeal to Britain.

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—There is absolutely no foundation for the report that the Porte has demanded that Great Britain should protect Asiatic Turkey from French attack.

TOO RAPID FOR RUSSIA.

Course of France May Force Russia to Another Attitude.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—"It is reported here," says a despatch from St. Petersburg to the Cologne Gazette, "that France and Russia have arrived at an agreement for common action with a view to the execution of reforms in Armenia and the European provinces of the Ottoman Empire guaranteed by the Sultan in the Berlin treaty. The Sale of Butter

The Football (casablanca).

The boy stood on the football field, Whence all but him had fled; Th' roars' shouting echoed o'er The dying and the dead.

His hair hung down into his eyes— Such it was as was left— For sad to state, at one fell swoop, Of it he'd been bereft.

One arm hung limply at his side, And fluttered as he reeled; His teeth like snowflakes in the wind, Were scattered o'er the field.

His shirt was torn across the chest, His pants ripped at the knees; His shoes clung slyly to his feet, Like mistletoes to trees.

Yet beautiful and bright he stood, While all around him, black and drear, Were fragments of the centre rush, The half and quarter back.

The tackles on the goal posts hung; The guards were borne away In ambulances which were called Quite early in the fray.

And here and there lay a shoulder-blade, And ears on every side, With fingers, feet and locks of hair, All unidentified.

Oh still he stood amidst the wreck, But this his tongue could tell How bravely he engaged to speak, And give his college yell!

His father called him from the box, His mother from the stand, Yet ever nobly stood he there, A football in his hand.

The other side was lining up, With lucky looks and screams, "Come on," he mumbled, toothlessly, "I'll buck the entire team!"

They formed a flying wedge, and hurried The gallant lad on high, And when they downed him shoes and legs Were waving in the sky.

There came a burst of thunder sound, The boy—Oh, where was he? Ask the other team, that left With college chant and glee.

Ask of the other team, and learn: "He hasn't yet been seen. They don't expect to find him till 'They get some gasoline.'"

Sees Gain for Britain.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—An official of the Foreign Office said to a correspondent last night that he believed that Li Hung Chang's death would be Britain's gain. He added that the passing of the old Russophile statesman would give rise to a new generation of Chinese diplomats more favorable to foreign powers.

Brakeman Loses His Life.

Hamilton, Nov. 8.—A fatal accident occurred in the yard of the Stuart street station last night about 11 o'clock. Laps Want Automobiles.

Stockholm, Nov. 8.—The borough of Lickas in Lapland has asked government permission to arrange a regular automobile service to the nearest railway station. It is expected that communication may be established by means of the newly invented motor sleigh.

OLD TIME "CURE-ALLS."

Some Aged Recipes for Common Ills

The following "Useful Medicinal Recipes" taken from "The Self-Instructor," a volume published thirty-three years ago, may be of interest to our readers:

For a cough: Drink a pint of cold water lying down in bed. Or, make a hole through a lemon, and fill it with honey; roast it, and catch the juice; take a teaspoonful of this frequently.

For a consumption: Cold bathing has cured many deep consumptions. Take no food but new buttermilk churned in a bottle, and white bread. Or, boil two handfuls of sorrel in a pint of whey; strain it, and drink a glass three times a day. Or, turn a pint of skimmed milk with half a pint of small beer; boil in this whey about twenty ivy leaves, and two or three springs of hyssop; drink half over night, and the rest in the morning; do this, if needful, for two months daily—it has cured in desperate cases.

The asthma: Cut an ounce of stick licorice into slices, steep this in a quart of water four and twenty hours, and use it, when you are worse than usual, as you would drink, which has been known to give much ease. Or, take an ounce of quicksilver every morning, and a spoonful of aqua sulphurata, or fifteen drops of elixir of vitriol, in a large glass of spring water, at 5 in the evening. This has cured an inveterate asthma.

In any asthma the best drink is apple water; that is, boiling water poured on sliced apples.

A cancer in the breast of fifteen years' standing has been cured by frequently applying red poppy water, plantain, and rose water, mixed with honey of roses, afterward, Or, take horse spurs (a kind of warts that grow on the inside of horse's fore legs) and dry them by the fire until they will bend to powder; sift and infuse two drachms in a pint of ale; drink half a pint every six hours, new milk warm. It has cured many. For a cancer in any other part, apply red onions bruised.

To prevent bleeding at the nose: Drink very largely every morning and at plenty of raisins, or wash the temples, nose, and neck with vinegar.

The earache: Rub the ear hard for a quarter of an hour, or put in a round bit of onion, as hot as may be, or blow the smoke of tobacco strongly into it.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 15th, 1901

COMMUNICATIONS

An Observer's Point of View. (To the Editor of The Post.)

Dear Sir,—Permit me the use of your columns to present the following impressions to your readers—the citizens of the good town of Lindsay:

Strolling down along the many river wharves one bright afternoon in early fall, as is my wont occasionally, I was struck by the great number of craft of different kinds on the water. One large steamer lay at the city wharf, and a little further on a smaller one, although of no mean dimensions, than a large steamer heavily loaded with passengers and goods came gliding up the river, and almost at the same time I heard a whistle for the looks above. I continued my rambling toward some of the steamers, thinking that I would see the word "Lindsay" painted in large letters on the stern of each, but judge of my surprise when the first one that I came to hailed from Port Hope, but how it managed to come overland I could not make out. Passing on to the next, I there hoped to have better luck, but not so, for she owned to Peterboro as being the port from which she sailed, (another puzzle as to how she got here.) I hunted the number through, feeling sure that I would be rewarded by finding the name "Lindsay" on at least one of them, even Noyes's Creek being represented, but as far as they were concerned the name Lindsay never existed. Discouraged, I resolved to return home, and on my way, meeting a hearty-looking gentleman, who by his appearance I judged had commanded ships, I stopped him and inquired of him as to whether he had ever heard of a place called Lindsay. He answered that he had navigated those waters for over forty years, but had never seen the name on the river, although he understood that at one time there was a settlement somewhere in the neighborhood, but they would not adopt storm gutters in connection with their sewers and he presumed that they had died out, and if they had it served them right.

Seriously, is it not time that the name of our city appeared oftener, and also that we were waking up to our dangers and to our advantages and opportunities? I do not remember every having seen the name of our city in connection with any publication or even on the city properties, and a stranger might travel the city over from end to end, by land or water, and not know that he was passing through Lindsay.

The Kawartha Lakes are just beginning to be visited extensively, and there is no doubt but that they will grow in favor as they become better known. Lindsay is now the gateway city for those waters, and the north country. Can and will she hold this position? The proposed new railway will make great changes. It is everyone for self, and so with towns and cities, and with connections at home with the new railway, when completed, will the present splendid steamer service be continued from here? It does not seem reasonable that it would, and in case it should not, and none others take their place, then Lindsay will become a way station to the lakes. More—if the new railway should be completed from the north to Lindsay only, and said railway fall into the hands of our present railway system, in which case Lindsay would lose her chances of ever having a competing line. They and regular steamship connection with the lakes gone—where is she?

To sum up, there seems to be two things that we need, and will pay the city to look after, and one is to rush the railway through to Pontypool as quickly as possible, and and other is to get control of, or arrange for, a first-class modern steamer, with a view to her carrying or holding a controlling interest in her, and stipulating that she be named the City of Lindsay, of Lindsay, and also that she cannot be transferred to any firm or person antagonistic to our fair city. By these means we can hold not only what we have, but advance; without then we stand a first-class chance of being sidetracked by land and swamped by water. Make your choice, good people—Yours, etc.,

LAKEFIELD AND PETERBORO ELECTRIC ROAD.

The News Discusses the Effect It Might Have on the Village.

Referring to the proposition to extend the electric road to Lakefield the News last week says: "How this would affect Lakefield it is hard to conjecture. In some ways it would be of great service to the residents. The most important question to some minds is how it would affect our merchants. There is no gain-saying the fact that they would be confronted with competition from larger and stronger firms. The advent of such a line would make access to Peterboro trade much easier than it is at present. For our own part, however, we consider that so long as our merchants keep up their present efficient stocks and hold to their very reasonable prices they have nothing whatever to fear on this score."

REARING-PONDS FOR BASS.

A Convention for Restocking the Lake Next Year Now Under Consideration by Hon. Mr. Latchford.

In view of the success of the work of restocking the inland waters of Ontario with parent bass during the past season, the work will probably be carried on on a much larger scale next year. Hon. Mr. Latchford will, it is understood, ask the legislature for an increased appropriation for that purpose at the coming session. He has also under consideration the establishment of rearing ponds in the province, from which a supply of fish can readily be obtained at any season of the year. One of the difficulties now is in catching the bass for transplanting in the cool weather of the fall, which is more suitable for transportation, as they then take to deeper water. The rearing ponds, it is believed, would overcome this trouble.

The result of the season's work has convinced the officials of the department that they are working in the right direction, as the people more directly concerned have manifested a livelier interest in the welfare of the inland fisheries. The Muskoka district, to which the majority of the bass were taken, was visited by more American tourists than ever before, and the traffic will doubtless increase. A wealthy New Yorker, who is erecting a $100,000 cottage on the Rideau, is reported to have ventured the prophecy that in ten years hence 10,000 Americans would be seeking rest and recreation among the picturesque islands and along the shores of these beautiful waters.—Globe.

IN THE DAYS OF OLD.

How People's Habits Have Changed During a Generation.

Driving to a funeral in West Zorra on Friday, says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, a native of that township was musing on the change in the habits and customs of the people, as well as in the appearance of their farms and homes. "When I was a boy," said he, "I remember that whiskey, with crackers and cheese was as ordinary a thing as the religious services at a funeral and the minister was expected to ask a blessing on the repast. One funeral is very vivid in my mind. It was one of the last in which the late Rev. Donald McKenzie officiated. Whiskey was provided as well as crackers and cheese, and Mr. Mackenzie was requested to say grace. He was pointedly asked a blessing on the crackers and cheese, but not on the whiskey; and the following Sunday in his sermon he severely reprimanded his flock for the custom of providing liquor on such occasions. I don't remember ever seeing whiskey at a funeral (at least openly) since. Now there are few houses in Zorra where whiskey is kept and offered to visitors; but in those days the custom of offering to guests was all but universal. As to hotels, there is only one now in the township, and public opinion is strongly against it. I can recall at least seven houses in Zorra where the above will be read with some interest by our older citizens, who can recall the days when every rustic, logging bee, and almost every birth, marriage or death, was made an occasion for copious libations, when whiskey was almost as free as water and was usually taken in preference to that fluid. In those days the township roads were dotted with small grog shops, which were a constant temptation to those covitously inclined, and where many a man squandered or was cozened out of his farm by trying to hew out of the wilderness. Those were wild days, but they have passed. To-day liquor is sold only in Lindsay and some of the villages, and the tendency of the public mind is to still further restrict the traffic. Temperance is gaining by the only sure means—the education of the people.

The Street Gas Service.

The rolled steel plates for the Gas Co's gasometer and other tanks are now being loaded on the cars at St. Catharines, and when loaded here will be put together with all possible speed. The work on the mains is practically completed and the erection of the street pipes would be under way but for the non-arrival of some fittings. If the weather remains fine the company confidently hopes to be able to turn gas into the mains by Dec. 1st, the date agreed upon.

Obituary.

Many of the old settlers of the County will learn with regret of the death on Thursday last, Nov. 7th, of John Daniel, of Fenelon township. The deceased was for many years prominently identified with the affairs of the township, and for a number of terms represented the municipality in Victoria County Council as reeve. For a number of years he conducted a farm on the shore of Balsam Lake, and later on purchased lot 29, con. 5, where he died. He was born in Co. Kilkenny, Ireland, in 1822. The funeral took place Saturday to Fenelon Falls cemetery, and was largely attended by neighbors and old friends of the deceased from all points in the district. Col. Dineen and Mr. Wm. Grace, of this town, being among the number. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Wm. Farncombe, Church of England clergyman, Fenelon Falls.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. P. H. Robinson has resigned his position on the G.T.R. He will now devote his whole time to his farm. We are glad to report that Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hughes, who have been somewhat indisposed for the past couple of weeks, are able to be about once more.

Mr. John Quibel, who has secured a position on the railway at this point, moved his household effects into the village last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Stead and family moved their household goods to Leochlin last week, where Mr. Stead has secured a steady job with the Humberston Lumber Co.

We were gently reminded the other day that winter was approaching when we saw a carload of sleighs arrive at the station for Mr. J. Welch.

Many friends of Mr. D. Phenny will be glad to know that two of his children, who were dangerously ill with typhoid fever, are convalescent. A very enjoyable evening was passed at the residence of Mr. John Howard and last Thursday, when a number of young folk from Leochlin and Geleert had gathered during the evening. Mr. Howard proved himself to be a capital entertainer.

GOODERHAM.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
There has been no service in the Methodist church here since the Rev. Mr. Hopkins took his departure, which is a lapse of about four weeks' time, until last Sunday, when Rev. Mr. Mearns took the pulpit. We always have a large congregation here and we hope to have a weekly service, although during the absence of a pastor quite interesting meetings were carried on by a number of the church members and friends.

Hunters are still pouring in and we notice numbers taking their departure with apparently their share of the "extra-dry" "wood-pieces." We hope they enjoyed their outing sufficient to induce their return next year.

The evening of the 5th Nov. inst. was the scene of great excitement. The small boys of the village composed of the "extra-dry" "wood-pieces" composed of material which when set on fire, burned with rapidity and proved very lasting, while the insertion of combustibles caused deafening roars which were interspersed with shouts of victory.

Miss Naville, who has been teaching in Hadley's school, has closed her classes until next spring and has gone to her home in Toronto; also Miss Fee, who has been teaching near here, has closed her school and has gone to her home in Omeo. The two young ladies will be greatly missed from the church choir and social circles.

A number of our young people drove over to an Orange social at Humberston on Nov. 5th, and report a large crowd and a very enjoyable time.

Mr. J. J. Hunter's saw and shingle mill is still running at full blast, also his class mill, and the new house he is building is nearing completion.

Last Friday evening Mr. J. Staley, a farmer living a short distance from here, gave a taffy pull to which a large number of our young people were invited. The taffy, as well as the hospitality, was excellent, and the guests could not possibly fail to enjoy themselves and feel at home.

We expect a new blacksmith to commence business in R. C. Hadley's stand, and we hope he will give as good satisfaction as Mr. Hadley gave.

Mr. Barr and his daughter, Miss L. Barr, of Ironbridge, were guests of Mr. P. A. Barr yesterday.

THE DEER HUNT.

(Charlie Churner, in Toronto Star.)

A howl; a dog is on the scent; another dog joins in, and they are after me, I must leave the haunts I know so well. No more, perhaps, will I nibble the branches, the juicy branches, the juicy branches. No more, perhaps, will I listen to the music of the little rail singing on its way to the last lake, no more, perhaps, will I view my graceful form mirrored on the still water which holds the shadows of nature on its bosom; no more, perhaps, will I scent the breath of the morning, or rest in the welcome warmth of the November sun; no more, perhaps, no more.

For why? Because men love blood, and venison they say is good.

And where will I run? Anywhere, if I may but distance those cruel voices.

I cannot hear them well, but still I know they follow, for even now, from the faint distance hurried by the willing wind, I discern the howl of death.

Curse them!

What have I done to be hunted, to be driven a quarry to ignoble death?

Ah, yes, I forgot; the passion of men for blood, and venison they say is good.

So they leave their homes and the quiet of the happy cosy corner and come to my home, and despoil it, and despoil it with blood. They come, the minister from the pulpit, the hotelkeeper from the hotel, the doctor from his patient, the lawyer from his brief, the rich from his riches, the poor from his poverty, the politician from his hand-shaking, the farmer from his native soil, they come, a savage host, to wait and watch for me.

For venison is good, they say, and they love to kill.

And, now, I hear the hoarse, appalling, and as I run I know 'tis play to leave them, for I am fleet of foot, but it is the bullet I shrink from, the ping of the ball, the sound, the ravening hound, the cruel death.

Then they will hang me in front of a store, and men will poke my dead body and guess my age and weight, for they say venison is good and men must kill.

Would that my flesh were bitter; but even that would not avail against the passion for blood.

A shot!

I feel the bite of the ball, I see the blood, and the figure of a man rises from a hill.

I run, spurred by despair, trailing the leaves with red.

I know a lake, a little lake, perhaps I may reach it and shake the cruel warriors from my path.

Another shot!

It stuns in the distance and proclaims itself a miss, but I am nearing the lake, and perhaps I am safe. Again the voice of the rifle, and I fall to rise no more, and the hounds are closing on me; but a man approaches, and, dipping them off, draws a knife from his belt.

He comes quickly to me, and as I struggle he takes a fresh hold on the handle of that shining weapon; he lifts his arm, and it is the end, for the blade enters and is searching for my heart.

The passion for blood, the passion for blood.

Eastern Site for Fire Hall

COUNCIL UPHOLD AT SATURDAY NIGHT'S MEETING

Board of Trade and Aldermen Held a Conference, and the Result was Unanimity of Opinion.

In compliance with a decision arrived at after the public meeting Friday evening, a joint conference of the Council and Board of Trade took place Saturday evening to further discuss the question of the fire hall site and decide for or against the proposed removal to the park on the west side of the town hall.

The members of Council present were Mayor Inglis and Aldermen O'Reilly, Jackson, Hume and Robinson. Board of Trade: Messrs. W. Flavelle, R. J. McLaughlin, J. H. Scott, J. M. McLaughlin, R. B. Bryson, R. Kennedy, A. Horn, Alex. Fisher, A. D. Kitchener, E. C. Taylor, Arch. Sylvester.

Mayor Inglis briefly referred to the object of the conference, and invited expressions of opinion.

Mr. W. Flavelle pointed out that in the course of a short talk after the Friday night meeting a number of citizens had agreed that it would be wiser to change the present site or take any action likely to delay the construction of the fire hall. In common with very many others, he felt that after all the choice of location should be submitted to the people, and it was important that a decision should be arrived at which would facilitate operations.

Mr. Sylvester remarked that as Mr. Shumlin's main objection seemed to be the width of the lane, why not grant him four or five feet more? It would only mean the cost of excavating that much more earth.

Mr. Flavelle—"The discussion last night, and what I have heard since, has convinced me that there is a very strong feeling against the park site, and any attempt to place the hall there would be met by a very strong petition against it."

Mayor Inglis—"I think that I am right in saying that Mr. Sinclair is not entitled to an entrance from his car, yet we are allowing him to go out lane. If really the Council are granting him forever a permanent roadway free of cost, and I think that he should regard it as a very advantageous arrangement. Not every Council would deal so fairly by him."

Mr. Flavelle—"It may be that Mr. Sinclair is making a serious mistake in pressing for too much. What do you say, gentlemen, to Mr. Sylvester's suggestion that the lane be made 20 ft. wide?"

All citizens—"I don't think that the people would uphold us in giving away so much of their property."

The following resolution was then framed and read: "Moved by Mr. Flavelle, seconded by Mr. Sylvester, that this joint meeting of the Council and Board of Trade, after taking into consideration the recommendations of the Board of Trade, do hereby recommend that the Council do not act on the decision arrived at last year, and could not be blamed by anyone; they were not weather vane and should not change at every blast of public opinion. He would say—go ahead, gentlemen, and give us a fire hall as speedily as possible."

Mr. Robinson remarked that Mr. Flavelle had referred several times to the importance of having the site decided with all possible speed. He would like to know if it is expected that he would not have suggested the park site if Mr. Flavelle had not been the first to mention the matter. He was now willing to go with the majority.

Mr. R. Bryson said he was perhaps one of the first to object to the cutting up of the market space, and to suggest the south side park site, but he had no desire to press his views as he felt that the Council had considered the question very carefully.

Mr. Flavelle—"The Council have already been expanded by a resolution to go ahead—the Council had acted on the decision arrived at last year, and could not be blamed by anyone; they were not weather vane and should not change at every blast of public opinion. He would say—go ahead, gentlemen, and give us a fire hall as speedily as possible."

Mayor Inglis—"The south side was carefully considered, but the plot of land is too small; besides the location would be a very good one, being exposed to the prevailing north-west winds. The main objection applies to the park site."

Mr. E. C. Taylor said he would like to be able to settle the differences so as to please all concerned, but after reading the report of the proceedings which discussion he felt that it would be impossible to reach a compromise. He was carefully looking over the north-west location was picked on as the most desirable.

Mr. R. Kennedy said it would be a great mistake to change the site—arguments could be advanced for or against any site that might be chosen. It was claimed that the fire hall on the north-west side would be detrimental to Mr. Sinclair, but he (Kennedy) did not think so. At any rate, the goal of the greater number was the main consideration. The increase in fire rates was enormous, and the end was not yet, unless the town secured an up-to-date fire hall. There should not be an hour's delay in proceeding with the building.

Mr. Horn said that when he was a member of Council he had favored the south lot, but it was found to be too narrow. He had come to the conclusion that night to use his influence against the selection of the park site—he remembered the long and weary struggle to get the plot and weary struggle to get the plot fenced. Mr. Sinclair objected to the fenced plot of way across it. They claimed right of way across it. The absence of one of the Councilors there might be some objection to the north-west site, but it was the best available. The fire hall would shelter the market, which was a very cold spot in winter. There would be sufficient room left for market purposes, and his advice to the Council was—go ahead.

Mr. Scott said that, like Mr. Horn, he had favored the site on the south side and while he thought a strip of land could now be purchased at a fair figure, he was in favor of the Council adhering to the site already chosen. The business men were paying the cost of a hall in higher insurance rates, and the people were suffering a serious loss every year owing to the destruction of homes for lack of proper drying tower. If the agitation for a change of site had developed sooner he would have upheld the south site.

Mr. R. Kyles said he had carefully examined the north-east site during the day, and for the life of his soul did not see why Mr. Sinclair should object. It was not to be expected that the Council would be guided by the resolution passed at last night's meeting. There was no better place available than the north-east site. It was not fair for people to raise objections so late in the day.

Mr. Kitchener said that as there would undoubtedly be opposition to the west site, and it was most important that there should be no delay, he would say—stick to the present site, and push the work with all possible speed. He would oppose any action that would spoil the market park.

The motion was then submitted and was adopted unanimously.

Branchial affections, coughs and colds are cured by Pavy-Balmain. It has no equal. Ask promptly. Sore, hoarseness and cures. Manufactured by the proprietors of Perry Davis' Pain-Killer.

LOCAL BREVITIES

—A Christian Alliance people held two "at home" services in Willard Hall on Sunday afternoon and evening.

—Over 40 young women and girls are now employed daily at pea sorting in Stabler & Son's fancy pea warehouse.

—The Montreal whale has been sold for $500, which is cheap considering that about $10,000 worth of ammunition was fired at it.

The leaves are turning yellow.

The porch's charm has died and Sadie and her fellow Nov. 14th.

—Ordnance people are well satisfied with the attendance at the College Institute. There are 181 pupils on the roll, an average attendance 163.

—The members of Toronto W.C.T.U. have petitioned the Board of Health for permission to erect notices forbidding dog excretion on the walks. The request was acceded to.

—Farmers say that ground hogs have not yet gone to their retreat for the winter, and that snakes are on the move, and it is said both of these points to a longer period of fine fall weather.

—The Salvation Army band played a couple of sacred selections in front of the dwelling of Mr. Cornall, Victoria, on Sunday morning. The old gentleman is lying seriously ill, hence the kindly Christian attention.

—The Port Hope Old Boys' Association had a balance of $250 to the good, of which $200 was given to the manager, $100 to the town for tree planting, and $50 to the Port Hope Benevolent Association.

—The two George Goodwins—brother and son—of the town, are trying to get lost in the woods north of Haliburton. Their rifles are loaded for deer, but "bear" will not be given this go-by if any appear in sight.

—That was a sharp frost Sunday morning. The mercury went down 25 degrees below freezing point, and formed on shallow ponds and along the edges of the river in places. It was a warning to housewives to be on their toes.

—Mr. Power, the expert who is at present boring for natural gas at Port Hope, visited Peterboro the other day and thinks the signs are favorable. He offers to drill a well for $1,000, and thinks it would be necessary to bore 800 or 900 feet.

—Buffalo capitalists are pushing the negotiations for the purchase of the Port Hope street railway. The Council has removed the franchise, and it is likely the deal will go through. Extensions to Chemung Lakefield would add to Peterboro's local trade.

—The new owners of the Grand Hotel have decided to make repairs to the hall here instead of in Bobey's east wing. The work will be placed on the west end of the front of the hotel by Mr. Wm. Walters, who also will be allowed to remain all winter. It is whispered that when rebuilt, improved and embellished—the craft slips into the winter next spring and will bear the name "City of Lindsay." It hath a goodly sound.

SERIOUS RESULTS FOLLOW.

Cold, clammy hands and feet, and pains in the back result from impoverished blood. Serious consequences follow neglect. "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills make new, rich blood, tone up the system, add vitality to wasting tissues and strengthen weak nerves. Each box contains ten days' treatment. Price 25 cents, at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. Address: The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

—The truly home. Toronto, but been loaned by Mr. T. H. Danforth, formerly of the Grand Central Orillia.

—The high price of fuel is agitating the people of Ottawa, and the City Council will ask the legislature for power to establish a municipal fuel yard to break the combination among local dealers. If Lindsay prices do not take a drop some of our citizens will be burning their fences or the town sidewalks before spring.

—About twenty-five young people passed a pleasant evening in the dancing hall, Silver's block, Friday night. The light fantastic was tripped until twelve o'clock, when refreshments were served after which dancing was resumed until the very small hours of the morning. Mrs. Lillian Jackson furnished music for the occasion.

—A dramatic association has been organized in town by some street-tramp heroes, with Mr. Wilbert Watters as manager. "Hercules the Tramp" will go under rehearsal and be presented at several suburban places about the holiday season. There is but one tramp in the play, but there may be more later. Several of the members have musical ability, and some variety business will intersperse the drama.

—Mr. Doble, a Toronto man, who recently visited Minneapolis, was struck with the great improvement in the appearance of the city by the removal of all telegraph and electric wire poles from the streets. To strangers coming into Toronto, Mr. Doble thinks the forests of ugly poles along the principal streets must present a strange appearance. Even our own Kent-st. is not improved by the poles. He liberally pointed that almost every business man has a couple opposite his premises. Imagine the fine street appearance of old with the macadam, the poles removed, and the wires buried in conduits. "I would be grand."

One fact is better than ten hearsays. Ask Doctor Burgess, Suppl. Hospital for Insane, Montreal, where they have used it for years, for his opinion of "The D. & L." Mental Plaster. Get the genuine, made by Davis & Lawrence Co., Ltd.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Fashionable Imported Mantles at half price at Miss Mitchell's—wif.
—The Mantle is carrying large quantities of freight these days to Bobcaygeon merchants.
—Mr. W. Danon, druggist, hopes to be in possession of his premises, Miss's old stand, next week.
—Bring your bicycles and lawn mowers to W. Webster, William-st., when they need repairing.—dl.
Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.
—The gas posts are being erected and I'm not sure that they will be able to light up about the 28th inst.
—Photos of interior of St. Mary's church, with memo-rial decorations, can be purchased at Oliver's Studio, 128 Kent-st.—dl.
—Mr. P. D. McIlhargy shipped 90 hogs Wednesday to the Geo. Mathews Co., Peterboro. The price paid was $1.20 per 100 lbs. Mr. Mitchell, of Mayners, shipped a mixed load of cattle and sheep to Toronto.
—1,000 yards of 30-inch pure black d. cotton, American make; soft and even thread; lengths run from 10 to 20 yards. This is a 14c quality—we often find it at 30c per yard. Dundas & Flavell Bros.—dl.
—Parties desiring a first-class picture of the late Mr. Lambert can get them at E. Williamson's Art Gallery.—dl.
—The Str. Ogemah arrived Wednesday from Bobcaygeon with five acres of wood, and on the return trip took away nearly 2,000 bushels of flour, chop and feed ordered from the Flavell & Milling Co. by Bobcaygeon dealers for their winter trade.
—Four Mrs. Goodwins in one house is not an everyday occurrence, but such is the case at the residence of Mr. W. A. Goodwin, Cambridge-st. Mrs. Wright, Goodwin, of London; Mrs. Geo. Goodwin, of Wainfleet; and Mrs. Frank Goodwin, of Marine City, are at present guests of Mrs. W. A. Goodwin, along with sundry little Goodwins.
—Our town hunters appear to be having great luck this season. The Reeves-Nixon party at Long Lake, Huron, had ten deer last Friday. The Stuelter-Sadler party, Anson, had a tally of 13 on Thursday morning, and the McConnell-Miller party, at Kenosha Lake, north of Haliburton, had captured 17 up till Saturday. Venison will be a drug in the market when the hunters return.
—Capt. Maurice Lane, representing the M. M. Boylston Co., Bobcaygeon, returned on Tuesday from Peterboro and other points east in charge of a gang of phantoms, who will be sent to the company's limit near Gooderham. Capt. Lane expects to engage a number in Lindsay and district, but says that in spite of the high wages offered, men adapted for the lumber situation are hard to secure.
—If there is a more antiquated style of gas lamp in existence than the samples now being distributed along our streets, we would like to know it. We presume they are merely for temporary use this winter. On Kent-st. and William-st. to the station at least, we must have handsome gas posts of the latest design, and if the contract with the Gas Co. does not call for them, then it should be revised at once. Of course the rusty old gas posts match very nicely at present the posts of the G.N.W. Tel. Co. and the Light, Heat & Power Co., but we hope these corporations will follow the example of the Bell Telephone Co., and use the paint brush liberally next spring.
—In Tuesday's issue we stated that the Str. Ogemah had arrived in port. The item was a trifle premature—she was due to reach town before 6 o'clock, but met with a mishap. The craft left Bobcaygeon Monday morning with seven scows, but the gale on the lake was so severe that she had to be towed to a sheltered spot until Tuesday morning. The high wind continued, the boat and a couple of her consorts were driven on the stamps Tuesday afternoon soon after leaving the south cut, and were held there all night. The Mantle on her way up next morning spent half an hour in an endeavor to haul them off, and not succeeding, she returned to the scene after landing her passengers, when liberation was effected.

Sturgeon Point Notes.
—It is reported that another large eagle, similar to the one Dr. Allan killed a month ago, has been seen hovering around the Point.
—Mr. H. W. Spofford is still occupying Mr. Fisher's cottage. He says he won't leave while there is plenty of game and fish to be secured.
—Messrs. G. H. Hopkins, Hugh O'Leary and Dr. Simpson visited the Point last Saturday and occupied the gold mine for a few hours. They remained over Sunday, returning on Monday's boat.
Police Court Calendar.
—Lester McGillivray, d.d., was the way it looked on the police blotter, and it cost the young man $6.50 Monday a.m. to have the superfluous letters erased by Magistrate Steers.
—Messrs. Fred Holland and W. Thompson appeared before Police Magistrate Steers at the police court last Tuesday to answer to a charge of assaulting and striking each other the evening of Monday, Nov. 14th. They pleaded guilty and His Worship disposed of the case by imposing a fine of $5 and costs, or $8.25, on each.
—Messrs. Geo. Biras, Edward Baras, J. Kenny and W. Kenny boys whose ages range from eight to twelve years, pleaded guilty to a charge laid by Mr. A. M. Balon, G. T. R. passenger agent, of having on Oct. 28th last stolen a quantity of larger beer, candies, cakes, etc., from a freight car. The candies, cakes, etc., were the property of Mr. Cornelius Carls, merchant, Fenelon Falls. The magistrate gave the lads a severe lecture and said that only way to cure them of committing that kind of was to send them for a term to the Boys' Industrial School. The mothers of the boys were present and told the Magistrate that their husbands were guilty of having working, but would be back in a few days. On that account His Worship adjourned the cases for a week.

THE POST'S NEW STORY

"Doctor Jack" Commenced To-day.
"Arms and the Women," one of the best stories The Post has ever published, came to an end in last week's issue. It has been very highly commended by readers, and has helped our subscription list materially. It is followed in this issue by the first installment of "Doctor Jack," a splendid tale from the pen of St. George Rathbone, which cannot fail to please owing to its breezy, sprightly, "bit of resource and breadth of incident." The Post from now till 1st Jan. 1902, for $1.00. Subscribe now and get the first of this grand serial story.

WEDDING BELLS.

Staples-Calvert.

Tuesday evening, 12th, the home of Mr. Jos. Staples, esq., King-st., was the scene of a very pleasant event, when his eldest daughter, Mary, was united in matrimony to Mr. Walter Calvert, of Queen-st., town. The bride was dressed in cream satin and carried a charming bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Lillie, who carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. The groom, who is one of our up-to-date business men, was ably assisted by his cousin, Mr. R. Carscadden. The ceremony was performed by their pastor, Rev. A. J. Harvey Strike, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Mrs. Strike played the wedding march. The presents were simply beautiful, a number being sent by other friends who were not present. After the ceremony all were invited to the dining room to partake of a choice supper which was heartily enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Staples made an excellent host and hostess, and all spent a very enjoyable evening. The happy couple (Mr. and Mrs. W. Calvert) will reside on Caroline-st. Their many friends and the Post wish them a very long and prosperous journey through life.

AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

East Ward Stable Destroyed—Owner Slightly Burned While Trying to Extinguish the Blaze.

Mr. Jas. Healey, of 18 Colborne-st., east ward, is an early riser, and about 6 o'clock last Tuesday night he and his wife went to the stable to feed his cow. A ton of hay had been shoved into the upper part of the building Monday, and while Mr. Healey was moving his way through the mass a wisp of hay caught and unlocked the spring holding the bottom of the lantern in place. That was the beginning of trouble. The oil cup fell bottom up among the hay, and in a moment the wick had set the mass ablaze. Mr. Healey threw his coat over the lantern and endeavored to smother the flames, but without success; indeed, he remained almost too long, as he was severely burned on the left hand and had the side of his face scorched and blistered while making his escape downstairs. He managed to get his cow out of the stall before the smoke became too dense. In the meantime an alarm had been sent in by a neighbor, and the firemen were soon on the spot. The stable was beyond saving, but by playing upon the flames the danger to surrounding property was averted. In addition to the hay the stable contained some chop and roots, implements, etc. Mr. Healey estimates his loss at $150, while the insurance amounts to $80 only.

Hunters Return.

The following gentlemen, who have for the last ten days been hunting deer in the township of Havelock, passed through on their way to Toronto last Saturday: Messrs J. J. Gartshore, J. P. Rogers, L. J. Thomas, H. N. Gzowski and N. G. Gzowski. Mr. N. Gzowski, who has been out with this party, also returned to-day. Mr. Healey reports deer being plentiful, but the mild weather made successful hunting rather more difficult than usual. Ten fine deer were secured by the party.

Deacon; apples, three baskets, Mrs. J. McCarry; rhubarb, Mrs. Ray; rhubarb, Mrs. McCarthy; jar of fruit, biscuits and clothing, Mrs. Goulais; rhubarb, Mrs. Trew; cakes, Presbyterian church. E. E. Sharpe, secretary.

L. O. I. Notes.

The general meeting of the Literary took place last Friday evening, the main feature of which was a debate on "This better way to spend Halloween—indoors or out." Of course, it is hardly necessary to state who were victorious, for all know outdoors is the place that evening. Miss Kingsley gave an instrumental, which was well rendered and heartily received. Miss Dyer favored us with a reading which was greatly appreciated. A vocal solo was rendered by W. H. Stevens and was received with evident pleasure. Next Friday is the great mock trial, which all have been looking forward to for some time, and no doubt it will prove a great success. But far ahead of this is the coming of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, who are to be present at the College on Nov. 22nd. Just imagine this honor bestowed upon this College when the Duke has willingly consented to come all the way back to lecture in Lindsay, and we hope that our citizens will turn out in large numbers on this honor-drawn occasion. Don't forget—Nov. 22nd. E. L. W., cor. sec.

Morgan & Co., is made a Companion of the Bath.

KING EDWARD'S BIRTHDAY.

Emperor William Will Celebrate by a Luncheon.

London, Nov. 9.—Emperor William will celebrate King Edward's birthday today, Nov. 9, says the Berlin correspondent of The Times. By a luncheon party at Potsdam. The British Ambassador, the members of the British Embassy, and the Kaiser's Cabinet have been invited.

Newfoundland Celebrates.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 9.—A general celebration of the King's birthday will take place today. The Government will cable congratulations to His Majesty on his own behalf and on behalf of the people of the oldest colony of the British Crown.

Royal Salute on King's Birthday.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—The 3rd Montreal Field Battery will fire a royal salute today in honor of the King's birthday.

Raft Cook Drowned.

Kincardine, Nov. 9.—The schooner Eureka, loaded with lumber from Tawas for Lorain, Ohio, waterlogged and went to pieces yesterday evening about 20 miles from this place. The crew took to a raft, and after being buffeted about all night by strong westerly wind and upset frequently, reached the shore about 2 miles north of here at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The cook, who was the mate's wife, was drowned, and the others being much exhausted. The crew consisted of Capt. H. S. Hughes, Port Huron; Mate Arthur Biggar, Cheboygan; Fred Carpenter and James Sharkey, Alpena. Mrs. Biggar's body has been recovered.

A Battle With Convicts.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 9.—A telephone message was received from Leavenworth at 3.25 yesterday afternoon, to the effect that at Nortonville, 25 miles northwest of Leavenworth, five of the escaped convicts from the Leavenworth Penitentiary were surrounded and ordered to surrender. The convicts refused, and a battle ensued, during which three of the convicts were killed and the other two wounded, how seriously is not known.

Boys Played With Matches.

St. Thomas, Nov. 9.—About 5 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the extensive livery stables and residence of Thomas Horlop. Fortunately all the horses were saved and carriages got out without serious damage. A large quantity of hay, straw and other feed was destroyed. Loss on buildings and contents about $1,000, fully covered by insurance. The fire is said to have been caused by boys playing with matches.

Shot in Self-Defence.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—At the Assizes yesterday the jury found Edward W. Blanke, Whittemouth, not guilty of manslaughter for killing Radko, a neighbor farmer. Radko, in a quarrel on April 27, last, attacked Blanke with an ax, and the latter, after trying to run away, shot his assailant in self-defence, and at once gave himself up to the police.

No Strained Relations.

Santiago de Chile, Nov. 8.—In the Chilean Chamber of Deputies yesterday Senator Yanez, Minister of Foreign Affairs, declared that alarmist rumors regarding the relations between Chile and Argentina were absolutely without foundation, and the relations between the two states continued to be marked by a spirit of justice, equity and cordiality.

FINAL CROP REPORTS.

Digest of the Reports of 2,000 Correspondents From All Over the Province—Government Bulletin

Toronto, Nov. 9.—C. C. James, Secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, has issued the November crop report, containing final estimates of the yield, based on actual results returned by over 2,000 correspondents. The report shows as follows:

New Fall Wheat—A very considerable and well high universal decrease in the average.

Spring Wheat—Little was grown this year in the western part of the province, and where cultivated the crop was light.

Barley—Yield will be a good deal under the average.

Oats—Considerably below the average.

Rye—Generally fair, but light in grain.

Corn—A small yield.

Corn—Yield has been large.

Beans—On the whole a fairly good crop.

Buckwheat—About an average crop.

Clover Seed—Unusually good.

Tobacco—Growing is on the decline, but crop matured well.

Potatoes—Light yield in east, more favorable in west.

Turnips—Generally yielded well throughout the province.

Curtis—A good season.

Sugar Beets—Output good as regards bulk and quality.

Mangels—Yielded particularly well.

Flax—Yielded well in Lake Erie counties, further advanced elsewhere.

Fruit and Fruit Trees—Poor season for fruit, but trees generally in good condition.

Apples—A shortage everywhere.

Plums, pears and peaches a plentiful supply. Cherries and small fruits did fairly well. Grapes, in the main a good crop.

Pastures and Live Stock—In good condition in east, but comparatively bare in west. Live stock is unusually healthy. Cattle, in good average condition. Sheep, in good shape. Swine are being fed in large numbers. Fodder, supply ample for the winter.

Dairy—Season fair. Creamery and home-made butter, of good quality on the whole.

Threshing and Marketing—Active and work practically completed in many sections.

Bees and Honey—A good average season.

Poultry—General condition of all classes good.

Farm Improvements—Good progress in underdrainage. Wire fencing rapidly replacing rail and wood fences.

Labor and Wages—Supply was inadequate to meet the demand. Wages, general opinion that farmers cannot afford to pay more than at present. Domestic help, exceedingly scarce. Immigration generally suggested as remedy.

The following is a summary of the yield in the various crops: Fall wheat, 16,017,029, or 17.4 per acre; spring wheat, 5,498,751 bushels, or 15.4 per acre; barley, 16,761,076 bushels, or 26.3 per acre; oats, 73,334,490 bushels, of 22.5 per acre; rye, 2,547,313 bushels, or 16.1 per acre; peas, 10,088,173 bushels, or 16.7 per acre; buckwheat, 1,757,071 bushels, or 19.9 per acre; beans, 824,122 bushels, or 15.4 per acre; potatoes, 18,116,637 bushels, or 118 per acre, corn for husking (in the ear), 24,838,105 bushels, or 77 per acre; corn for silo and fodder (green), 2,359,514 tons, or 11.92 per acre; hay and clover, 4,632,317 tons, or 131 per acre.

WAR TO A SPEEDY END

British Cabinet Arranging for a Strenuous Effort.

FOUR THOUSAND CAVALRY TO GO

Boer Loss Was Heavy at Brakenlaagte—Forty-four Killed and One Hundred Wounded—Gen. Opperman Among the Dead—Arrival of Louis Botha With 600 Men Made Attack Harder to Repulse.

London, Nov. 8.—The meetings of the British Cabinet recently have been chiefly devoted to South Africa and to drawing up plans for more strenuous efforts to end the campaign. One of the immediate results will be the despatch of 4,000 cavalry from England to South Africa.

As Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, went Wednesday afternoon, directly from the Cabinet meeting to the scene of the presentation to Major-General Baden-Powell, the defender of Mafeking, of the sword of honor sent from Australia, the Secretary's declaration on that occasion may be accepted as the decision reached by the Cabinet, and as the Government's reply to recent suggestions that the Boers should be offered terms.

Presiding yesterday at the presentation of the sword of honor mentioned, Mr. Chamberlain said, now that the long struggle in South Africa was approaching its termination neither the country nor the Government had any right or wish to make any settlement which would render aid to the sacrifices which had been made.

Boers Lost 44.

London, Nov. 8.—Lord Kitchener's final supplementary details of the recent fight near Brakenlaagte, in the Transvaal, says: "The Boer loss was 44 killed, including General Opperman, and 100 wounded. The Boers got nothing beyond the guns. The Boer attack was easily repulsed until the arrival of Louis Botha with 600 men."

Cheers for Buller.

London, Nov. 8.—At Nottingham, yesterday, where Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, distributed a thousand war medals, he was repeatedly "booed," and cheers were raised for Gen. Buller. The recipients of the medals, at the luncheon subsequently given in their honor, repeatedly broke into cheers for Gen. Buller.

Seddon and the Boers.

Wellington, Nov. 8.—The possibility of Mr. Seddon being appointed Governor of the Orange River Colony is being seriously discussed in New Zealand. It is definitely announced that Mr. and Mrs. Seddon will attend the King's coronation.

Miss Hobbhouse Arrested.

London, Nov. 8.—The Daily News says: "We learn that Miss Hobbhouse and a lady companion have been arrested in South Africa, and presumably deported." Miss Hobbhouse was the first to agitate regarding the condition of the British concentration camps.

Medals for Correspondents.

London, Nov. 8.—A correspondent has called Lord Roberts' attention to public expressions of regret that the work of war correspondents in South Africa has not met with better recognition on the part of the government.

On behalf of the Commander-in-Chief, Lieut.-Col. H. Streetfield has replied that the subject of war medals being issued to the war correspondents is still under consideration.

Historic on the War.

London, Nov. 8.—In a three column letter to The Times, Sir William Vernon Harcourt indicates the Government's policy and conduct in the South African war, especially in the later stages. He declares that the banishment of Boers and the confiscation of the property are both unconstitutional and mischievous, and can be defended neither by the laws of war nor by civil law.

CHINKS GOT INTO BUFFALO.

But the Smuggler Acted Suspiciously and the Bunch Was Arrested.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—An attempt to smuggle Chinamen into this country from Canada was frustrated by the police at an early hour yesterday morning. While two patrolmen who were standing at Niagara street and Hotel avenue, they saw a carriage rapidly approaching them, and when the driver saw the patrolmen, he whipped up his horses. That excited their suspicions and they ordered the driver to stop. The door of the carriage was opened and in it were four Chinamen, huddled as far out of sight as they could get. The driver of the rig, who gave his name as Grant Householder, was taken in custody and ordered to proceed to the police station. He is charged with attempting to smuggle Chinamen in violation of the Exclusion Act.

It is supposed that the Chinamen were brought across the river from a point near Fort Erie, and the authorities are trying to locate the boat which brought them across the river. It is also believed that Householder had accomplices on this side of the river in the attempted smuggling.

Bubonic Plague Death.

Liverpool, Nov. 8.—A seven-year-old child, suffering from the bubonic plague, who was isolated a fortnight ago, died yesterday of exhaustion. The other patients under treatment here are out of danger.

The Plague at Hull.

Hull, Nov. 11.—There has been a suspicious death on board a steamship here. Indications seem to show that it was a case of bubonic plague.

Glasgow, Nov. 11.—The period of incubation since the last case of plague expired yesterday without any fresh cases being reported. The authorities consider that the disease has been stamped out. The crusade against rats continues.

RUSSIAN BARBARITY.

Prisoners Caged on Board Ship Like Wild Beasts.

Singapore, Nov. 7.—The Saigon (Tonkin) Journal "L'Opinion" appeals to humanity in regard to the sufferings of 700 Russian prisoners proceeding aboard the Volunteer Fleet vessel Yaroslav from Odessa to Vladivostok. The ship left Singapore on Sept. 7th. Owing to a breakdown she has been now over a month at Saigon. The prisoners are confined like wild beasts in three tiers of iron-barred cages on the lower decks. This month's portion of the voyage means a painful inferno below in the sweltering heat of the Saigon River. "L'Opinion" is indignant, and urges that the prisoners should be put ashore, under guard, to breathe the fresh air. It recalls the horrors of the "Middle Passage" and the Black Hole of Calcutta. It is impossible to ascertain the mortality.

Ferdinand Rescues Wounded.

Personally Directed Relief Measures at Scene of Railway Wreck.

Sofia, Nov. 8.—Prince Ferdinand, manifested his interest in his subjects yesterday, and did something to strengthen the kindly feeling between him and the nation in view of the reforms promised in the recent speech from the throne by personally directing the relief measures at the scene of a railway accident near this city. A passenger train had drawn up at a station about eight miles from Sofia, when a freight train ran into it. Three coaches were telescoped, five passengers were killed and nine dangerously injured, while twenty received more or less serious bruises. Prince Ferdinand was particularly active in rescuing the wounded from the wreck.

SELF-CONFESSED DEFAULTER.

Charles D. Thompson, Treasurer of Supreme Knights of Maccabees.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 8.—Chas. D. Thompson of this city, Supreme Finance Department of the Supreme Knights of the Maccabees, is a self-confessed defaulter in the sum of $57,000. The order is protected from loss by Thompson's security bond, however. The shortage is acknowledged in a letter to D. P. Markey, Supreme Commander of the Order.

Supreme Commander Markey says that Charles D. Thompson is bonded in sufficient surties to provide against any loss to the Maccabees.

The Defence of London.

London, Nov. 8.—During the past few weeks a careful survey has been made of the districts surrounding the metropolis with a view to strengthening the batteries and fortifications commanding the main London roads. Lord Roberts has personally inspected several of the positions, and the result of his recommendations, heavy modern guns are to be mounted in the place of the now obsolete muzzle-loading weapons along the entire range of the Surrey hills and in several commanding positions on the outskirts of North London.

Lineman Killed at Prescott.

Prescott, Nov. 3.—A sad accident occurred about 4.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon by which a man named Barney Fontain lost his life. The Town of Prescott is making some changes in the electric light system. Barney Fontain, who was a good line repairer, was working for the company, and, as he was in the act of pulling up the wire to make a connection, the current was turned on and the shock caused his death. He leaves a wife and several small children. An inquest is being held.

A Horrible Fate.

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 8.—In a collision between a switch engine and a double-header freight on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad here yesterday, three trainmen were killed. The dead: William Nichols, engineer; Harry Rosin, fireman; and John Tyner, switchman. The engineer and fireman of the switch engine were scalded to death. Switchman Tyner was standing on the tender and was torn to pieces.

Germany's Huge Deficit.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—The German Imperial deficit has heretofore been estimated at 100,000,000 marks ($15,000,000). It is now asserted that the budget will assume a deficit of 140,000,000 marks ($35,000,000) in view of the severe commercial crisis through which Germany is passing, the size of the deficit in the Imperial budget must be regarded as likely to entail very serious consequences.

Record Figures for Shortfroths.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Cicely, a short horn cow, recently of the Queen Victoria herd in England, was sold here yesterday for $5,000 to J. J. Robbins & Sons of Corvallis, Ind. The animal cost Queen Victoria $4,000 a few years ago. Twenty other cows and bulls realized an average price of $1,320. These are record figures for short horn cattle for the past 25 years.

The "King Quality" ladies' shoe with the "Twin turn sole" is the ideal of comfort and appearance.

RHEUMATISM

KINDS, CAUSE AND CURE.

Rheumatism of any kind is always attended with pain. There are in reality two causes, although they manifest themselves in five or six different forms of rheumatism. Muscular rheumatism, in which the muscles in different parts of the body are inflamed, swollen and painful; joint rheumatism, heart rheumatism and lumbago all have their origin in the blood. This indicates a kidney weakness, and demands a kidney treatment. Then sciatica, neuralgia and shooting pain rheumatism have its origin in a vitiated condition of the system of all accumulated uric acid. Then, too, System Tonic is the greatest tonic, blood, bone and tissue maker known. It will enrich the blood, feed and revive the starved nerves, thus making a cure for your rheumatism from whatever cause. Several hundred hopeless cases have already been cured, and more are being cured every day. Will you try it?

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold

A PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

A New One to Be Developed on Gen. Ian Hamilton's Arrival.

SPEECH BY LORD SALISBURY.

At the Lord Mayor's Banquet He Gave an Answer to Recent Criticism of the War—British Determination—Necessary to Remove a Menace to the British in South Africa.

London, Nov. 11.—In a letter dated October 23, the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Lord Kitchener and Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the Cape Premier, have arranged a scheme for the expulsion of the invaders from Cape Colony. A joint commission of Imperial and Colonial and military chiefs has been sitting here for some days past to draft a scheme.

"It is understood that this provides for the colony taking a large share in the future of the campaign and contributing largely towards its cost. Apparently a levy of loyalists en masse is the idea involved."

With a More Vigorous Plan. According to the Daily News, Major-General Ian Hamilton, who sailed Saturday for South Africa to take command of the Cape expedition, takes a plan, prepared in London, for a more vigorous campaign, with a view of ending the war before the coronation festivities begin.

Gen. Hamilton's appointment, says The Daily News, "is part of a plan arranged after the King's return from the continent about six weeks ago. Unless Lord Kitchener should decline to be complacent the new scheme is likely to develop about the beginning of the year."

A Clergyman's Appeal. Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Rev. S. G. H. Bland, in the Eastern Methodist Church yesterday, called upon the Church and press to urge the Government to send 5,000 Canadians to South Africa to help end the war. He described Britain as denuded of men and British statesmen as too proud to beg for help, but he said Canada should not go staggering about her prosperity and giving subsidies to railways while the Mother Country is carrying on a great struggle.

Death of Trooper Mackenzie. Ottawa, Nov. 11.—The following cable has been received at the Militia Department from the casualty department at Cape Town: "Please inform Mrs. Johanna Summerville, 473 East Queen street, Toronto, that 24,307 Trooper Robert William Mackenzie, Roberts' Horse, died of enteric fever, Standerton, Nov. 11."

Toronto, Nov. 11.—The deceased was only 22 years of age, and for two years previous to his departure for South Africa, on March 28, was a member of the Toronto Mounted Police. His young wife, married a week before his departure, is left destitute in this city, she having received no monetary support from her husband.

NOTES OF THE WAR. In commemoration of King Edward's birthday 16,000 trees were planted and sports were held in all the refugee camps of the Orange River Colony at Bloemfontein.

Gen. Ian Hamilton was seen off for Cape Town from London on Sunday by a great crush of friends. He will be Lord Kitchener's right-hand man there.

Cecil Rhodes is in Venice, but will return to London next month and sail for Cape Town early in January. His friends are confident that he will soon be playing an active part in the political re-organization of South Africa, and he has always had a talent for managing the Dutch element of Cape Colony.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

Premier of Britain Says Some Things to Comfort Those Who Are Worried About the Boer War.

New York, Nov. 11.—The 9th of November is always interesting because at the Lord Mayor's banquet the Prime Minister makes a speech which is a moment when Parliament has not been sitting for some time. Interest in the occasion Saturday night was far greater than usual, because the British people wished to hear what Lord Salisbury had to say on the war.

Besides the Prime Minister there were present the Right Hon. C. T. Ritchie, Home Secretary; the Earl of Selborne, First Lord of the Admiralty, and other members of the administration, and representatives of the House of Commons and the City. Lord Salisbury, in responding to the toast of "His Majesty's Ministers," said:

"In presence of the embarrassment and difficulties in which it may be thought that our country is standing, it is a matter for congratulation that the peace of the world has been on the whole so little disturbed, and that we have found such a kindly feeling and such a correct attitude on the part of all the powers with whom we have been in alliance. I venture to say that 50 years ago there would not have been the ease. It is a great improvement in our public habits of thought that we go through all these difficulties as a people, as a nation, as a Commonwealth, as a position as any of the Governments of Europe could have occupied. This has been no small advance."

"A slight cloud during the last few weeks settled over the eastern end of the Mediterranean, but it has passed away. That is a great achievement. I do not think that difficulties so great or opportunities so embarrassing would 50 years ago have left so light a mark upon the history of our time."

"There is really nothing upon which the eye can dwell of a serious nature about the sad and lamentable war that we are still pursuing in South Africa."

Deprecates Fatalism at Home.

The Premier deprecated the pessimism expressed by public men and the newspapers of the country, for which, he declared, he saw no cause. He thought that steady and unvarying progress toward a successful issue was absolutely secured. Undoubtedly, the war had not reached a conclusion as early as they had expected, but it was absurd to suppose that Great Britain would not be able to meet due and expected difficulties because after the capture of Pretoria guerrilla warfare was not immediately concluded. It would be discouraging if there were any grounds for believing that Great Britain was not now making sufficient progress.

The Prime Minister proceeded in his gravest tones: "There lies our difficulty. We cannot lay before you the whole circumstances of the case. We cannot tell you publicly all that is going on. We should be greatly neglecting our duty if we did. Yet it is only by some such revelation that we can give you full and entire satisfaction."

"All I can say is, and I am speaking the judgment of those who have the best opportunity for determining what is really going on, that we are making month by month and week by week sure and substantial progress."

His Answer to Criticism.

"The belief has been expressed in public that it is owing to some neglect, or lukewarmness on the part of the Government that the war has not been brought to an earlier conclusion. There is no doubt that guerrilla warfare has been considerably diminished, and we do not admit that any act or neglect on our part has had anything to do with the prolongation of the war. It is easy to say these things against us, but it is absolutely impossible to refute them without betraying our duty. We maintain that there is no ground for saying that the Government has in any degree neglected its duty, either in meeting the demands of the generals on the spot or in making other preparations necessary for the conduct of the war."

Lord Salisbury went on to say that he hoped that this declaration would induce a more confident feeling in the country. Turning to the critics of his Government, he complained that the indefinite nature of their charges made it impossible for the administration to defend itself.

His Offer to the Boers.

The position of the Government has not changed. It desired nothing better than bringing back these territories to the blessings of the British Empire, that they should enjoy immediately peace, freedom and civil rights, and, within the earliest opportunity which circumstances and time might permit, that they should enjoy the other blessings of self-government, which were enjoyed by all the British self-governing colonies. Continuing the remarks said: "We are met with the assertion by our opponents that they will accept nothing but independence. We reply to neighbors who attack us on two days' notice, who have evidently spent more than as many years in accumulating materials for a colossal war of independence, that this is inconsistent with our security."

British Determination.

That the trouble should never recur was, he believed, the deep resolve of the British people. However, much sacrifice and labor it required, he felt sure they would enthusiastically support their Government whatever happened. He was convinced that the country recognized how deeply the interests of the British Empire were bound up in carrying to a successful issue the undertaking which they had taken up and that they would not allow themselves to be any temporary difficulty or any discouragement to be drawn away from this result.

MOTHER SUES HER SON.

Defendant Is Premier Dunsuir—Surrender of Stock Demanded.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 11.—Mrs. R. Dunsuir, has begun an action against her son, the Hon. Jas. Dunsuir, Premier of British Columbia, for the delivery of about 5,000 shares in the R. Dunsuir Co., which controls an immense amount of property, including a railway, collieries and coasting steamers. Mother and son, it is said, have had many differences in the last few years. The shares mentioned in the suit are believed to be those left by the late Alexander Dunsuir, an other son, to his brother, and the action in no way affects the fortune left by the father to his wife or to his daughter, Edna Wallace Hopper, the actress.

Adrift for Two Days.

Thessalon, Nov. 11.—Mr. W. J. Harper, a pioneer resident of Cockburn Island, now residing at Thessalon, had a terrible experience last week. He was crossing from Thessalon to Little Cockburn in his sail boat, when a squall capsized the boat. He succeeded in getting upon the bottom of the boat, and for two days and two nights drifted helplessly, the water at times washing over him, and once he fell asleep and fell overboard, losing his hat. After more than 50 hours the boat touched Cranberry Island, and Mr. Harper crawled ashore. He lived on wintergreen berries, strawberry leaves, birch buds, etc., for several days, when a party of Indians coming from John's Island camped on Grant's Island, and found Mr. Harper almost exhausted. He has come through this terrible experience very well, and will soon be around as usual.

Lost With Crew of 50.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 11.—The steamer Queen Adelaide, which arrived yesterday morning from Kobe, Japan, brought news of the loss of a steamer Tsuruhiko Maru, a 2,000-ton vessel, which ran on the rocks off Goto Island on Oct. 11, and her crew of 50 were lost. The steamer was carrying coal from Kobe to Hong Kong.

QUIET BIRTHDAY.

No Official Observance of the Event in London.

London, Nov. 11.—The King spent his birthday at Sandringham with the Queen, the Prince and the Princess of Wales and the rest of the royal family. There has been no official observance of the day, with the exception of the customary salutes at Windsor, and at the naval and military headquarters, and the ringing of church bells.

The Lord Mayor's Show.

London, Nov. 11.—The first Lord Mayor's show of the present century and of the reign of King Edward took place on Saturday and was more than usually interesting with a number of new features. Special attention was paid to the colonies, which were represented by attractive cars.

Met in Honor of the King.

New York, Nov. 11.—To celebrate the birthday of King Edward VII, members of the various British societies in this city gathered at a banquet at Delmonico's Saturday night. The affair was held under the auspices of the British Schools and Universities Society. The guests numbered 90. It was a genuine Anglo-Saxon love feast.

Miss Stone's Captors.

Sofia, Nov. 11.—Information has been received here from Doubnitz that the band of brigands holding Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, called about a fortnight ago to the village of Sinacheve, and subsequently proceeded to the monastery of Kilo, but the movements of the troops compelled the brigands to flee toward the frontier, where they are now hiding. It is also asserted that the brigands have recently been treating Miss Stone with more severity, in order to exercise pressure and to compel a more ready acceptance of their conditions.

Took His Life.

Fonthill, Nov. 9.—William Tice of Ridgeville, Welland County, Ont., who has been in poor health for the past year, took his own life in a fit of despondency yesterday. Deceased left his home soon after breakfast, leaving a note on the table which was shortly after found by his sister, intimating that they would find him in Hais's bush. Alarmed by this, search was at once made, resulting in the discovery of his body with two bullet wounds in his head, his hand still grasping a 32-calibre revolver, three chambers of which were empty and two loaded. Deceased was unconscious when found. His body was removed to his brother's residence close by, where he expired shortly after. Deceased was a son of the late Israel Tice, 38 years of age and unmarried.

Sank in the Mud.

Sunderland, Ont., Nov. 9.—J. H. Glendinning of J. H. Glendinning & Co., hardware merchants, was drowned in Lake Seager yesterday. He was out duck shooting, and the recoil of his gun capsized his boat, upsetting him into shallow water, covering very deep mud, in which he stuck fast. His cries attracted the McLean boys, who came in small canoes, but were unable to render him any assistance, owing to the depth to which he sank in the mud. The boys called down their father, who, with Mr. King, went in a punt and drew Mr. Glendinning out of the mud, but owing to the long exposure in the cold water, he expired about ten minutes after he was taken into the punt. He leaves a widow and one child to mourn his loss.

Fireman Injured in Collision.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—An eastbound C.P.R. train of beef collided with several empty cars near Guelph Junction yesterday, and in the collision, Joseph Trendle, the fireman, who lives at 127 Dundas street, Toronto Junction, had his hip and leg badly bruised. He was brought to the city and removed to the General Hospital.

Railroad Men's Backache.

Men who work on the railroad whether in the capacity of engineers, firemen, machinists or track men, find that the heavy work they do and the exposure to change of weather and temperature very hard on their back and kidneys.

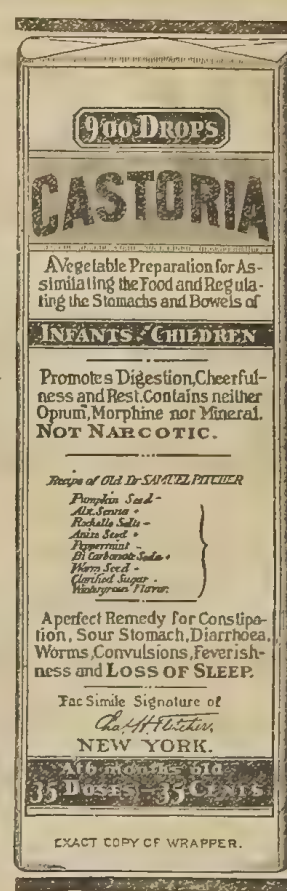

There are few railroadmen who do not complain of kidney trouble in some form.

Dr. Piche's Backache Kidney Tablets have proved themselves the greatest benefactors of all classes of railroad men. They give ease to the aching, sore back, clear up the urine, relieve the scalding and burning, and impart new life and vitality to the urinary organs.

PLASTERS NO GOOD.

Mrs. Mary Wilson, living on Albert Street, Sarnia, Ont., has confidence in Dr. Piche's Backache Kidney Tablets. Her son George, employed as a machinist on the Grand Trunk R.R., has been cured of lumbago by using them. Mrs. Wilson said: "Dr. Piche's Backache Kidney Tablets that I brought my son from Geary's drug store has cured him of that constant pain and lameness in the back that caused him the greatest misery. He had tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing gave him the permanent relief obtained from these Tablets. The whole difficulty has quite disappeared and with it the accompanying weakness and lack of energy. He has no headaches nor kidney trouble, but is enjoying perfect health. I can honestly recommend these Tablets to anyone having any trouble with their backs."

Dr. Piche's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50c. a box, at all druggists or by mail, The Dr. Zina Pichette Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Business Proposition.

We offer you a better investment than Government Bonds.

Better for three reasons.

1st.—Canada Life 5 per cent. Gold Bonds yield a much higher rate of interest than Government Bonds.

2nd.—They are paid for by instalments—thus placed within the reach of men without capital.

3rd.—They are insured. That is, should the investor die after paying only one instalment on his bonds, all his future payments to the Company would be immediately cancelled and the benefits of his investment would at once become available.

Add to all these advantages the very material one that the investor or shares in the surplus earnings of this leading Company, and you have an opportunity for safe and profitable investment rarely equalled. A handsome booklet, giving a full explanation, will be sent on request.

CAVALRY OF CANADA

British War Office Finds Dominion's Offer Acceptable.

A STRONG CONTINGENT TO GO

Female Teachers to Be Sent From Britain to Teach Boer Children in the Concentration Camps—Simple Rudiments and Singing the Program—Degeneracy of the Dutch Anti-British Plan.

London, Nov. 7.—The British war office, it is understood, will accept Canada's offer of a strong cavalry contingent for service in South Africa.

To Go to Jamaica. Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 7.—The Twentieth Battery of Artillery, now at Halifax, has been ordered to proceed to Jamaica next month, to relieve the Twenty-second Battery, now here, which is under orders to embark for South Africa with the Leinster Regiment.

To Teach Boer Children. London, Nov. 7.—Following the recent outcry against the treatment of the children in the South African concentration camps comes the advertisement, inserted by the Board of Education in yesterday morning's papers, for female teachers to go to the camps in order to teach the children simple rudiments and singing.

Dutch Anti-British Plan. London, Nov. 7.—The Brussels correspondent of The Times says the proposed boycott of British commerce has degenerated in Holland into a simple manifestation of Socialism against capital. Many who would otherwise sympathize with the movement detest Socialism and therefore withhold their support.

AN EARLY RELEASE.

Consul-General Dickinson Receives a Letter From Miss Stone.

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—The officials of the United States legation here have received news, through Cal here have received news through Cal here, that indicates the early release of the captives in the hands of the brigands. On Oct. 29, Miss Stone and Madame Teika were both well.

Letter From Miss Stone.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The State Department received yesterday a cablegram from Consul-General Dickinson at Constantinople saying that he had received a letter from Miss Stone, the missionary held by brigands for ransom, dated Oct. 29.

Looking to Canada.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—Next Thursday the Boards of Trade of a large number of the leading cities of the United States will have representatives in Washington to call upon the President and solicit his interest in the matter of closer trade relations between the United States and Canada. The intention is to have him incorporate in his message to Congress a strong recommendation for such measures as will make possible a fair trade policy towards Canada. C. H. Keep, former secretary of Buffalo Merchants' Exchange, will be the delegate from Buffalo.

Mail Boat Beached.

London, Nov. 8.—Yesterday the southern and eastern coasts were enveloped in a denser mantle than before. The Dutch mail boat, Koening in Rogent, collided with the British third-class cruiser Proserpine, off Sheerness, at midnight. The passengers and mails were transferred to the Proserpine, and the mail boat was beached.

Brother Kills Brother.

Tweed, Ont., Nov. 11.—About noon Saturday two young boys, sons of Jacob Deline, a farmer, living about four miles north of here, were playing with a shot-gun, when it was accidentally discharged while in the hands of the oldest boy. The shot entered his brother's neck, killing him almost instantly.

SCHLEY COURT OVER.

Admiral Devey and His Associates Considering the Verdict.

Washington, Nov. 8.—After sittings covering 40 days the Schley Court of Inquiry concluded yesterday with the address of Captain Lamy, judge advocate. The speech of Captain Lamy was, in the main, an analysis of testimony, but occasionally a conclusion was drawn and frequently there was criticism of the course pursued by Admiral Schley. He said he did not believe, nor did he claim, from the evidence, that personal misconduct or cowardice was exhibited by Admiral Schley, but in some of his movements he exhibited unsteadiness in purpose and failure to obey orders.

Canadian Schooner Wrecked.

Orleans, Mass., Nov. 8.—The large British schooner John S. Parker of St. John, N.B., bound from that city for a sound port with a cargo of lumber, struck on the bar off here during a heavy northeast gale yesterday morning and was wrecked. Captain Ernest and his crew of five men were rescued in the breeches buoy by the Orleans life saving crew after a gallant struggle.

A Verdict of Not Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The trial of Dr. Stephen B. Pollard and Mrs. Julia Thompson on a charge of performing a criminal operation upon Ada Rose Horne was concluded in the Criminal Assizes at 5.30 o'clock last evening, when the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. The prisoners were discharged by Mr. Justice Ferguson, who is presiding over the court this week. The verdict was not unexpected, after Miss Horne, the Crown's chief witness, had given her evidence, and had made many important admissions favorable to the defense. The young woman, who was in court when the verdict was announced, seemed pleased with the outcome of the trial. The jury occupied one hour and twenty minutes in arriving at the verdict.

Student Shot.

Grenfell, Man., Nov. 9.—A fatal shooting accident occurred here Thursday. Paul Dushe, eldest son of the late Dr. Bushe, was driving with his brother, having a loaded gun beside them, when he was killed. The killing of the rig caused the gun to be accidentally discharged, and the charge entered the lower part of the face and passed upwards into the skull of the older brother. There is little or no hope of his recovery.

Order Generally Obeyed.

Denver, Col., Nov. 9.—Advices received by Grand Master F. E. Hawley of the Switchmen's Union of America, who is in charge of the strike on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, called into effect late Thursday afternoon, indicate that the strike order has been obeyed by every switchman employed on the Rio Grande system, numbering 235 men.

Preparing for the Coronation.

London, Nov. 11.—Preparations for the coronation are advancing rapidly. It is probable that there will be the most representative assemblage of the reigning houses of Europe known for a generation. The German Emperor will be present, and the Emperor of Austria, the Kings of Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Portugal and Denmark have accepted invitations, according to current reports. The Car has been urged to visit England in June, but he is not likely to join in the coronation festivities. The royal guests will arrive in London a fortnight before the coronation, and several hotels will be reserved for them since they cannot be accommodated in palaces.

Oxford Stroke Case.

London, Nov. 11.—The death of the age of 21 of Mr. Culme-Seymour, the stroke on in last year's Oxford University boat, has reopened for discussion as to whether the severity of the strain of university rowing is not too great for many young men, who are perfectly free from organic weakness and, are passed as fit by the doctors. In the last few days Messrs. Balfour, Heywood-Lonsdale, Stretch, Cotton, Poole and Wright, all young men who have rowed either in the Oxford or Cambridge eights, have succumbed quickly to illness within a few days of leaving their university. Mr. Culme-Seymour succumbed to pleurisy.

BOLD BURGLARS AT WORK

VISITED LITTLE BRITAIN AND VALENTIA LAST TUESDAY.

A Rich Haul Made at Jenkins' Hotel and Money and Stamps Taken from the Valentia Post Office.
There was consternation among the good people of Little Britain and Valentia last Tuesday when it was learned that during the still hours of the night, morning burglars had visited both of these little hamlets and had not gone away empty handed.

Mr. Joseph Jenkins, proprietor of the hotel at Little Britain, discovered traces of intruders as soon as he came downstairs this morning, the door leading into the bar-room being open. On investigating he found that the till had been pried open and that he was minus a sum of $250, received at a late hour the previous evening in payment of a loan, in addition to $10 or $15 in small bills and silver.

Mr. Jenkins suspects that a stranger who spent some time about the hotel last evening was acting as a spy, and that the robbery was the work of a gang of thieves who are working about the country. A vehicle was heard going south at an early hour this morning, and in all probability it contained the men wanted.

Postmaster Wm. Sargent, of Valentia, is also a sufferer, and thinks the gang stopped long enough in their flight to pay him a most unwelcome visit. He mourns the loss of $15 in cash and $13 worth of stamps. No letters were taken.

Chief Nelson was informed of the burglaries by telephone about 10 o'clock to-day, and sent cards at once to the police of the district giving a description of the strange guest seen at Jenkins' hotel, and urging the arrest of any suspicious-looking parties. The description as given to the Chief is as follows: "Man about 45 or 50 years of age, 5ft. 10 in., sandy complexion, full beard and mustache, with a little shaven off under lip, beard turning grey, red nose, dark eyes and dark hair, coat, light colored soft felt hat."

COMMUNICATIONS

In imitation of a Cold Work.
(To the Editor of The Post.)

Dear Sir,—Kindly insert the accompanying statement of the work among the lumber camps in Ontario. I shall be pleased to receive and transmit any books and magazines. The local Union of Christian Endeavor have a committee at work in the Cambridge-st. Methodist church, the Queen-st. Methodist church and the Baptist church. I trust some one will be appointed in the other churches to co-operate in this matter.—Yours, truly, E. A. HARDY.

The Reading Camp Movement Among the Lumbermen of Ontario.

The Situation.—Each winter sees the establishment in our province of about 500 lumber camps. These camps average about 70 men each. In all, an army of 35,000 men spend their winter in the woods, away from civilization and its refining and restraining influences.

Two significant facts must be noted—first, that the great majority of these lumbermen are not 21 years of age; second, that many are illiterate.

The Appeal.—Our appeal to you is to help in the matter of providing reading matter for these men. The lumbermen and the friends of this movement are providing reading camps (i.e. libraries or houses for reading, recreation and teaching purposes), in about 35 camps. Some fifteen libraries have been already provided. We are appealing now for the other 20. You will see that we are only trying to get a good start this year, hoping to broaden our work so that by government and private effort every camp may be ultimately provided for.

What We Want You to Do.—By a library we mean a collection of say 50 books, and as many more as possible. Books that are readable—fiction, biography, travel, adventure, especially books of good condition. Gather what books you can of this sort, but then secretly add any magazines, such as McClure's, Harper's, Century, Strand, etc., and send them to a reading camp, the address of which will be furnished by the Librarian of the movement, Mr. E. A. Hardy, Lindsay. Please prepay the freight if you can; if not, we will do that.

A Fitzpatrick, Naira Centre, Central Ont. Superintendent. J. W. Bell, Carleton Place, Ont. Treasurer. E. A. Hardy, Lindsay, Ont., Librarian.

THINK NAVIGATION IS OVER.

Both the Upper and Lower Channels are Blocked with Thick Ice.

The Str. Ogemah took a huge cargo of freight to Bobcaygeon Monday, and as not a package was left behind the boat did not make a trip Tuesday. Mr. Boyd telephoned Express Agent Wilder next day that an attempt would be made to force a passage that afternoon for the last time, but the effort was unsuccessful, and it is thought likely that our citizens have heard that steamer's whistle for the last time this season.

The Str. Stranger, of Port Perry, which has been in port for a few days waiting for mild weather in order to get home, made an attempt Monday to open up the upper channel, but was compelled to return after passing through the Ops Swing bridge.

LITTLE BRITAIN.
(From Our Own Correspondent.)
A very bad accident occurred to Stuart Perrin, the 7-year-old son of Wesley Perrin on Sunday evening last. He was leading one of the horses in from watering, his feet being ahead with the other one, and while jerking it to make it keep its head down, the horse turned and kicked him, knocking him down and stunning him. His father picked him up and carried him into the house, but he did not seem to be hurt very bad, and improved nicely on Monday, but on Monday night concussion of the brain set in and caused convulsions, from which he died.

Our hotel keeper, Mr. J. Jenkins, had the misfortune to lose $275 on Monday evening last, someone having the audacity to enter his dwelling during the night through the bar-room window. Close by was his till containing the money. The sum had been paid him by his tenant only a few days before. Careful to say, Mr. Suggart's tolls and post office at Valentia, were entered the same night and about $30 worth taken.

Mr. H. Detherell, who is sick with typhoid fever, is doing nicely and will soon be out again.

Mr. J. Glenny is quite ill, but a speedy recovery is looked for.

Mrs. T. Paley has erected a new stone wall under her house, making it a great deal more attractive.

The deer hunters are back again, and had very good luck. Mr. E. P. Dillman shooting two, Lorenzo Davidson two, S. Rogers one, S. Sutton two, S. Culbert one.

The death of Mrs. A. McCall, daughter of Mrs. J. Woodidge, called several of our citizens—relatives—away to attend the funeral, namely, Mr. J. Martin and family, Mr. J. Woodridge and family, and several others.

Mr. J. Rogers is still making more improvements by erecting a new wire fence in front of his place.

Hear Mr. J. H. Cameron, the great and delightful entertainer, in Little Britain on the evening of Nov. 27th. He will be assisted by the best local talent, and the concert is under the auspices of the Public Library.

GOOD HEAD AND CAP TO MATCH.

Driver O'Neill, of the Fire Department, Made Secure Against a Cold Snap.

Soon after 7 o'clock Tuesday night, visitors began to arrive at the fire hall, and as the crowd grew in numbers Driver O'Neill heaved another four-foot log into the shanty heater and fell to wondering what was trump.

When the gathering had assumed formidable proportions, Mr. Jas. H. Lennon was asked to take the chair (the high seat of the hose wagon), and after being "boosted" into his lofty perch, he called the meeting to order by pressing the alarm gong. The signal was answered by Mr. Herb. Middleton, who struck an easy attitude while he read an address, the gist of which was that Mr. Thos. O'Neill, driver of the fire team, is held to be a very decent chap by all who know him, that what he does not know about horses isn't worth bothering about, that he is a faithful and deserving town employee and as a 1 cucher player, and that if his popularity continues to grow he will some sweet day be nominated for mayor. And the hearers applauded the sentiments vociferously.

At the proper moment "Dr." A. Devine Mallin stepped forward and with true Chesterfieldian grace presented Mr. O'Neill with a costly otter cap, adding in a casual way that he deserved a whole suit.

When Tom began to hunt for words with which to express his surprise and gratitude, he found they were as scarce as hydrant wrenches, but he managed the trick, and successfully, too, as the thunders of applause shook the old building and loosened a shingle tacked over a hole in the roof.

Speeches were then made by Chief Reesor, J. H. Lennon, T. Blackwell and other stalwarts, and a song by Dr. Mallin filled the cup of joy to the brim. The liveliest series of anchor games ever witnessed in Victoria County wound up the evening's fun.

CAMBRAY.
(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Part of the celebration of Thanksgiving day (Thursday, Nov. 28th), at Cambray will consist of a social given by the Ladies' Aid Society in the Methodist church in the evening. Cambray brass band will be in attendance. Doors open at 7; musical and literary concert will commence at 7.30, after which the ladies will serve refreshments in the basement of the church. Admission, 20c., 15c. for children. The public are cordially invited.—wif.

NORLAND.
(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mr. Will. Bell, who has been ill for some time with typhoid fever, was improving quite rapidly until Friday, when he had the misfortune to get a relapse. He is doing as well as can be expected under the conditions.

Mr. Jacobs is improving from a serious illness.

Rev. H. E. Curtis is visiting friends near Port Hope.

Rev. Joseph Munt, of Kilmount, will conduct services in the Methodist church, next Sunday in the absence of the pastor.

Mr. Jas. A. Wakelin raised a fine barn 30x35 on Saturday last.

The boys who were away hunting returned on Friday with two apiece, all the law allowed.

Mr. G. W. Allicy expects to ship about twelve hundred turkeys on Thursday next to Mr. Flavelle, of Lindsay.

WOODVILLE
(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Prices of all farm produce are on the rise and farmers are hesitating as to the advisability of selling just now, which causes a drag in the market of local places.

Augh Wilson, of Canbyville, was in town the first of the week.

Mrs. McDuffie has been ill for some days but is now improving nicely.

M. E. Vickery has given up the contract for carrying the mail, and intends going to Toronto about the 1st of December.

A. E. Staback is in attendance at County Council this week.

An "At Home" by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, held in the Presbyterian church Thursday night, was a grand success and was well attended. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. J. McD. Duncan and Rev. Mr. Martin, of Canbyville. The musical program was conducted by local talent of Beaverton, Canbyville and Woodville.

J. M. Lawson is again the mail contractor between here and Glenora.

The prospects for a skating rink for the coming season are said to be fairly good.

Peter Brown, auctioneer, Oakwood, was in town Wednesday.

The trade in coal, wood and lumber is brisk just now, and the prices good.

Arch Campbell is so busy at present that the mill has been running nights to keep up with the increasing trade.

Doctor Jack.

By St. GEORGE RATHBORNE,

Author of "Doctor Jack's Wife," "Captain Tom," "Baron Sam," "Miss Pauline of New York," "Miss Caprice," Etc.

Many eyes are turned upon them as the captain-general still fumbles in his pockets for the missing key of the toril, growing as red in the face as a turkey cock. It is evident that the Turk and Pedro have met before. Imagine Jack's surprise when the pasha, deliberately pointing directly at him, and the bull-fighter, following the Turk's outstretched finger, looks him straight in the eyes. The American feels the blood mount into his face as he sees a sneer upon the countenance of the Oriental magnate, and realizes that he has been pointed out to the bull-fighter. Then he grows cool again—he is too old a campaigner to allow a little thing like this to upset his nerves in any way.

All the same, he keeps up a tremendous amount of thinking, and wonders if it is the stare he gave the pasha that has made an enemy out of him. What is he saying to the matador—why does he point out the American at all—will Vasquez publicly challenge him to a duel in the arena?

Such wild thoughts as these fit through his mind in an exceedingly brief space of time, and he has come to no conclusion with regard to the matter when the impatient buzz of the audience changes to a roar of anticipation, for the captain-general has at last found the obstinate key, and tossed it to the alcazar.

As the noise subsides, and every spectator settles back as comfortably as the limited space will allow, the blast of a trumpet is heard, which is the signal for the entrance of the toro, the hero of the hour.

Out comes a red bull, with a rush. The sudden change from the gloom of the toril to the sunlight causes him to stand still for a minute. Around him are walls of bright colours, streaming banners, and a sea of expectant faces—weird music fills the air—no wonder Taurus is amazed. Then he recovers, and is himself again.

A daring chulo flaunts a red flag in front of the bull, and bellowing with the brute (ears at the ground with his ugly short horns, throws the dirt aloft, to the delight of the audience, and finally rushes at his tormentors.

Then a picador jabs him with his lance in the flank, and draws the first blood. The scene in the arena at this moment is exciting, and very picturesque, for the bull-fighters all wear richly embroidered vests, knee breeches, gaudy sashes, with silk stockings and slippers, save the picadors, who have their legs encased in sheet-iron in order to secure them as well as possible from the horns of the bull.

Around wheels the red bull, and after the picador like a flash. In vain are bright coloured cloaks flaunted before his eyes; the old fellow knows what he wants, and means to get there in a hurry.

The horseman realizes his danger, and tries his best to avoid it, but his steed seems panic-stricken at sight of that lowered head, and does not obey the bridle, simply rearing in his mad fright.

This suits old toro exactly, and he strikes the horse with terrific force, hurling steed and rider against the fence. A wild shout arises.

It is "Viva toro! bravo toro!" now, but soon the tide of public opinion will change against the four-footed hero of the hour.

Fortunately the bull stops to tear up the ground with his bloody horns, and the dismounted picador clambers over the barrier with a speed that is ludicrous, to say the least. His steed has received the coup de grace, and the rider soon appears mounted afresh, but less daring than before. Meanwhile the fun goes on, and one can easily discover that it is a rare sport to the great majority of those present. Many a foreign lady would faint at the sight of a horse disemboweled by those terrible horns, or a chulo tossed among the spectators, perhaps half killed, but these people have been educated up to these things, and even the most refined ladies seem to enjoy them.

Each occurrence of this nature is greeted with a storm of applause. Why not, when they have come for just this same thing?

The red bull has begun well, but he does not keep it up. The picadors are mounted on better horses than ordinary, and have little trouble in avoiding their enemy, while the footmen tantalize and badger him.

How mean it all seems. The bull is the only brave creature in the arena—all the rest run the moment he fixes his eye on them, some leaping the barrier at the slightest provocation. Jack's sympathies are with the toro, but he knows well the brave animal is doomed.

Finally the bull, seeing how his enemies fly before him, takes up his stand in the middle of the arena, and with lowered head awaits a new attack. His flanks are covered with bloody foam, for he has been wounded several times as well as ripping up a couple of horses himself.

The enemy gather. Taurus waits in cunning, sullen humour until they are close upon him, and then makes an awful rush for a chulo to the left. Alarmed, the man flies for the barrier, he seems to know nothing of the tricks a cool-headed man might employ, such as leaping aside at the proper instant, but thinks his only chance to escape is in reaching the barrier first. It is a fatal blunder for the wretched chulo.

Jack realizes it, and yet, strange to say, does not feel much sympathy for the coward, who could only flaunt a red flag, and then run if the bull winked at him.

The friendly fence is almost within reach when the toro catches up with his victim. There is a cloud of dust and a puff of wind, and the form of a man is whirling through the air, to land among the half-crazed spectators, per-

In the whirl of excitement Jack suddenly remembers that he is sitting next to a lady. He hears her clasping her little gloved hands with the rest, and her exclamation, "bravo!" Although his face is not turned toward her, he sees the Turkish pasha looking in his direction. At first Jack thinks it is at him, but the strange expression on the other's face quickly undeceives him. Ah, it must be the face of Mercedes that chains the old Turk's attention. She has probably done as Jack expected she would—thrown back her gauzy veil under the excitement of the moment.

Somehow the very thought of gazing upon her features gives Jack a strange feeling, so that he does not turn instantly.

When he does he looks upon a vision of loveliness such as might charm one sworn to hate the sex—it is a genuine Spanish face, but one that Murillo would have loved to paint. As a rule the women of Spain have beauty to boast of—travelers have always raved over this fact—but Jack can honestly say he has never yet set eyes on a face of such ravishingly loveliness as that of Mercedes.

He gazed at her as if entranced, while the bull and the picadors in a mad race, engage her attention; but it is not the mere fact of her beauty that causes him to look spell-bound. He has not forgotten that exquisite face, and is ready to swear, marvelous though it seems, that the Catalan flower girl of Barcelona and Sister Agatha are before him, united in this girl—Mercedes.

CHAPTER III.

It is a most astounding discovery that Doctor Jack has just made, and he may well be excused for losing his head for just half a dozen seconds.

There can be no mistake. Jack is ready to wager half his fortune on the fact that he is gazing upon the face of the Barcelona flower girl, and the nun who bathed his head with spirits of cologne after his encounter with the Barcelona mob, but this does not explain the deep mystery that hangs over the affair.

The red bull tires out soon, and his tormentors retire at a blast from the trumpet, their place being taken by banderilleros, who advance and cast their darts unerringly. Gaudy streamers and rosettes are attached to these, and the bull soon looks like the prize cattle of a show.

At the same time something of fury is aroused in him, though he almost staggers in his wild rushes. The toreros have done their work—the trumpet again sounds.

"It is Pedro's turn," says Don Carlos, who has been an excited spectator of the game, and in his eagerness almost forgotten that he has companions at his elbow.

The great audience suddenly calms down. No longer shouts arise, not even a handkerchief is waved to distract the attention of either the bull or his master, who steps into the arena.

It is now that a man appears, and that excited throng realize the fact, which accounts for the sudden silence. The matador faces the bull, and receives his attack, not flying from it as do the other actors in the drama. He is the star of the combination.

For the first time since casting back her veil Mercedes turns toward the American. She sees the look upon his face, knows that he has recognized her, and places a finger upon her scarlet lips in a way that indicates silence.

"You shall know all in good time, Señor Evans," reaches his ear, and the next instant she is pointing into the arena, and saying—

"Look at Pedro Vasquez, Señor American. Did you ever see a braver man? He stands before the toro perfectly fearless. See, he waves his red flag to enrage the brute. Watch a Spaniard give the coup de grace. You have faced the half-starved bulls in Mexico, Don Carlos says, but they cannot compare with our noble brutes. It is a different matter being in front of that bull, for instance, señor."

Jack does not reply, how can he argue with a beautiful lady, and vaunt his own prowess, too? It goes against his grain, so he smiles and bows, but inwardly raves.

Ah! the bull makes up his mind. The critical moment has arrived, and down upon the brave matador he rushes. It looks as though the ponderous beast must run over the man who has dropped upon one knee, as if to receive the assault, his straight sword, with its keen point, upraised; but this position has been assumed only in a spirit of bravado by the executioner, who knows too much to retain it long.

The little red muleta held by the left hand to one side engages the attention of the charming beast. With glaring, reddened eyes and steaming nostrils he bears down upon it.

Master of his trade, Vasquez has his Toledo blade held out with a firm hand, no larger than the palm of his hand, between the left shoulder and the spine, where the point of the weapon must enter.

Thousands hold their breath in this moment of suspense. A miss will cause the reputation of the matador to suffer.

Jack feels a small hand clutching his arm. It is Mercedes, who, bending forward, hardly realizes what she is doing, so great is her interest in the drama below.

Of course the American does not remove that hand—it might clasp him thus for hours, and he would find grace to bear the captivity.

His eyes, too, are upon the scene. He watches the man with the gaze of a connoisseur, one who has been there himself, and appreciates the situation, which most of the spectators do not. Vasquez has a smile on his lips, as though he seems a beast such as the one before him. One who has reached the flaming engano or lure which is tossed upon his horns, for the game is done. The point of the sword has touched the marked spot on his breast, and the very force of the bull's onward rush drives the blade through the lungs into the brave heart.

So the first round is over. The bull lies on the saw-dust, blood issuing from his mouth, and the vast audience make the welkin ring with cheers of "Viva Vasquez! Bravo matador!"

The hero of the death struggle regains his fatal sword, wipes it upon the carcass of his antagonist, makes a low bow, first in the direction of the captain-general, and then all around the amphitheater, after which he starts to withdraw, in order to make himself ready for the next encounter.

At this moment a most terrific bellow sounds from the direction of the toril. The people hear it, and congratulate each other on the feat just in store. Pedro Vasquez stops in his stride, glances toward the toril door, shrugs his shoulders, and passes on.

"Vaya hombre!" cries Don Carlos, rubbing his hands together with delight, and addressing the American, "you shall see fun now. I told you that black bull was a devil. Even brave Pedro does not fancy the hustle. Unless the variety weary the animal out before he is called, it may go hard with him."

A team of gayly caparisoned mules, with tinkling bells is driven into the arena, and the bull and dead horses dragged out, after which the second scene will be opened, the same thing being gone through with, under a greater or lesser degree of excitement.

While the arena is being cleared and gotten in readiness for the next engagement, Jack converses with the Spanish girl. He notes the expressive glances she casts in the direction of the Turkish pasha, and a light begins to flash upon him. He fancies he can at least understand the sudden enmity of that worthy in the red fox, who has been looking upon him in the light of a rival. The other matter, concerning Mercedes and the flower mart of Barcelona, remains a deep mystery, which can only be solved when this strange girl grants him a private interview.

She talks almost continually of Pedro, and more than once declares that she adores brave men in a manner so pointed that Jack is puzzled to know what she can mean. He does not understand women—he has always admitted that fact. What is this charming creature hinting at? Does she want him to spring down into the arena and play chulo, banderillero, and matador all in one? Thanks, but he came here to see a show, not to make one. Those men were hired to amuse people, and did but do their duty. Perhaps at some future time fate would be kind enough to give him a chance to prove his bravery in a way satisfying to even her Spanish quixotic ideas.

For the present he is well content to sit where he is, and let others do their best to entertain the multitude. The mules have done their duty, and once more the chulos and picadors ride forward, but the keen eyes of the American notes a lack of confidence in their actions—that awful bellow has frozen the marrow in their bones, and they fear the coming encounter with the fierce demon soon to be let loose.

If Pedro Vasquez has anything of the same nervousness about him, woe unto the matador when he comes to face the toro. Patience, and we shall see in good time.

All eyes are bent eagerly and hungrily on the door of the toril, whence must issue the second-loving monster. It is still closed, but the alcazar has the key in the lock, and awaits the signal to whirl the door open, after which he will leap for his life over the barrier.

Back of that door a fearful sound is heard, like a peal of distant thunder oft repeated, and the audience catch their breath as the conviction strikes home, even before they see the bull, that here must be a warrior fit for the steel of Vasquez.

At the trumpet sounds, open flies the door, the ground seems to tremble as a mad bull, black jet and ugly as sin, sweeps into the arena, ready to do battle.

Then the silence is broken, a whirl of furious applause arises, and the black terror is seen in hot pursuit of a picador. Vein are the timid attempts of the chulos to distract his attention. The brute keeps one object in his eye, and pursues it with overwhelming zeal.

See! the horse is thrown over, gored to his death, and the man will be also, for his fallen steed pins him down, but just in the nick of time a footman flaunts a scarlet flag before the bull's eyes, and he is presently assisted over the fence by his powerful pursuer, with a leg ripped open.

The fallen picador is helped out in time, and meanwhile the black bull has demolished two more horses. Such a terror has never yet been seen in the Plaza del Toros, and those who ought to be worrying him seem themselves only worried lest they cannot get over the fence fast enough.

Not a horseman is left. The animals lie upon the sawdust, downed by the horns of the sable giant, while their late valiant riders sit astride the fence with the chulos, ready to drop back if the bull but winks twice, and utterly unmindful of the jeers that greet them on all sides, accompanied with a shower of orange parings and nuts.

Undoubtedly the toro is master of the situation so far. He looks around, him to make sure of this, and then contentedly chews at a tuft of grass that appears above the sawdust, which action is greeted with shrieks of laughter by the people, who declare this noble fellow will break the whole bull-fighting community up yet.

As the remnant of the first brigade cannot be bribed or forced to enter the ring again, the dead horses are removed as best they can out of the way with a tackle provided for this purpose. Thus the ring is substantially cleared for the second scene of this quick panorama.

off the banderilleros with brave and bright ribbons flying, and to the music of a quickstep by the band. Jack imagines that unless these men are extraordinarily spry the same band will presently have occasion to play the Dead March in Saul, for there is blood in the eye of the bull.

He waits until one of them plants an explosive dart in his side, and then starts. Now they scatter like a flock of sheep. First this one is chased, and then that other—such is the rapidity of the toro's advances that the men are bewildered by it.

The leader is crushed against the plank, and a second only saves himself by clinging to the horns of the bull, which animal, by a toss of his powerful head, sends him into the crowd.

While this scene is taking place the people have forgotten that they have tongues. The equal of this chony king has never been seen before. He strikes every one with a peculiar feeling of alarm, and some timid souls are even contemplating the possibility of seeing him tear down the strong barrier, and proceed to demolish the whole amphitheater.

It takes Mr. Bull just about ten minutes to dispose of the banderilleros. He seems to enjoy the fun about as well as the audience do, for some of the latter have found their tongues now, and are shouting to the brute to kill the cowardly curs who dare not face him. The same bravos who shout could not be hired to remain in that enclosure for half the money in Madrid, but it is so easy to sit in security and gey a poor devil whose teeth are rattling together like castanets, and who would not if he could, and could not if he would.

This is the end? The black bull remains master of the field, and has not been tired half enough to give the matador a chance of killing him. Of course it is not expected that Vasquez will enter the arena unless men are found to torment the bull still more and weary him with feints.

The management attempt to expostulate with the dart throwers. They sit upon the fence, and threaten and bribe alike fail to induce them to enter.

A low murmur, that sounds like far away thunder, gradually rising as the storm sweeps near, until the moan becomes a shout, and this in turn a tumult. Jack asks the cause. It is not difficult to find.

The arena contains the figure of a man—Pedro Vasquez, Toledo blade in one hand and scarlet muleta in the other. He looks a brave man, he knows the awful chances he takes, but by no sign does he show fear.

One hand is raised, it is to quell the deafening applause, which may unnerve him. Wait until all is over, and then if he wins give him what he deserves; should he lose he will probably need nothing beyond a requiem. Instantly all becomes as silent as death, and those two in the arena face each other, the man cool and watchful, the brute scrapping up his sword and dirt with one hoof, as if in defiance.

It is a picture for a master. Mercedes, with clasped hands, gazes and draws in inspiration—she looks as though the man in the arena were a god, and Jack hears her utter words that thrill him like electricity:

"Caramba! I adore a brave man!"

The tableau is broken. It is the bull that makes the first move. The animal has seemed to scent new danger from the time Pedro Vasquez entered the arena, and at the same time some subtle power has given the brute to understand that he now faces a man and not a coward.

Up to this time the sympathies of the vast audience have been entirely with Taurus. Deep down in their hearts these Spaniards respect bravery, and they cheer the adversary who follows up his blow, and hiss those who strike and then fly as though the Old Nick himself were after them.

Now the toro is in motion again. He comes plunging down upon the daring matador like an avalanche. Pedro Vasquez has done a foolish thing, and he knows it, but perhaps some sneering remark has urged him on. He will show these people of Madrid, he swears, that the Vasquez of to-day is fully the equal of any matador whose memory is held sacred.

Even the American is forced to admire the man's grit, though he expects to see him suffer for it. In Jack's opinion the Spaniard has not the proper conception of what he should do under these extraordinary circumstances for never has Pedro faced a mad bull such as the one now rushing upon him.

"Fool! fool!" Jack mutters, almost unconsciously, and then he sees Mercedes turn and give one quick look into his face, showing she must have caught his words.

Then comes the collision—when a fast moving body bears down upon a stationary one, unless the latter gets out of the way in haste, there is bound to be a smash-up. On a railroad the lighter engine always gets the worst of it, and indeed this is generally the case the world over.

Pedro has depended on luring the bull to one side by his flaunting muleta, dangled out with his left hand. He seems to have taken it for granted that this animal will follow the tactics pursued by the last, and swerve enough from the course to allow the planting of the sword point upon his left breast, when, as in the case of the red bull, his own velocity will do the rest.

In this he has made a fatal mistake. For the onrushing animal has lowered his head, and keeps a straight course for the man.

A mighty shudder convulses the crowd. It all happens so quickly that no one has time to shout a warning, and up to the last second Vasquez seems to imagine the bull will swerve. When he realizes his mistake it is too late. He endeavors to spring aside, but has planted himself so firmly, with outstretched legs, to resist the shock when the bull impales himself on the Toledo blade, that he loses a second, and this means all to him.

The man gives a shout as the horns strike him. It does not seem like an expression of fear, but rather one of excitement.

Not a sound has been heard in all that great amphitheater, for every eye is glued upon the arena. Finding that he has lost the game, the matador tries to save his life by clinging to the bull's horns. It is a most deplorable condition for him, as he may never again be the people favourite.

One has to live without the favour of the fickle public, and there are matadors in the audience who have had their day, and strutted upon the field, of which he has now been king for some years.

The neck of the black terror is all muscle, and when that awful head is thrown into the air Pedro Vasquez is seen flying through space. He strikes holds up the roof, and falls in among a number of chulos grouped there, who immediately bear him away.

Immediately the vast crowd breaks out in excited talk. The black bull goes back to his tuft of grass, and stamps viciously as though asking who will be the next victim.

There is generally a reserve matador, and the people wait to see him appear, but time passes, and the bull alone holds the arena.

It grows monotonous. News has come that although Pedro Vasquez will live, he has been so thoroughly knocked out that he could not stand up again this day before a yearling bull.

What now? The management apparently have made no preparation for an emergency of this character. The people must be amused, but who will undertake the job? After what has passed, it is all a man's life is worth to enter the arena with that subtle monster, be he chulo, picador, or matador.

What is that? Some Englishmen and Americans, delighting in fair play, are shouting "Viva toro! Bravo! old boy! Well done!"

Somehow the words exasperate the Spaniards, whose sympathies have been with Vasquez. They look at each other, and scowl. More than one friend of the matador touches his knife in a significant manner.

Ah! here is the gentleman who represents the management. He advances upon a little elevated platform, and holds up his hand. It is evident he desires to speak.

"Silenzio!" passes the word around, and in a minute so quiet is it that one can hear every word the manager utters. He speaks in Spanish, of course, and in a loud voice.

First of all he tells of Pedro's condition, then of the refusal of the substitute to enter the ring with that mad devil, and deprecates the fact that there is no man brave enough to make the attempt pro bono publico.

Turning, so that he faces the foreigners who have been shouting so loudly, he continues:

The management offers two hundred francs to the man who will enter the arena and slay that toro with the matador's blow. Don't all speak at once, señors, I beg."

This is a thrust at the vaunted courage of the foreigners who could laugh to see a brave matador meet his fate. The men look at each other, and smile. Each generously declines to take away this pleasure from his companions. As a consequence, no one arises; seeing which, some of the Spaniards in the sun seats begin to laugh.

Jack feels a pair of midnight eyes upon him, the colour mounts to his face, and, turning, he looks at Mercedes. Her words seem before him in letters of fire—"Caramba! I adore a brave man!" Somehow the challenge seems to have been dropped at his feet—he must either pick it up or decline.

The manager still stands on his platform looking around, as if hoping that some old matador may deem the golden lure of sufficient value to risk his neck for, but no one signifies such an intention.

When Jack Evans arises from his seat and takes off his coat almost every eye is instantly glued upon him. He folds his outer garment, and lays it on the seat; then, with a smile, stands upon the railing, takes one look at Mercedes, sees the surprise and consternation on her face, for she has never expected this, and calls out in Spanish to the manager:

"Señor, I accept your offer. I am an American, and I will show you how we do this thing out in Mexico." "Hurrah for Doctor Jack!" cries a voice from the foreign quarter—an acquaintance has recognized him.

Jack drops lightly over the barrier, and stands in the arena, alone with the black devil of a toro who has been playing such havoc with the regular stock company of bull-fighters.

DOMESTIC HINTS.

—In a very large number of persons the left eye is better than the one.

—Few people know that an onion, cut up into four parts and put in a sick room where there is any infectious disease, takes in all the infection.

—A novel sort of window glass has been invented. Persons on the inside of the house can see through it, but it is opaque to those on the outside.

—To keep apples through the winter in a barrel, bore holes in the bottom and sides, and store on a dry platform, at least a foot from the ground.

—In grating lemons only the yellow part should be used—the white pith is bitter; or, if chopped peel is preferred, a little sugar will assist the process, as it moistens, and so the peel is a mass; in chopping it for forcement, salt, instead of sugar, helps in just the same way.

—For Swiss pudding soak six penny sponge cakes in a little wine, and when all the liquor has been absorbed pour over a custard made with four eggs and a quart of milk. Beat up with whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, with a little sugar, and lemon juice, and put the pudding into the oven for about 15 minutes.

—Steamed puddings are lighter than boiled ones, and there are other advantages—viz., no cloth is needed, a piece of greased paper taking its place, and it matters not about the basin being full, as there is no fear of the water getting in to set it in a sauceman with boiling water half-way up the basin, replenishing from time to time with more boiling water. Keep the lid on, and allow at least half an hour again as the same pudding would take to boil. Little puddings can be steamed nicely in an ordinary potato-steamer.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 22nd, '01

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Lady Carrow, whose death at the age of 104 is reported, was a daughter of the Duke of Richmond, who died in Canada in 1810, when he was Governor-General of the provinces.

When the Canadian farmers understand fattening poultry as well as they now understand the feeding of cattle and hogs—and that time is not far off—the exports of poultry to Britain will be enormous. Shippers report that Canada produces the best poultry in the world.

Canadian imports and exports are both increasing. The figures for October, and for the four months ending October 31st show a gain under each heading, the imports for the third of the fiscal year being $64,487,168 and the exports $73,371,389, against $61,436,738 and $70,112,901, for the corresponding period of 1900.

The new Public School Geography that was issued last year is authorized for use in either Public or High Schools. It is not yet used in Toronto Public Schools, and the Toronto City Councils that wait over the old geography being out of date say not a word about the neglect of the trustees to require the use of the newer book.

Archbishop Corrigan is no socialist. He does not think it is possible to realize ideal conditions by making the state the all. He says: "You must suppose that those who were formerly lazy and shiftless and irresponsible have suddenly, by some magic, transferred themselves into ideal industrious workers; all this, I say, you must suppose if you are going to embrace socialism." It is supposing a good deal to suppose that an act of parliament will so change men's natures.

The cost of canalizing from Georgian Bay to Lake Nipissing, via French River, is estimated at $4,000,000, and it will take some strong argument to reconcile the members of parliament to the expenditure of such a large sum for that work, while there are so many needs in other localities. Yet the French River navigation would be a fine start on the larger scheme of the Georgian Bay and Montreal canal, which will surely be constructed some day.

Hamilton Times: Parents of girls who have been instructed at the Domestic Science School on Main-st., or at the branch on Stuart-st., cannot be persuaded that the teaching of scientific cooking is a useless fad. They tell us that they enjoy better victuals at less cost on account of what their daughters were taught, and they infer that general instruction on the same line would cause a considerable addition to the wealth of Hamilton by the prevention of waste, as well as an improvement in the health and happiness of the people. Those who are most violent in their opposition to cooking classes are the ones who know least about their advantages.

Toronto Globe: We have admitted British goods at a reduced rate of duty. We have been told that if we want Great Britain to give us a preference we must go farther, and admit British goods free of duty. Are we ready for that? Are we ready for further reductions on British imports. Mr. Foster will not say that he is willing to do that, nor will any of his friends say so. None of them will face the question squarely. They appear to dream of some sort of British preference under which British goods will not be imported into Canada. Or rather, perhaps they regard the subject as a good one for after-dinner orations and attacks on the government, but they have no clearly defined policy of their own.

Lord Strathcona holds $16,000,000 stock of the Great Northern R.-Way, $3,250,000 in the Northern Pacific, $1,375,000 in Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, and $750,000 in the C.P.R., and nearly millions in other quarters. He can keep the ball off a while yet.

The Hungarian government is voting a large sum of money to feed the starving of that country. Many of the Russian provinces are famine-stricken. Canadians have but to look abroad to discover how great should be their thankfulness for the happy condition of the country.

The King's birthday will come on Sunday next year. As the manufacturers will object to having it celebrated on Monday and the merchants will resist any proposal to celebrate it on Saturday, perhaps it will be as well to honor the King in the churches on Sunday, Nov. 23rd.

Carnegie's distribution of a million dollars worth of 5 per cent. bonds of his company to 21 of the faithful employees of the company shows that he is not the soulless miser that some journals would make him out to be. It is said that some of Mr. Carnegie's associates objected to so large a donation, but he insisted on it as being a reward for services beyond what salaries covered. Now how many even very rich concerns act in that way?

Montreal Witness: In order to learn the secret of American success in industrial enterprise, the government of France is about to establish a college in the United States, where young men will be sent from the various schools in France for the purpose of studying the system of industrial production, as well as the political and educational institutions of the republic. These students will be given a three years' course, after which they will return to France where the knowledge they will have gained will be utilized as the government may direct. There is wisdom in learning from those with whom we have to compete, and those students will no doubt obtain considerable practical knowledge and experience from observing American ways of doing things. The conditions, however, in America, which can never be imitated in any other country, where the conservative forces are strong and not easily diverted, back of American industrial methods is the American spirit of social equality. There is also American push, with that abounding optimism natural to a new country with illimitable resources.

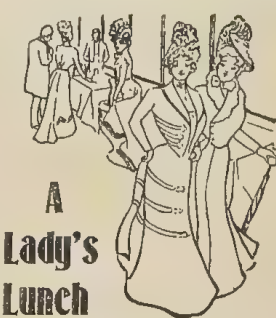

The New Treatment.
Hundreds of people who have gone the rounds of physicians and patent medicines have found a cure in Merrill's System Tonic. This new medicine cures disease by toning all the principal organs in the body, thus enabling nature to throw off the disease. It is the greatest blood purifier known. Price 50c. per bottle. Sold at all druggists.

Speaker's Sore Throat.
Public speakers and singers know how useless and sickening are cough mixtures, sprays, lozenges, etc., for irritable or sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhose, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use in public places. Catarrhose relieves congestion, allays inflammation and is a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and catarrh, it is highly recommended. McKim, Goddard, says "Catarrhose is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from throat irritation." Physicians, ministers and singers recommend Catarrhose, druggists sell it for $1.00. Small size 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.
(Municipal World.)
At no time in the history of the world has the want of municipal ownership been felt more than at the present time. Municipalities that have tried it have made a success of it. Why should our councillors give away for lifetime to some corporation a valuable franchise, such as a street railway privilege, a telephone monopoly, light or water privileges. Government ownership of railways, telegraph and telephone lines should be inaugurated as soon as possible. To give a wealthy corporation a monopoly is to crush certain small interests, to the great injury of the working man, and the wiping out of existence of the middle man. The line of encouragement of government and municipal ownership. Take for example in the city of London, if the citizens were freed from taxation, or nearly so, by reason of the revenue derivable from the control of its street railway, its gas and electric lighting systems and telephones, what a better it would be to the citizens, at least a great majority of them. How many more could afford to own their own houses free from encumbrances. Every man along this line is for the betterment of mankind and having this in view we advocate it.

Lady's Lunch

Has been rudely defined by some cynic as "slops and sweets." And after all there's more truth than poetry in the definition. Ice cream and cake may satisfy the palate, but they are far from satisfying to the stomach, which requires that food be nutritious first and nice afterward. By careless eating women pave the way for stomach "trouble," and its kindred miseries.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is confidently recommended as a cure for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. By curing diseases which prevent the assimilation of food it enables the body to be built up and strengthened in the only way known to nature—by food digested and assimilated.

For twelve long months I suffered untold misery," writes Mrs. Mollie Colgate, of Randolph, Charlotte Co., Va. "No tongue could express the pain that I endured before I commenced Dr. Pierce's medicine. I was not able to do anything at all. Could not eat anything except bread and tea—or if I did the top of my head hurt so it seemed it would kill me; with all that I could do I would burn like fire. But now, since using your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' I can eat a little of almost anything I want, and can do a good day's work as well as anybody can. Am better than I have been for years."

$100 IN A NIGHT.

Sad Falling into Gambling by an Exemplary Young Man.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 19.—Still another illustration of the terrible results of wholesale gambling in Vancouver, which the ministers of the city have been vainly striving to suppress, took place yesterday, when young Charles Albert Eby, leaving the city hurriedly for Seattle, having defaulted to the Sun Life Insurance Company, where he was bookkeeper. The affair was a shock to the community. Young Eby was considered an exemplary member of the Methodist Church. He is a son of Rev. Dr. C. S. Eby of Toronto.

He confessed, before leaving the city, to having collected $400 of the funds of the company, and lost most of it playing roulette in one night's sitting. He was a thoroughly good bookkeeper, and his books were found in excellent order, correct to a cent. Eby had had the money unlawfully for four days when discovered.

Leamington's Sunday Fire.

Leamington, Ont., Nov. 19.—About 12.30 on Sunday, fire was discovered in the main building of Robert Wigle's barn, just east of here. The wind being in the northwest, drove the fire in the direction of the other barns, and soon the whole six were in ashes, in spite of all the firemen could do. The barns and contents were a total loss. Besides this year's crop of hay and grain, there were $1,500 worth of tobacco, which had been sold recently; also eight cows, 150 chickens, and all his agricultural implements. The origin of the fire is not known. The loss on barns and contents is partially covered by insurance, but Mr. Wigle's loss will be very heavy. The tobacco was insured for $700.

Fatal Dynamite Explosion.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 19.—News reached here yesterday morning of two frightful accidents, caused by dynamite explosions, at Helen Iron Mine, near Michipicooton, James Ryan, a power man, was literally blown to atoms by the explosion of 5,000 pounds of dynamite, which he was drying by a fire. At the McMillan Copper Mine, near Rock Lake, four miners, while attempting to throw a quantity of dynamite in a blast were frightfully injured by a premature explosion. It is believed all will be totally blind, and two may die. The names of the men are: Nicholson, Ferguson and two brothers, named McLeod.

Log Kills Little Boy.

Peterboro, Nov. 19.—A very sad accident happened here last evening about 5.30 o'clock, by which little John DeRoche, six years old, son of Mr. Israel DeRoche, lost his life. The little fellow was standing near the wagon of Mr. W. J. Cox of Monaghan, who was engaged in unloading a heavy pine log, 30 feet long, the Dickinson Company's saw mill. The log is falling swung round and struck little DeRoche on the head, and pinned him to the ground. Death was instantaneous.

Baby Left in Church.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Some person left a five-week-old baby in the Church of St. Francis, Hintonburgh, Sunday morning, after the mass, and when the priests were going through the church they found the child contentedly drawing nourishment from a milk bottle. The child was well dressed and healthy. The mother is unknown, and the child will be sent to a home.

B. C. Lawyer Dead.

New Westminster, Nov. 19.—G. O. M. Dockrill, a law partner of Aulay Morrison, M.P., died yesterday from inflammation of the appendix. He was born in Florence, Ont. He was president of the Westminster Club and a captain of the British Columbia Volunteers.

PARLIAMENT DEC. 27

Must Meet Because of Pressing Boer War Finances.

THE PREMIER TO THE PRO-BOERS

A Pro-Boer Paper Says President Steyn's Wife and Family Have Been Deported From South Africa—Kitchener's Steady Work—More Boers Than Could Accounted for This Week.

London, Nov. 19.—The original intention was to re-open Parliament Jan. 3, the day of the expiration of the mourning of the court for Queen Victoria, so as to enable King Edward to be present with full state ceremony. It is now understood, however, that financial needs will compel an opening a week earlier. This will be on December 27. The most pressing financial need is in regard to the Boer war.

Salisbury to the Pro-Boers.
London, Nov. 19.—In a letter conveying an expression of his thanks for a vote of confidence in the policy of the Government, Lord Salisbury administers the following characteristic rebuke to pro-Boers in Great Britain:

"We need such encouragement, for England is, I believe, the only country in which, during a great war, eminent men write and speak publicly, as if they belonged to the enemy."

Steyn's Family Deported.
Brussels, Nov. 19.—The Petit Bleu asserts that the wife and family of former President Steyn of the Orange Free State have been deported from South Africa.

Eleven Days' Result.
London, Nov. 19.—Lord Kitchener, cabling yesterday to the War Office from Pretoria, reports that since Nov. 7th the British columns have killed 43 and wounded 16 Boers, and that 297 have been taken prisoners.

A Sterner Policy.
Nikandhla, Nov. 18.—It is understood that further voluntary surrenders will not be accepted, all Boers taken being treated as prisoners of war and deported. According to native reports from Babanango, the Boers in that district are burying their rifles, possibly owing to want of ammunition, and do not intend carrying on further hostile operations.

More "Interference."
Cleveland, O., Nov. 19.—German societies here have made arrangements for a mass meeting of the citizens in the interests of the Boers. They will petition Congress to intervene, and prevent the shipment of horses and mules from New Orleans to Cape Town.

Received by the President.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The Irish Parliamentary leaders who are touring this country agitating the Irish cause, were given a special audience by President Roosevelt yesterday. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Redmond, P. A. McHugh, Thomas O'Connell, Miss Dalton of Australia, a sister of Mrs. Redmond, and Mr. and Mrs. St. John Gaffney of New York. The President received them with cordiality in the reception room adjoining the Cabinet room. He astonished his visitors by his intimate knowledge of the Irish situation which he displayed.

Shot His Father.

Stratford, Nov. 19.—Recently, John Cook, an old resident of the Grey and McKillop Boundary, was shot in the left hand by his son, who was armed with a rifle, as the father attempted to enter the house. Constable Scott of Brussels was telegraphed for, but the young man had cleared out before his arrival, and no arrest has been made. The trouble is over a family disagreement. Mr. Cook was, fortunately, not very seriously injured.

Call It Colossal Fake.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 19.—An evening paper published here reproduces from The San Francisco Call, the sensational story of an alleged conspiracy in the Yukon to overthrow Canadian rule there, and establish a republic. Prominent Klondikers, who have come to Vancouver for the winter, state the story is a "colossal fake." In Seattle, Wash., U.S.A., the story is also regarded in the same light.

Mother Found Him Dead.

Thornhill, Nov. 19.—Fred Miller, the unmarried 25-year-old son of Andrew Miller, of this place, committed suicide Monday afternoon by hanging himself in his father's barn. No cause is assigned for the rash act. He had gone gathering beech nuts Sunday morning with some friends, and failed to return for dinner. His mother went out to the barn and found him hanging dead.

Committed for Trial.

St. Mary's, Ont., Nov. 19.—The preliminary hearing of the charge of manslaughter against Jesse Peers, engineer, and R. M. Sclater, fireman, of the G.T.R., for the killing of Mrs. Elizabeth Camm at the long crossing near St. Mary's, on Oct. 14, was held here yesterday before P. Whelan, J.P. The defendants were committed for trial.

Hutton for Australia.

London, Nov. 19.—Major-General Sir E. T. F. Hutton, formerly in command of the Canadian troops, and recently in charge of a brigade in South Africa, has accepted the post of commandant of the Federal troops in Australia, the Government allowing him to select his own chief of staff in the colony.

The Case Dismissed.

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—The Ligar election case, in which Mr. V. Winkler, the defeated candidate, was charged with undue intimidation, was dismissed at Winnipeg Assizes yesterday. The judge instructed the jury to return such a verdict owing to lack of evidence.

BOOK REVIEWS.

A New and Popular Book.
"The Man from Glenarry" is the title of a new story from the pen of the popular writer, Ralph Connor, author of "The Sky Pilot," and "Black Rock," both of which books have had a very large sale and have made the author notable as a fascinating story writer. The new book, "The Man from Glenarry," is a most enjoyable volume and one that will be thoroughly appreciated by the most indifferent reader. The scene of the story is located on the River Ottawa among a hardy, pug-nosed race of Scotch pioneer shantymen and river-drivers from Glenarry. The author faithfully pictures the shantymen's active life in the woods and on the rivers when getting the logs to market, as well as the fierce and bloody fights between rival crews, and pictures them with such zeal as to make the ordinary reader's blood tingle with excitement. The leader of the Glenarry men, McDonald, a giant in stature, and a deacon in the Presbyterian church, finds it hard to control his temper and leave vengeance with the Lord. The hero of the story, a young man, nephew of the leader, is given a helping hand by the minister's wife, and after many discouraging steps becomes a clever and useful man. He saves for the hand of a great lumberman's daughter, who loves him, but rejects his suit and marries a member of a titled family. The hero refuses to take part in a dishonourable timber deal and is asked to tender his resignation, with which request he cheerfully complies and is offered the management of a rival firm's business in British Columbia where he makes a name for himself, and is sent to represent British Columbia on a deputation to Ottawa to push the building of the C.P.R. to the Coast. While in Ontario he meets an old friend, whom he always loved, and takes her home as his wife. The story has many strong points, and is one that should have a very large sale. "The Glenarry Man" is published by the Westminster Publishing Co., of Toronto.

The Kirkfield Burgles.

In Thursday's issue of The Evening
Post it was stated that the Kirkfield post office and Messrs Campbell &
Graham's general store were burglarized Wednesday night and a small sum of money taken. In conversation with Mr. Morgan, of that village, a Post representative was informed that the burglars are supposed to be local parties, the manner in which an entrance was effected going to show that the parties were well acquainted with the premises. Entrance to the post office was gained by breaking a window near the door and slipping back the latch on the inside. It is not yet known how much money
they secured in the registered letter
box, but the latter was not impounded. Mr. Campbell, implement agent of that place, and that gentleman says he expected remittances from three different parties
in Carden. Two letters were to contain $6 each and one $19, but it is not known which letter was stolen.
In Campbell & Graham's store, Mr.
$1.50 was secured in this till. Mr.
Campbell being made a small sale
before leaving the store, and carelessly put the money in the till instead of the safe. He cannot account for the thieves effecting an entrance to his store, as no doors were forced, or windows broken, or alarm given. Mr. Graham slept over his store, but heard no sound.

Church Notes

The appeal of Rev. J. C. Ash, at one time a Methodist minister in the Bay of Quinte Conference and stationed in this district, came up on Tuesday last before the Supreme Court at Ottawa, claiming restitution in the Conference and damages for wrongfully expelling him. The plaintiff was expelled in 1895 from the Methodist church for certain causes which were made known to the church courts, and brought action to compel the Bay of Quinte
Conference to reinstate him, and also claiming damages. Church authority claimed that the plaintiff was expelled in 1895 from the church in the customary way (i.e., admitted) but every means of appeal was allowed to him. It was further contended that the entire matter was one of domestic discipline of the Bay of Quinte Conference, over which the civil courts could have no jurisdiction. The court dismissed the appeal with costs.

The Rev. Morgan Wood, of Cleveland, Ohio, in a sermon Sunday
speaking of the small attendance at church, and the sensational means adopted to attract church attendance, gave the following gloomy forecast of the situation in this district. It is very much the same in other places. "Church members of this city will not attend unless they are to get something sensational.
They must have the latest novel analyzed or the city's moral condition exposed. There is no thought of devotion and I am appalled at the apathy. I tell you, my friends, I don't pay to spend $10,000 a year to keep up the church and get these pitiful results. You have a pastor
to do the work, hire a choir to sing, hire a parish visitor to bring in the children to Sunday school, hire
everything in the way of worship,
and then expect splendid results.
Where are the wealthy Eucharis-tians to-night? I tell you, most of them are at home playing bridge whist, poker or even up; they are outgoing or returning wine suppers, drinking and making merry. While the poor pastor at $4,000 a year is preaching to empty pews and growing more and more discouraged."

It is to be hoped that this aggregation of amateur talent will profit
by their experience of Thursday night and before long give the public another such enjoyable evening.

WEDDING BELLS.

McEachern-McArthur.

Miss Florence D. McEachern, of Kirkfield, and Mr. Alex. J. McArthur, of this town, were united in marriage Tuesday evening by Rev. J. W.
McMillan, minister of St. Andrew's.
The bride was attended by Miss Mary Campbell, of Balaam Grove, and the groom by Dr. A. Galloway, of Glenarm.

Horton-Williamson.

Many Lindsay friends will be interested in the following, taken from the Omeone Mirror: One of those happy events, which we are always pleased to record, took place in our village on Tuesday, Nov. 12th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Williamson, when their daughter, Miss Rosa Evenson, was united in marriage to Mr. Bert Hart Horton, of Buffalo, N.Y. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. E. Roberts, Lindsay, assisted by the Rev. G. Brown, in the presence of a few of the immediate friends of the bride. After partaking of a sumptuous dinner, provided by Mrs. Williamson, the young couple took the evening train for Buffalo, N.Y., where they will take up their residence at 344 Swan-st. Mrs. Horton will be "at home" to her many friends after Nov. 20th.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable and also very useful presents which bore testimony of the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends here. Mrs. Horton is one of the many clever musicians of which Omeone can be proud and for several

Graham's general store were burglarized Wednesday night and a small sum of money taken. In conversation with Mr. Morgan, of that village, a Post representative was informed that the burglars are supposed to be local parties, the manner in which an entrance was effected going to show that the parties were well acquainted with the premises. Entrance to the post office was gained by breaking a window near the door and slipping back the latch on the inside. It is not yet known how much money
they secured in the registered letter
box, but the latter was not impounded. Mr. Campbell, implement agent of that place, and that gentleman says he expected remittances from three different parties
in Carden. Two letters were to contain $6 each and one $19, but it is not known which letter was stolen.
In Campbell & Graham's store, Mr.
$1.50 was secured in this till. Mr.
Campbell being made a small sale
before leaving the store, and carelessly put the money in the till instead of the safe. He cannot account for the thieves effecting an entrance to his store, as no doors
were forced, or windows broken, or alarm given. Mr. Graham slept over his store, but heard no sound.

Church Notes

The appeal of Rev. J. C. Ash, at one time a Methodist minister in the Bay of Quinte Conference and stationed in this district, came up on Tuesday last before the Supreme Court at Ottawa, claiming restitution in the Conference and damages
for wrongfully expelling him. The plaintiff was expelled in 1895 from
the Methodist church for certain causes which were made known to the church courts, and brought action to compel the Bay of Quinte
Conference to reinstate him, and also claiming damages. Church authority claimed that the plaintiff
was expelled in 1895 from the church
in the customary way (i.e., admitted) but every means of appeal
was allowed to him. It was further contended that the entire matter was one of domestic discipline of the Bay of Quinte Conference, over
which the civil courts could have no jurisdiction. The court dismissed the appeal with costs.

The Rev. Morgan Wood, of Cleveland, Ohio, in a sermon Sunday
speaking of the small attendance at church, and the sensational means adopted to attract church attendance, gave the following gloomy
forecast of the situation in this district. It is very much the same in other places. "Church members
of this city will not attend unless they are to get something sensational.
They must have the latest novel analyzed or the city's moral condition
exposed. There is no thought of devotion and I am appalled at the apathy. I tell you, my friends, I don't pay to spend $10,000 a year
to keep up the church and get these pitiful results. You have a pastor
to do the work, hire a choir to sing,
hire a parish visitor to bring in the
children to Sunday school, hire
everything in the way of worship,
and then expect splendid results.
Where are the wealthy Eucharis-tians to-night? I tell you, most of them are at home playing bridge
whist, poker or even up; they are
outgoing or returning wine suppers,
drinking and making merry. While the poor pastor at $4,000 a year is preaching to empty pews and growing more and more discouraged."

It is to be hoped that this aggregation of amateur talent will profit
by their experience of Thursday
night and before long give the public another such enjoyable evening.
It is whispered that another Broadhurst play—"The House that Jack

Think There is Something Wrong With the Sugar Beet Tests Published Here.

(Peterboro Review, Saturday.)
The Lindsay Post will not accept the result of the sugar beet test as published in The Review. It is not satisfied with Lindsay's showing, evidently, it seems to doubt that the report came from Prof.
Shuttleworth, and, after giving the figures for the three leading tests,
it says:

"There is something wrong somewhere. The Review states that the return for the Lindsay are based on the yield of nine test plots, while the fact is that samples from 23 plots were forwarded for analysis, as against Peterboro's 21 plots. A Board of Trade in Lindsay is awaiting a report, the non-arrival of which tends to approve the correctness of the Peterboro figures."

The figure sent to Peterboro was from Prof. Shuttleworth, and was correct as published in the Review.

LOCAL BREVITIES

—The Town and Collegiate Institute flags are at half-mast in token of the sorrow felt at the death, in South Africa, of Trooper Alex. Skinner.

—Tax collector Nicolle has his roll and is hustling to make up for lost time. Everybody has money these days and every cent should be paid in before the New Year.

—Rev. J. W. Macmillan, the popular minister of St. Andrew's church, has leased his residence formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Dolg, Bonist. Mr. Dolg has removed to his new house on Sussex-st.

—Mr. Fred Taylor, of the Big 20 restaurant, has installed in his place of business a brand new music box known as the "Orchestra Regina," which stands over six feet high, plays twelve delightful tunes, and cost $250.

—Mr. J. J. Teevin, Opa, will retire from farming in the near future and will take up residence in town in order to give his young family the advantages of our fine educational facilities. He is now looking about for a suitable house to purchase, and will rent his farm.

—Peterboro Review. It is probable that the 57th band will give a concert in Lindsay in the near future, as negotiations are in progress with Lindsay parties, and it is probable that an engagement will be made. Come along, gentlemen, there's a full house awaiting you.

—A Bowmanville hunter came near being the victim of a well-known practical joker Saturday. As his ownership of a 200 lb. buck was involved the Bowmanville man nose about, and finally struck a strong scent, but lost it near the new fire hall site. However, the Express Co. people beatified the venison.

—So keen is the demand for houses that Mr. John McDonald is transforming the first and second floors of the Post office, and the second floor over Williams' meat market, into comfortable living apartments. His offer to do so was published in The Post and induced a dozen applications for accommodation in the course of a couple of days.

—Mr. Jack Brandon, of Messrs. McDonald, Brandon & Austin, Fenelon Falls, passed through Nov. 19th to the Geo. Matthews Co., Peterboro, with a load of hogs. Mr. Brandon paid from $5.10 to $5.25 for the hogs, and thinks the price will remain about the same for at least a couple of weeks.

—Mr. W. J. Moore consigned a large shipment of stock to the Toronto market, lately. He shipped two loads of hogs, two of cattle and a duck o' lumps. He paid for live hogs from $5.15 to $5.25 per cwt.; cattle stockers, $2.50 to $2.75, butchers, $2.50 to $3.75; lambs from $2.25 to $2.50. Mr. Moore secured most of the stock from farmers in Opa and Mariposa.

GAS PLANT NEARLY READY.

The Gasometers and Generator Tank Now Being Erected

The Council and citizens have every reason to be satisfied with the progress being made by the Gas Co. despite many delays due to the failure of contractors to supply the required material on the dates promised.

Over six miles of pipe has been laid in order to furnish the 75 lighters which will be installed in the town. The building has been ready for some weeks, with the pits prepared for the gasometers and generator, the steel plate sections for which arrived Nov. 12th from St. Catharines. There are two gasometers, the larger one being 20 feet in diameter and 8 feet high, the generator is 4 feet in diameter and 8 feet in height. Men are now riveting the sections together. The gas will pass from the generator into the small gasometer, where it will undergo the secret process of purification before being allowed to escape into the larger tank, which will feed the mains.

The first delivery of lamps will be made this week. With reference to the style of posts, President Burgess says they are the standard kind and that nothing better is made in Canada. They will be nicely painted, and those on the leading streets will receive a coating of aluminum.

If favorable weather sets in the balance of the digging will be done this season, if not, the work will be pushed forward in the early spring. The full complement of 138 lamps will be in operation by the 1st of June.

They Like Their Pastor.

Last week at a meeting of the Quarterly Board of Queen-st. Methodist church, a unanimous invitation was extended for the return of the present pastor, Rev. A. J. Harvey Strike, for the next Conference year, beginning in June, 1902. The Board also voted Mr. Strike a handsome increase of salary for the present year, and expressed their warm appreciation of the good work being done by their pastor and his amiable household since coming to Lindsay about a year and a half ago from Prince Edward Co.

A Cheap Hack

Just a little exposure to this changeable weather gives one the "hack" which, when neglected, leads to pneumonia, congested lungs, or perhaps consumption, unless Four T's the great guaranteed cough and cold cure, is taken, which does away with hacking in 24 hours. Price 25c. Sold at all druggists.

Put Everything in the Contract

A very interesting case was argued last week before His Honor Judge Harding at the Court House. It will be remembered that the 57th Regimental band of Peterboro ran an excursion from that town to Star-goon Point in August last, the Str. Crandella being engaged to convey the excursionists from Lindsay to the Point. The crowd was so large to accommodate them, and about 150 passengers were obliged to board the Str. Esturion in order to reach their destination. Mr. Jos. Crowe, manager, on behalf of the band, entered an action against Capt. Crandell, claiming $1, the amount paid to the Trent Valley Navigation Co. It appears that a written contract was made, but in it there was no provision for passenger seeking other boats provided the Crandella was unable to carry them. It was pointed out by Mr. Stewart, who defended Crandell, that he had suggested engaging a barge also, at a further cost of $13, but it was not included in the contract, and he could not see how the band could claim the amount when they had failed to have a proper agreement drawn up. Mr. A. P. Pousette, of Peterboro, appeared on behalf of the Peterboro boys, and put up a strong fight for his clients. His Honor reserved his decision.

Lecture on Cowper.

A large crowd greeted the Rev. Septimus Jones, Rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, on Monday last in St. Paul's Schoolroom. He delivered a very interesting lecture on the "Life of Cowper," the greatest religious poet England has ever seen. Mr. Jones gave an account of the life of Cowper from his infancy to the time of his death, giving little incidents connected with his life affairs, which proved most interesting and amusing. The Rev. gentleman is an excellent speaker, being possessed of a fine fund of humor, and his lectures always please a Lindsay audience. His Hon. Judge Harding moved a vote of thanks, expressing on behalf of the audience their appreciation of Mr. Jones' address. Rev. C. H. Marsh, seconded the motion.

A short, but choice program was rendered during the evening. Miss Leary favored the audience with a very interesting instrumental selection; Miss Gertrude Brown gave a vocal selection, being accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Jones on the organ, and Mr. Batterbury, rendered a vocal selection. Mr. Jones, who is an accomplished musician, rendered a very pleasing violin selection, being accompanied by Mr. Hamilton, organist of St. Andrew's church, and had to respond to several requests. Miss O'Leary gave an interesting vocal selection in a pleasing manner. Miss Beatrice Brown being accompanied by Dr. Allan, by request of the president of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Edward Jones, under whose auspices the lecture was given, performed the duties of chairman. The collection amounted to $10.55.

CAREWORN MOTHERS.

Life Often Made a Burden Through Nursing a Cross and Fretful baby

All babies should be good-natured; well babies, if there is no outward reason for discomfort, are always good-natured, and yet how many mothers permit themselves to be thoroughly worn out caring day and night for a sick, cross and fretful baby, when a little care and foresight would remove all the trouble and make both mother and baby happy. The little one's suffering and crossness may be caused by any one of the numerous ills that make baby lives a misery to themselves and a constant source of worry and discomfort to the mother, such as colic, worms, indigestion, constipation, the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth, etc. When baby is cross do not, if you value your child's future welfare, give it any of the so-called "soothing" medicines, as they only stupefy and render without removing the cause of the trouble. What is needed is a simple, vegetable compound such as Baby's Own Tablets, which reach the root of all the minor ailments of little ones, making them well and happy. The best proof of this is the high praise all mothers who have used this medicine award it. Mrs. W. S. Beaverstock Church-st., Brockville, says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my house for several years and know of no medicine for little ones that can equal them. When my baby was troubling she was restless, cross and peevish, and I could do very little with her. I gave her the tablets and they quieted her when other medicines did no good. When baby was troubled with constipation the tablets always gave prompt relief, but above all things I think they are most excellent in indigestion; she vomited a great deal, was very cross and would scream with pain, and I had to get up with her many times during the night. No matter how much she ate she kept growing thinner. It was then I began the use of the tablets, and she grew plump and fat, and I had no further trouble with her at night. I can recommend the tablets to any mother who has a sickly, cross or fretful baby, and I am sure she will never be without them again." Baby's Own Tablets are easily administered and dissolved in water can be given safely to the youngest infant. EX-TROOPER ALEX. SKINNER DEAD.

Fatally Wounded While Serving the Empire in South Africa.

A brief cablegram was received at Ottawa on Friday stating that Alex. Skinner, of Scott's Railway Guards, had died of wounds received while serving on the line between Indian and Vreburg, about 30 or 40 miles from Kimberley, and next day his relatives in town were in receipt of a letter from His Excellency the Governor-General conveying the sad intelligence to them with kindly expressions of regret and sympathy.

The deceased was the eldest son of Mr. Alex. Skinner, of the north ward, one of our most respected citizens, and was well known to most of the residents of our town, Lindsay, having been his boyhood home. Young Mr. Skinner studied for the legal profession, and after graduating practised law at Owen Sound and Edmonton N.W.T. When the Strathmore Horse was being formed in Canada, Alex. Skinner volunteered for service in South Africa, and was accepted. He served with honor to himself and credit to his country, coming through the first ordeal unscathed, although on a number of occasions he found himself in hot quarters.

Trooper Skinner was one of the last of the Victoria County boys to receive honors at the hands of our people on his return from the battlefields of South Africa.

In June last, "Allick," as he was familiarly termed by friends, returned to South Africa along with Col. Sam. Steele. Soon after his arrival there he united his fortunes with Scott's Railway Guards, and while on duty came in contact with Boers on a railway built through the mountains, which unfortunately proved fatal. He now fills a soldier's grave, having died for the honor of the Empire, and the glory of the flag. His death will be much regretted by old friends and associates, and his relatives will have the warmest sympathy of the community and Canadians in general. His wife, who was a Mesford lady, and three small children, are residents of Edmonton.

A Foretaste of Winter.

The people of Lindsay and district experienced the opening blizzard of the season on Thursday of last week. The gale was straight from the north, the temperature was low, and the snowfall was sufficient to make sleighing if the wind had not swept it off the roads into the corners. The river was frozen across at several points next morning, but the steamers managed to push through. The Ogema led the procession with several scoops of wood, and was followed closely by the wind had not swept the Beaver. The Ogema's crew was armed with a steel ram specially designed for ice breaking, and the appliance worked well, though the ice was half-an-inch thick on Drummond's Bay. Either the Manita or Ogema will endeavor to keep the channel open till about the end of the month.

THE LATE MGR. LAURENT, V. G.

Resolution of Condolence Passed by Emily Branch O.M.B.A.

To the Rev. R. K. O'Connor, D.D., Bishop of Peterboro:

At a meeting of Branch 288, C.M. B.A., Downeyville, Ont., held in their hall on Nov. 17th, 1901, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased an all-wise Providence to remove from our midst our esteemed and dear friend, Mgr. Laurent, V.G., of Lindsay, resolved, that we, the members of Branch 288, beg to offer to your Lordship our sincere sympathy in the loss which the diocese, the parish of Lindsay, and the County at large, has sustained in the sudden demise of one who has done so much for the furtherance of religion and the church in this diocese.

Furthermore, we in the parish of Emily especially will feel his loss, as on many occasions did he show his sympathy and interest towards our Pastor and the parish of Emily. May his soul rest in peace.

A Family Matter.

She sewed a button on my coat,
I watched the fingers nimble;
Sometimes I held her spool of thread
And sometimes held her thimble,
I'm glad to do it, since you're far
From sister and from mother,
"The such a thing," she said, and smiled,
"As I'd do for my brother."

The fair head bent so close to me
My heart was wildly beating;
She seemed to feel my gaze, looked up,
And then our glances meeting,
She blushed a ruddy, rosy red,
And I, I bent and kissed her,
"The such a thing," I murmured
I low,
"As I'd do to my sister."

Turner, Jr., Geo. Bemster, J. H. Knight, J. B. Mansfield, His Honor Judge Harding, Robt. Thorne, H. F. Battersby, Dr. Burrows, Dr. Allan.

The proceedings commenced with the morning prayer and a sermon by Rev. E. Daniels, of Port Hope. On assembling in the Schoolroom Archdeacon Allen delivered his address. Papers on the opening of new missions were read by Rev. G. Warren, Rural Dean of Northumberland, and Rev. E. Soward, Rural Dean of Hurlburton. Luncheon was then served by the ladies of the parish. In the afternoon the subject of Christian Science was discussed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Bobcaygeon, and Rev. E. A. Langfield, of Ashburnham, and on Holy Communion by Rev. John Creighton, of Cartwright, and Rev. J. C. Davidson, of Peterboro. At 8 p.m. evening prayer was said by Rev. W. C. Allen. Lessons were read by Rev. G. Warren, and the sermon was preached by Rev. E. C. Cuyler, Rector of St. Simon's church, Toronto.

This morning holy communion was celebrated at 9 a.m. by the Archdeacon, assisted by Rev. John Creighton. The report of committees on the Archdeacon's address was read and adopted. The subject, "The need of consecrated and fit men for the Ministry," was introduced by Rural Dean Marsh who was followed by Rev. Wm. Farncomb. After luncheon Mr. J. H. Knight read a paper on Sunday School work, and was followed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, Peterboro. Later on Rev. Canon Sprague, M.A., Cobourg, dealt with the question of christian unity with members of other communions.

Methodism Fifty Years Ago.

The Belleville Intelligencer has been looking up the minutes of the Official Board of the Bridge-st. Methodist church, one of the oldest churches in Ontario, and finds some very interesting matter in them. Here is one entry which illustrates the difference between Methodism of to-day and half a century ago:

In the minutes of a leaders' meeting held on August 28th, 1848, the following entry appears: "Isaac Heaves' case was taken up, and it was agreed that he should make an acknowledgment, in class and promise not to play at cricket in future, or lose his standing in the church." The records show that the orders of this church were obeyed and the willow cricketer gave up his wickets and wickedness together.

You Can Make Child's Play of your Wash Day

If you follow the directions on the Surprise Soap wrapper.

It makes an easy day of washday. Does away with boiling or scalding and hard rubbing—giving the whitest cleanest clothes. Entirely harmless to the hands. Surprise is a pure hard soap, which means economy.

"BUILD UP ONTARIO"

Policy Enunciated by Hon. Mr. Ross, Premier of the Province.

DELIVERS A STRONG SPEECH.

Ross Liberal Club Presents Leader With Portraits in Reply to the Premier's Challenge. A Gracious and Inspiring Address and Discussion of the Mabee Pamphlet—An eloquent Foreword in.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—"Build up Ontario!" In these words the Premier of the Province, addressing a great gathering of the members of the Ross Liberal Club last night, summed up the policy of his Government. A speech as forcible, as eloquent, and as convincing as the leader of the Government has ever delivered, received its keynote from these words, with which he began his splendid oration, "Build up Ontario!"

The occasion of the address of the Premier was most auspicious for such a deliverance from him. As President of the Ross Club he presented with a portrait in oils of himself, the gift bringing with it not only the good wishes of the members of the club, but also those of hundreds of his friends throughout the city and the Province.

The Premier, in glowing sentences, described the conquest by Sir Oliver Mowat of new territory for the Province, of the efforts of his own Government and of those which had preceded it to people this new territory, and of the success that had met their efforts. He dwelt on the Provincial legislation affecting corporations, and challenged a refutation of the statement that taxation upon corporations had not been enormously increased. In reference to the "scrap-iron" amendment, he declared that inasmuch as the three judges had declared that the clause did not carry out the intention of those who placed it on the statute books, the Government would assist the City of Toronto in obtaining a final decision upon its meaning from the highest court. The clause, he pointed out, was adopted by the Government after it had received the approval of representatives of the different municipalities of the Province, and the exact prototype of it had been introduced in the Legislature by a Conservative member, who promised that if the legislation was introduced he would remove the sources of the technical objections that had been raised against it.

In regard to the Mabee pamphlet the Premier pointed out that the case of the Government was too strong and its arguments too powerful, too conclusive, to require any publication hearing the shadow of misrepresentation. He traced the connection of the Chairman of the Conservative party's Executive Committee with the first Mabee pamphlet, which was at one time commended to the attention of rural Conservative voters, and declared all connection with the present publication.

"Build up Ontario."

"The policy of the Liberal party is a progressive policy," the Premier went on, in his concluding peroration. "The watchword of the election is 'Build up Ontario.' (Cheers.) Build it up in every particular. Don't let us waste time in repelling the personal attacks of our opponents. As a rule on the platform I deal very lightly with my opponents, unless I have them face to face. That is my policy. It is not a question as to whether a little bit or that was advanced by the Conservative or by the Liberal party, but the question is: In the Province of Ontario? It is not the question if here and there a Liberal forgets his duty at election times. Conservatives have forgotten their duty at election times. Two blacks do not make a white. If we keep the laws of this Province about the of the interests and needs of the Province, our municipal law, our as-ment law, our laws regarding labor, factories, education, agriculture, the future development of the Province, and if we have been doing this for thirty years, is not that a guarantee that, as in the past, we have discharged our responsibilities, we will do so for all time to come? (Loud applause.)

"We do not want the people of Ontario to get away from that. I have said elsewhere, and I repeat it here, there is not a man in the Province who, after thirty years, can put his hand on any substantial grievance that he suffers under the legislation of the Government. It is thought, because there may be an occasional cloud in the sky, that the sky is a vault of brass above us. The true man is the one who looks at the whole periphery, the whole circumference and length and breadth and height and depth of a great policy, and does not wait to blister his fingers because there is some little thing wrong, but who asks if in the main they are helping the country and the people in the country. Let me say again to the Liberals, and particularly to the Liberals of this club, that the Liberal party of Ontario have a broad policy."

"Be the Ministers of England Tory or Whig. The man who governs England must be big."

The Large View Needed.
"Do the party in power what it may in the Province of Ontario, it will fail in its duty if it does not take a large view of politics in this country. I want to feel that in my efforts to build up Ontario I am part of a great spirit which is building up Canada and the empire, for we are one and inseparable, as Webster has said, now and forever. (Cheers.) We must hang together, and I want to infuse into the Liberal party, if it needs it—and I do not think it does—that spirit of taking a large view, for instance, in regard to the settlement of the country. The other day I had a long interview with Mr. Sifton in regard to the settlement of new Ontario, from which I hope good results will come, and with Mr. Fisher, with a view to opening trade and a market for Canada in the old country. Wherever there is work to do for Canada I am prepared to do it, whether developing a market at home or abroad." (Loud cheers.)

An Eloquent Conclusion
In concluding Mr. Ross quoted from Principal Tulloch: "Thought must advance, and none need try to check it. But while we move forward let us revere the past, and as we enter within the gates of a new era let us look back with admiration, and so far as we can with love, if not regret, to the great figures that stand at the illuminated portals of the old."

"We are entering," said the Premier, "upon a new era of prosperity in this Dominion. The clouds are rising, the sky is brighter than ever. Our relations with the Imperial Government are better than ever before. We hold a stronger place on this continent, our pulses beat stronger, because of the spirit of the Liberal party. But while we are entering upon this new era, let us remember the men who in the trenches laid the foundation of our present prosperity, whether in business, in politics or in education, and trusting to that noble spirit by which they were animated, let us with the same fidelity to truth and the same zeal for our country's good, with patriotism as pure as theirs, let us put our hands to the task of statesmanship, of nation-building, our first duty being to our Province, our second duty to the Dominion, and our last and supreme duty to the great empire of which we form a part." (Loud and long continued cheers.)

Ministers in Dundas.
Dundas, Nov. 12.—A large gathering greeted the Hon. Richard Harcourt and the Hon. Mr. Latchford in the Town Hall last night. Dr. Smith occupied the chair, and after a few introductory remarks, called on Mr. R. A. Thompson, the Liberal candidate for North Westworth, for a speech. Mr. Harcourt then delivered a speech, taking up one and a half hours on educational and financial topics. At 10.30 Mr. Latchford began a short address, and the meeting broke up with cheers for the King, Premier Ross and the candidate.

SIX MILLIONS STORED.

Some Facts Concerning the Movement of Grain in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 12.—The O. P. R. weekly report shows that the quantity of wheat in store west of Winnipeg was on Saturday last 6,589,000 bushels. The quantity shipped east during the week was about 1,000,000 bushels. On Saturday 418,000 bushels were marketed, and 350 cars were loaded the same day. The number of cars to leave Winnipeg for the coast on Saturday was 325, and on Sunday 435.

The receipts at Port William for the week ending Nov. 11 were 1,121,635 bushels, the shipments 1,321,612 bushels, and the quantity in store on Saturday was 1,433,674 bushels. For the corresponding week in 1900 the figures were: Receipts, 1,381,666 bushels; shipments, 854,650 bushels, and in store, 1,078,686 bushels.

American "Soo" Gets It.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 15.—The immense tub which originally projected for the Canadian Soo, will instead be located on this side of the river. The corporation back of the project, which will be known as the International Tube Co., is composed of F. H. Clorgue, his associates and other capitalists. The proposed plant will cost in the neighborhood of a million dollars. Employment will be afforded to about 600 men.

G. P. R. Not in the Deal.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—The statement that the Canadian Pacific is in any way interested directly or indirectly with the Northern Pacific settlement, as stated by American papers, was refuted by Sir William Van Horne yesterday. "We don't care a fig for the Northern Pacific," he said, "and if you ask me where it is I can't tell you."

A REBATE RESCINDED

British Columbia's Lumber Interest Now on Firm Basis.

REVENUE LAST FOUR MONTHS.

An Increase of Nearly $1,300,000 For the Period Ended October 31—The Figures Given in Detail—Proposal to Further Extend G. O. C.'s Term—Warrant Issued for Arthur Buckley.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The regulations governing the granting of yearly licenses and permits to cut timber within twenty miles of either side of the Canadian Pacific in British Columbia provide for a rebate of 40 cents per thousand feet b.m. on lumber exported from that Province to places outside the Dominion, on the production of evidence to the Crown Timber Agent as to the quantity exported. This concession was made in order to enable lumbermen in British Columbia to compete with those across the international boundary, who were operating under more favorable conditions. Recently, however, representations have been made that the lumber interests of British Columbia are now established on a firm basis, and that the conditions under which the licenses are conducted their business are more favorable than across the line in Washington Territory. Such being the case, an order in Council has been passed rescinding the provision under which the rebate was granted.

Four Months' Revenue.
The ordinary revenue of the Dominion for the four months ended October 31 was $18,500,490, or $6,870,000 in excess of the ordinary expenditure, which amounted to $11,635,373. For the same period of last year the revenue was $17,329,153, and the expenditure $10,143,234. The capital expenditure for four months was $4,450,070, as against $3,742,801 for the first four months compared with 1900 is as follows:

	1900	1901.
Customs	$9,986,524	$10,690,761
Excise	3,380,914	3,699,261
Postoffice	970,000	1,045,000
Public Works	2,100,000	2,310,215
Miscellaneous	941,280	761,251

Totals ... $17,329,353 $18,500,490
Gen. O'Grady-Haly's Term.

An order in Council has been passed, on the recommendation of Col. Hon. F. W. Borden, extending General O'Grady-Haly's term as General in command of the Canadian militia, until June 30. In an interview some weeks ago Col. Borden announced that the Government desired to retain General O'Grady-Haly's services for a further period. He was first appointed for one year. This expired in July last, but an extension was granted until December. The further extension is scarcely likely to be approved by the Imperial authorities.

Marshall Knows His Voice.
Ottawa, Nov. 16.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Arthur Buckley, a farm hand, who is charged with shooting Andrew Marshall at the latter's farm Thursday morning. Marshall is living, but is dangerously wounded. While he did not get a close view of the man who called him to the door and shot him, he says his assailant's voice was that of Arthur Buckley.

COWARDLY ATTEMPT TO MURDER

Andrew Marshall, Farmer, Near Ottawa, Called to His Door at 3 O'clock Thursday Morning and Shot.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Battling for life, and with a gaping bullet wound in his neck, Andrew Marshall, a middle-aged farmer, lies at the Protestant General Hospital. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning Marshall was summoned to the door of his humble dwelling, near Ramsay's Corners, Russell County, and about ten miles from the capital.

"Your money or your life," exclaimed the early visitor, at the same time discharging a rifle. The ball passed through Marshall's neck, between the jugular and wind-pipe, splintered a rafter and dropped to the floor. The injured man was assisted to his bed by his aged wife, the only other occupant of the house. She alarmed the neighbors, and medical assistance was summoned.

"Arthur Buckley has shot me," exclaimed Mr. Marshall when he fell. Buckley is a young man hitherto on friendly terms with the Marshalls. He has not been located. He bears a good reputation, and many believe Marshall was mistaken in his man.

Considerable petty thieving has been done at the Marshall house and in the neighborhood lately, and the impression is strong that the shooting was done by a tramp. Robbery is the motive given for the dastardly deed. Marshall sold considerable live stock six weeks ago, and it was a general opinion that he had the proceeds in the house. The shot fired was evidently a premature one and caused the would-be robber to take to his heels.

Detective Robillard of the city force and county constables are investigating the affair. Marshall's chances of recovery were better last night.

Boy Crushed by Train.

Glencoe, Nov. 15.—A terrible accident occurred in the Grand Trunk yards about 8 o'clock yesterday, when Charles, the ten-year-old son of John Lafrance, lost his right arm. The boy left home at three o'clock to go to his father's mill, but, instead, spent his time in jumping on and off of a shunting train. It seems that at the time the accident occurred Charles had caught a slowly-moving car, which started with a jerk, throwing him under the wheels and badly crushing his arm above the elbow. He was carried home, and there the arm was amputated near the shoulder. The boy's father when young lost his arm by being thrown under a moving train.

THE MURDER OF NATIVES.

The London Times Says Whole Kralls Were Killed Months Ago—What the Boers Know of Arbitration.

London, Nov. 15.—In an article on the war in South Africa The Times says to-day: "The Boers as far back as last May, were guilty of murdering whole kralls of Kaffirs in order to destroy the traces of the movements of their own commandos. The British authorities at the time, for some reason not specified, prohibited any mention of these outrages."

Good News Rumors Only.

London, Nov. 15.—There are rumors of favorable advices received by the War Office from South Africa, but nothing definite.

Unable to Interfere.

New York, Nov. 15.—The Brussels correspondent of The London Times and The New York Times, says The Standard, the Dutch newspaper, which is the official mouthpiece of Dr. Kuyper, the Netherlands Premier, insists that the Administrative Council of The Hague Tribunal is unable to offer its good offices in connection with the Boer appeal for arbitration. The Boers must know perfectly well, says the paper, that their appeal will not be received.

Killed in South Africa.

North Bay, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Dallas, the housekeeper at the Pacific Hotel, North Bay, has been advised that her son was killed a short time ago in South Africa. He was a member of the Irish Fusiliers.

No New Canadian Offer.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Mr. Brodrick, the British War Secretary, in speaking at a banquet in London Wednesday night, said that only that day a colony had offered help for the South African war. No new offer has been made by Canada, so it was not the Dominion to which he referred.

Another Canadian Dead.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Trooper William Jamieson of Grimsby, Manitoba, died at Kimberley, South Africa, of enteric fever.

A South African Position.

Fredericton, N.B., Nov. 15.—Principal Mullin of the Normal School has received from the British Government an offer of a position as principal of the Normal School of Pretoria, South Africa. Positions are also offered two young lady teachers at Fredericton.

Dawson's Population.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 15.—There are 20,000 people in the Yukon territory and the population of Dawson City is approximately 8,000. Major H. J. Woodside, of Dawson, the Dominion Government Census Commissioner, who arrived from the north yesterday, is authority for these figures. The major left later in the day for Ottawa, taking with him the official returns of the census and he expects to come back to the coast after visiting friends and relatives in the east.

The Story Denied.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—The statement emanating from Chicago, to the effect that Mr. C. M. Hays is to return to the Grand Trunk as president and general manager is authoritatively denied at the London office, says a cable.

Report Is Absolute y False.

Kingsford, Nov. 16.—Principal Grant of Queen's University was asked yesterday for a statement regarding the report that Andrew Carnegie had offered a contribution to Queen's if Dr. Grant would advocate annexation of Canada to the United States. In reply Principal Grant said: "The report is false and absurd. It is absolutely false."

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: overwork and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however, you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its greasy taste will surprise you.

OVER 18,000 DEATHS

From The Beginning of The War Till End of Last Month.

IS KRUGER A BRITISH SUBJECT?

Lord Kitchener Tells of Six Yeomen Killed and 10 Wounded in a Fight With 300 Boers—400 Boers, Led by Dewet, Left 8 Dead on the Field After an Encounter With Col. Byng.

London, Nov. 16.—The War Office Thursday issued the monthly statement of casualties in South Africa, which shows that from the beginning of the war to the end of last month the number of deaths in the South African Field Force was 18,283, distributed as follows:

	Officers.	Men.
Killed in action	423	4,471
Died of wounds	111	1,510
Died of sickness	291	19,425
Died in captivity	4	91
Accidentally killed	10	459
Invalids sent home who have died	7	422
Total	842	17,421

Krugger as a British M.P.

London, Nov. 16.—The Evening News yesterday said the Irish Nationalists have offered Mr. Krugger a safe Parliamentary seat. A Krugger! They hold that in consequence of Lord Kitchener's proclamation Mr. Krugger is de facto a British subject.

A Couple of Fights.

London, Nov. 16.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria yesterday, says that strong patrol of Yeomanry, while reconnoitering on Nov. 13th at Brakspruit, near Zwerust in the Transvaal Colony, about 140 miles west of Pretoria, was surrounded by 300 Boers and lost 6 men killed and 16 wounded. Some of the troops were captured, but were subsequently released.

The rear guard of Col. Byng's column was attacked near Heilbronn, Orange River Colony, Nov. 14th, by 400 Boers, said to be under command of Gen. Dewet. After two hours' fighting the Boers retired, leaving 8 dead on the field. Of Col. Byng's column Lieut. Hughes and one man were killed, while three officers and nine men were wounded.

Surrender to Smits.

Middelburg, Cape Colony, Nov. 15.—One hundred and eighty District Mounted troops, composed largely of Dutchmen, with their arms and horses, surrendered to Smuts' command, Oct. 13th. The District troops fired most of their ammunition at long range, and then refused to fight further. Capt. Thornton, their commander, believes their surrender to have been pre-arranged.

Kitchener is Hopeful.

London, Nov. 16.—Two of Lord Kitchener's monthly reviews, dated Aug. 8th and Sept. 8th, were published in The Gazette last evening. They are chiefly summaries of wide, sweeping movements through all parts of the disputed territories, with the results, casualties and prisoners captured, as previously reported.

An astonishing number of horses were captured, those in August alone numbering 15,570. About 20 per cent. of these are fit for remounts, and others are brood mares and foals.

Though admitting the disappointing results of some of the operations, Lord Kitchener comments on them as follows:

The reports further say that the system of chains of blockhouses at intervals of a mile and sometimes less along the railroads was being extended.

Lord Kitchener says: "The influence of the Boer leaders and their organized system of intimidation still keeps in the field a large number of burghers, who, if left to themselves, would be ready to surrender."

The writer favorably mentions several hundred officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

Soldier's Horrible Fate.

Liverpool, Nov. 16.—A somewhat remarkable addition has apparently been made to the casualty lists from South Africa. The other day a Carnarvon man, who is engaged on the Liverpool steamship Canada, writing home to his relatives, referred to the capture of a big shark at the monster, which measured 18 feet in length, was found to have quite recently swallowed a soldier's body. The man's body and uniform were intact, save for a small portion of one shoulder, which had been cut off.

A Cape Policeman Shot.

New York, Nov. 15.—A correspondent of The London Times and The New York Times, writing from Middelburg, Cape Colony, says that within the last two days the Boers have approached still nearer to Cape Town, either to obtain fresh horses or to revenge themselves on the Dutch farmers who have not supported them as they were expected to do.

In the northeast district, Commandant Fouché and 80 men, leaving the main body, made a raid last Saturday to Millburg Siding. The raiders blew up a few yards of track and shot in cold blood a Cape policeman, who had surrendered. Fouché has since returned to the neighborhood of Jamstown.

A patrol of district mounted troops was worsted on Monday by an insignificant force of the enemy.

She Wants Her Boy.

St. Louis, Nov. 16.—Edward A. Reiser, U. S. District Attorney, is investigating a conspiracy, near St. Louis, involving the British army in the Transvaal by a St. Louis employment agency. She says the boy has been heard from in New Orleans, where he said he was going to fight Boers. The woman hopes to prevent him from going into the British army.

Queen Wilhelmina Very Ill.

Amsterdam, Nov. 15.—A telegram from Apeldoorn, near the Royal Castle of Het Loo, confirms the report that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined, and says Her Majesty is very weak, but that her condition is not such as to cause anxiety.

London, Nov. 15.—It is rumored here that the condition of the Queen of Holland is serious.

Butler Will Speak.
London, Nov. 16.—Gen. Sir Redvers Buller and Lady Audrey Buller remain at their Devonshire seat for the present, but the general has definitely arranged to attend the dinner of the Devonians in London on Nov. 30. He will speak.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 16.—The Militia Department has been notified of death from wounds, of Alexander Skinner of Scott's Railway Guards, at Pudmore, near Vreilberg, South Africa. Nov. 12. Skinner's wife resides at Lindsay, Ont.

War Hero Killed to Death.
Lockport, N.Y., Nov. 18.—To pass through campaigns in India, to form one of the first British "thin red line" in the Crimea, to come unscathed through the historical charge of the Six Hundred at Balaklava, and then to retire to private life, to the peace and quiet of the grocery business and be killed to death by the delivery horse, was the fate of Ambrose Short, hero of many wars and formerly a sergeant in the service of the Queen.

Ambrose Short, a well-known merchant of this city, died about midnight last night from the effects of injuries received last Sunday from being kicked by a horse.

Death was a relief to the veteran, for he suffered untold agony. He remarked that a horse's kick could deliver an uglier wound than the spears of Indian men or the sabres of Cossacks.

Fatalities Among Fishers.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 16.—A terrible gale has raged along the coast since Thursday night, and it is feared that many fatalities have occurred among the fishing craft. The hulls of all the steamers which were wrecked on the Cape Race Peninsula during the past season have been broken to pieces, and the cargoes, which were still on board, were washed away. One man, who was working on the wreck of the Swedish steamer Vera, was killed by a stone thrown from the wrecks through a forest to his home.

An Anniversary.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—This is the sixteenth anniversary of the execution of Louis "David" Riel, leader of the insurrectionists in the rebellions of 1870 and 1885. Riel was executed in the rear of the guardroom in the barracks of the Northwest Mounted Police at Regina, N. W. T. He was hanged by Jack Henderson, one of the loyalists of Fort Garry, who was imprisoned in the fort in 1870 by Riel. Jack Henderson was an old-time freighter for the Hudson's Bay Co.

Killed by a Train.

Collingwood, Nov. 15.—Dan Morrison, a farm laborer, was instantly killed on the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk Thursday night. While walking on the track he was struck by the mail train from the south, due here at 9.10 p.m. He had a broken leg and other injuries. The deceased had worked on the mountain as a farm laborer during the summer, and arrived in town only on the day of his death. One child, his mother and sister survive, and live here.

Commercial Traveler Dropped Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Mr. J. D. Smith of 482 Brockville avenue, Toronto, a member of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association, Ontario Branch, dropped dead at St. Vincent de Paul at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, shortly after the arrival of the train from Joliette, while he was walking to the Hotel Charbonneau. He was in the employ of G. T. Fulford & Co. of Brockville.

Snow Follows Gale in Britain.

London, Nov. 16.—The gale has been succeeded by frost and snow of unprecedented severity so early in the season. Ten and fifteen degrees of frost are common, while the snow on the northern hills is hindering railroad traffic and is causing the rivers to overflow. Hundreds of sheep have been drowned in the neighboring meadows. The lakes in the London parks are covered with ice.

Heads on the Green.

Dublin, Nov. 16.—The parliamentary contest in Galway, resulting from the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the elevation of Mr. H. F. Morris to the Peerage, is being marked by a succession of fights which takes all the constabulary in the neighborhood to keep the contestants within bounds. There is a lengthy list of injured persons.

Queen Wilhelmina Very Ill.

Amsterdam, Nov. 15.—A telegram from Apeldoorn, near the Royal Castle of Het Loo, confirms the report that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined, and says Her Majesty is very weak, but that her condition is not such as to cause anxiety.

London, Nov. 15.—It is rumored here that the condition of the Queen of Holland is serious.

ROSEBERY'S ADVICE.

In Settlement of Great Questions, Abolish Party Lines.

A BUSINESSMEN'S GOVERNMENT

Party Jealousy Impedes Reforms, and He Suggests the Above Method as a Means to the Carrying of Measures Known to Be Good by Both Great Parties—House of Lords.

London, Nov. 15. Lord Rosebery, speaking last night in Edinburgh, said he did not intend again to try to secure a reform of the House of Lords, as this was not a task for an individual,
but one needing a national impulse.

"I would like to see," he continued,
"an experiment for a year of a Government formed entirely of business men, such, for example, as Mr.
Carrington and Sir Thomas Lipton, instead of politicians."

"I would ask you: Are you getting your money's worth for the money spent? We are beginning to learn the lesson that great measures must, in future, be carried more by the harmony of contending parties or by the agreement of belligerent politicians than by the overpowering ascendancy of one faction in the country."

Continuing, the speaker said he blamed no party and blamed no Government, but saw around him
questions demanding solution and a general apathy and impotence to deal with them.

Political parties, he said, must, on occasions, be willing to sink their differences and forget who was in power, and who would get credit for the carrying out of measures, if they wish these measures to be carried out.

THE OTONABE MYSTERY.

"Silent John" Hooper Is Alive—Whose Body Was Found?

Peterboro, Nov. 15.—The mystery surrounding the facts in connection with the decomposed body found in Charles Long's well is growing deeper.
"Silent John" Hooper is not dead, for he appeared yesterday in Ashburnham in the same silent way as has characterized him in the past and disappeared again as silently as he came. It was about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the man strode into the Maple Leaf Hotel, Ashburnham. He did not even bid the time of day to those whom he passed as he walked through the sitting room. He spoke to no one except when he was asked questions, and then his speech was short and unwilling. Mr. George Lipsett, sen., at once recognized the individual as "Silent John" Hooper, who was supposed to have met his death in a well on the Crowley farm, in Otonabee.
Several other gentlemen who were in the hotel felt sure that they were not far out in their belief. They pressed the old man for an answer, and he admitted that he was Hooper, but nothing further could be learned from him. "Silent John" stayed in Mr.
Lipsett's hotel for over two hours, and then left for the country. The matter makes the finding of the body in the well a still greater mystery.

Severe Earthquake Shocks.

Tiflis, Russia, Nov. 15.—Twenty-two persons were killed and many buildings destroyed by an earthquake which visited Erzeroum. The panic-stricken populace is camping out in the fields.

Sixth Death From Smallpox.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 16.—The sixth death from smallpox occurred yesterday, when Mr. O'Dell of Fairville passed away. There were four new cases yesterday.

Murder Story Denied.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 15.—Superintendent Craig on the Yukon telegraph line received a special despatch from Dawson last evening, denying the story of the murder of Registrar Girouard of Dawson.

Australian Immigration Bill.

London, Nov. 16.—A despatch to The Times from Melbourne, says the Commonwealth Senate is debating the Immigration Restriction Bill, which excludes all persons which nationally speak a European language. The Labor party proposes an amendment, introducing the color test, in order to exclude Africans and Asiatics. A close division is expected.

Rome Accused by the Pope.

Rome, Nov. 16.—Pope Leo, in a circular just issued to the French bishops, recommends them to take the greatest precautions to ensure that their despatches to the Vatican are properly sealed, indignantly remarking that some communications lately arrived had been tampered with before transmission.

Rail in Court's Trail.

Pekin, Nov. 15.—The Chinese Court has arrived at Kai Fong Fu, capital of Nonan, having left the people along its route of march half ruined by the contributions levied for entertainment, repairing of roads and decorations.

OUR INLAND REVENUE.

The Annual Bill for Liquor and Tobacco —An Increase in Consumption—Growth of the Cigar Factories.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The annual report of the Inland Revenue Department for the fiscal year ending June 30 last was issued yesterday. The revenue for the year was $10,008,708, as compared with $10,039,076 for the previous year, an increase of $69,632. The increase in excise for the past year over 1900 was $491,816. During the year the quantity of spirits produced was 2,652,708 proof gallons, as compared with 2,658,557 proof gallons produced in the previous fiscal year. There were 33,265,288 pounds of Indian corn, 3,584,301 pounds of malt, 7,673,749 pounds of rice, 12,775 pounds of wheat, 399,130 pounds of oats, and 37,380 pounds of barley used in producing this quantity of spirits. There were 148,154 gallons of spirits exported, as against 188,637 in the previous year.

The tobacco manufactured during the year was 11,948,805 pounds, compared with 11,146,218 pounds for 1900, an increase of over 800,000 pounds. There was exported 392,614 pounds, more than twice as much as the year previous. The raw leaf taken for consumption, amounting to 9,848,894 pounds, or over 500,000 pounds greater than in the previous year, while the total tobacco taken for consumption reached 21,643,301, or a million pounds more than for 1900.

There were over two million more cigars manufactured during the year than in the previous year. The number consumed during the year was 141,096,889, over three millions of an increase, while the number manufactured was 141,430,454.

There were more spirits, beer and wine drunk during the year than in the previous year, and more tobacco was used. In 1900 there was consumed per head .701 spirits, 4.364 beer, .085 wine gallons, and 2.300 pounds of tobacco. In 1901 this was increased to .765 spirits, 4.737 beer,
.100 wine, and 2.404 tobacco. The calculations for the past year, however, were made from the census returns, while the figures for the previous year were based on approximate figures.

COMMERCIAL RECIPROCITY.

Presentation of the Case From the United States Side.

Washington, Nov. 14.—A distinguished body, representing the commercial organizations of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Cincinnati, called upon the President yesterday to urge the importance of reciprocity with Canada. The delegation included Gustav H. Schwab, chairman, and Isador Strauss and S. P. Webb of the Committee on Commerce and Revenue Laws of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, and O. H. Keop of Buffalo, representing the Lake Carriers' Association.
Mr. J. R. Leonard of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, spokesman of the party, told the President that, next to Great Britain and Germany, the trade of Canada with the United States represented more in money to the manufacturers and producers of the United States than that of any other country and that, unless something further was done to further that trade in the way of reciprocity concessions, all of it might be endangered.

AT COST OF FOUR MILLIONS.

Channel From Georgian Bay to Lake Nipissing Could Be Built.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Engineering experts have reported to Mr. Tarte that the cost of constructing a channel of a uniform depth of 20 feet between the Georgian Bay and Lake Nipissing will be $4,000,000. The distance is 61 miles, and the chief engineering obstacle to be overcome in making this route navigable exists at Five-Miles Rapids.

Discussing the question of a shorter outlet for the grain of the West, yesterday morning Mr. Tarte pointed out that the Georgian Bay and Lake Nipissing route would place grain vessels in touch with the Grand Trunk and Callender and the C.P.R. at North Bay. "Before many years the export of grain from Manitoba and the Territories," said the Minister, "will amount to one hundred million bushels. We must take care that this is not diverted into American channels."

Last Boat From Dawson.

Port Townsend, Wash., Nov. 14.—
The steamer City of Seattle arrived from Skagway yesterday, bringing 273 passengers, most of whom are direct from Dawson, having arrived at White Horse last Thursday on the steamer Oro, the last boat to come up the river this season. The captains and crews of various boats from the Yukon were passengers on the Seattle, the boats having gone into winter quarters.

Father of Carpenter Dead.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 14.—George F. Carpenter, a wealthy attorney, aged 81, vice-president of the Citizens' National Bank and father of Frank G. Carpenter of Washington, D.C., an author and well-known newspaper correspondent, died here last midnight.

She May Be Dead Now.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—The Cologne Gazette yesterday contains a despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, saying it is feared that Miss Stone has been murdered, owing to the delay in the payment of her ransom.

THE YUKON IN REVOLT

Skaguay Americans Seek to Establish Canadian Republic.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST DOMINION

An Unconfirmed Story of the Steps to Be Taken to Overthrow the Government of Canada and to Set Up in Its Steid "The Yukon Republic"
—Five Thousand Miners in It.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—The Call yesterday printed an unconfirmed story from Skaguay, Alaska, under date of Nov. 6, telling of the discovery of what is alleged to have been a huge conspiracy existing at Dawson, and ramifying to Skaguay, Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, for the overthrow of the local government of the Northwest Territories, and the establishing of a republic, with Dawson as its capital.

According to the details of the story, arms, ammunition and provisions have been taken in over the railroad and cached at strategic points. Prominent American residents of Skaguay are said to be leaders in the conspiracy. Miners to the number of 5,000 are said to await the summer to arms, ready to fight for independence from Dominion rule of the gold fields, camps and town.

The plan is to overpower the Mounted Police, arrest the civil authorities and take the government into their own hands. The rigors of the Arctic winters would give the insurgents six months immunity from attack by Canadian troops, and the adventurous arch-conspirators hope for intervention or outside assistance by the time the melting of the ice and snow will permit the invasion of their isolated republic.

It is further related that a hurried conference, lasting until midnight, was held at Skaguay Nov. 5, at which were present Captain Corrigan of the Northwest Mounted Police, who had arrived from across the Canadian border late that evening; Judge Brown of the United States District Court; U. S. Marshal Shoup;
U. S. Attorney Frederick and Major Hewey, commanding the United States troops at Skaguay, attended the meeting.

This was the last of several hasty consultations between the civil and military representatives of the two powers in relation to mysterious transportation of supplies into the interior and rumors of a conspiracy to lead the miners in a revolt against the Canadian Government in the Northwest Territories. Those present maintained subsequently the strictest silence concerning the new evidence laid before them, and their evident anxiety helped to confirm the rumors of conspiracy.

Captain Corrigan took a train back across the border the next morning, while U. S. Marshal Shoup embarked on the first steamer for Seattle, which port he reached several days ago. The object of his visit was presumably to confer by telegraph with the authorities at Washington. He sailed on Friday afternoon on the Dolphin, on his way back to Skagway.

Story Not Delivered.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 18.—No credence is given here to the story of the alleged discovery at Skaguay, Alaska, of a conspiracy to overthrow the Canadian Government in Alaska.
United States Marshal Shoup, who is credited with having come here to communicate with the United States Government regarding the matter, is said to have come only for the purpose of bringing some United States prisoners, who had been sentenced to terms in the penitentiary at McNeill's Island. He returned north Saturday.

Silver for Consumptives.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—At the Rush Hospital a solution of silver is injected into patients suffering from tuberculosis. Excellent results are obtained. Patients who have been placed under the treatment declare that after two or three days they have less cough, there is much less expectoration; their appetite is improved and they gain in strength.
These results have been obtained in cases of tuberculosis in its advanced stages, and that it prolongs the life of the patient has already been established. Whether or not it will effect a cure further experience alone can tell. Those interested in this discovery believe it will. A half per cent. solution of silver in a saline solution is the formula used.

Forged for $103,000.

New York, Nov. 18.—O. B. Wheeler, Jr., who was arrested Saturday on charges of forging the names of Chicago business men to notes aggregating $103,000, was arraigned in the police court on Sunday. An attorney, who appeared for him, told the magistrate that his client was, in his opinion, suffering from the excessive use of some drug and that he was now mentally unbalanced.

Dead Will Exceed Twenty.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 16.—Nine bodies had been taken from the Baby Mines at Pocahontas up to noon yesterday. It is believed the list of dead will exceed twenty. The number of injured will be about thirty.
The mine is still burning, but no more explosions are looked for.

C.P.R. Coal Chute Burned.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—The C. P. R. coal chute at Maple Creek, by which the engines were supplied, was burned to the ground yesterday. There was about 100 tons of coal in the chute at the time.

Another Duke of York.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 17.—Hon. John Hope Hodgott of New York claims the title and estate of the Duke of York, and has placed the matter in the hands of lawyers here. He says he is a descendant of Edward IV. He returned to New York Saturday.

MAJOR MORRIS CONVICTED.

Ottawa's Chief Magistrate Disqualified
Municipality for Two Years

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—A conviction against Mayor Morris was procured in the Police Court Saturday morning disqualifying him from sitting in the council for two years, under heavy penalties. There were 150 charges of treating during prohibited hours, one on Saturday and one on Monday. Mr. Osler appeared for the Mayor and pleaded guilty to the first offence and not guilty to the second, and said the Mayor did not wish to drag in the names of the gentlemen who were with him, and preferred to accept disqualification and take the consequences. A fine of $5 and $2 costs was indicated, and an acting Mayor will have to be appointed by the council to-day.
The action against the Mayor was brought by the Chief of Police soon after the mayor's complaints against the latter had been heard by the Police Commissioners.

RANSOM REDUCED.

Brigands Are Willing Now to Accept 20,000 Turkish Pounds.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 18.—The brigands who captured Miss Ellen
M. Stone and Madame Taikka have reduced the amount of ransom they demand to 20,000 Turkish pounds.
Coincident with this intelligence is the information that the leaders of the band, if convinced that this is more than Mr. Dickinson will get, would accept 15,000 Turkish pounds.
Even this sum is greatly beyond the cash at Mr. Dickinson's disposal.
Therefore, unless the capture of the missionary further weakens their demands, there is no hope of an immediate settlement.

The Gun Again Tested.

New York, Nov. 18.—The Gath-mann aerial torpedo and the big 18-inch gun was tried at the proving grounds at Sandy Hook again on Saturday. Two shots were fired and the heavy charges of wet gun cotton with which each shell was charged, was detonated. The first torpedo fired did no damage to plate or backing to any great extent. The second was more successful, cracking the plate from top to bottom and doing considerable damage to the bracing. Each shell contains 500 pounds of wet gun cotton and 216 pounds of powder were used to drive them from the gun. Gathmann claims a victory.

Mussolini Tries to Escape.

Rome, Nov. 18.—The brigand, Mussolini, has made three determined attempts to escape, and is, consequently, guarded more closely than ever. Since his capture he has kept up his murderous faith, and has solemnly declared his intention to kill all those who had anything to do with his arrest. The intention to conduct his trial at Reggio has been abandoned, as it is believed it would be impossible to obtain a jury there which would not contain some friends of the brigand. He will probably be tried at Lecce. It is already evident that the proceedings will assume the dimensions of a state trial.

Pan-Am. Finances.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 15.—The total liabilities of the Pan-American Co. is $3,326,115, and assets $146,454.
The expenditure cost $8,860,737. Receipts from admissions were $2,467,066;
from concessions, $1,011,523.

Probably 20 Dead.

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 18.—The reports from the Baby Mine are that the fire practically has been extinguished. Saturday three more bodies were taken out, all badly charred. Miners say that at least eight more are in the shaft. The list of bodies already recovered numbers 13, and two or three of the injured will yet die.

Queen Wilhelmina Improving.

The Hague, Nov. 18.—The Dowager Queen Emma, sister of Queen Wilhelmina, who has just returned from the royal chateau at Hueloo, has informed the authorities that her daughter's health continues to improve.

Kidney Troubles of Children.

There are many mothers blessing Dr. Pitcher and his wonderful Backache Kidney Tablets.
This remedy has proved so successful for that serious affliction of children—bed wetting—that mothers rejoice to know of a positive cure. The Tablets have a strengthening and tonic influence on the weak urinary organs of children and enable them to retain their water naturally.

Don't let your child grow up with this weakness blighting his life. Have the trouble cured in time before it does permanent injury to the health.

THE DIFFICULTY REMOVED.

Mrs. W. M. Glover, Pearl Street, Brockville, Ont., says: "One of my children that had been suffering from sluggish kidneys read about Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and procured a bottle from F. R. Curry's drug store. They removed the whole difficulty promptly.
That depressing pain over the kidneys stopped, dizziness and headaches ceased, and there was a general invigorating of the system. There is no question regarding the merits of these Tablets for the back and kidneys."
Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50c. a box at all druggists or by mail,

50 VESSELS WRECKED

Further Casualties in the Worst Storm in Years.

MORE THAN 180 WERE DROWNED

Lifboat Capsized and Eleven of Her Crew Were Drowned Near Yarmouth —Norwegian Bark Wrecked With Eight Lives Lost—The Full Damage on the British Coasts Will Never Likely Be Known.

London, Nov. 15.—It is still impossible to estimate the total loss of life and property resulting from the protracted gale, and probably the full extent of the damage will never be known. Tons of wreckage of unidentified vessels are still being thrown up. Altogether it is known that some fifty vessels have been wrecked along the British coasts.
Thirty-four of these have been absolute wrecks, involving, it is believed, a loss of more than 180 drowned.
The Yarmouth lifboat disaster alone leaves 44 fatherless children.

Lifboat and 11 Lives Lost.

London, Nov. 15.—The loss of a lifboat and 11 lives near Yarmouth heads the list of yesterday's wrecks by the continued gale. The lifboat was on its way to the rescue of a distressed vessel, when it was struck by a great wave and capsized. The crew were imprisoned, and only three of them succeeded in making their escape.

Innumerable minor casualties continue to be reported on all the coasts of the United Kingdom, marking the storm as the most disastrous that has occurred in many years. Snow is falling in many parts of the country.

The Norwegian bark Ericatic, of Christiania, has been wrecked in the vicinity of Salbury, and eight members of her crew have been drowned.
An incomplete list of the persons who have lost their lives by drowning during the storm already aggregates over 160.

Crew of Nina Drowned.

Belfast, Nov. 15.—From wreckage seen in Belfast Lough yesterday, it is supposed that the collier White Abbey has been lost and her crew of nine drowned.

Storm on Upper Lakes.

Midland, Ont., Nov. 14.—A heavy gale blowing from the north has been raging here since Wednesday night, accompanied by heavy snow flurries.
The steamer Vulcan arrived Thursday with the after cabin and bulwarks broken, and other vessels were forced to seek shelter.

Barge Went Ashore.

Little Current, Ont., Nov. 15.—The steam barge, R. C. Briton, loaded with lumber supplies, went ashore on the Duck Islands on Monday and is in bad shape, will likely be a total loss. The cargo is being taken off in small boats as much as possible.

Steamer Waterlogged.

Port Hope, Mich., Nov. 15.—The steamer Emerald, from Alpena to Detroit, loaded with lumber and cedar, sprung a leak and became waterlogged in the heavy gale last night off Point Aux Barques. The life-saving crew rescued the crew of nine yesterday morning in a freezing condition. The men could not have held out much longer.

KING EDWARD'S OAK.

A Sturdy Tree Growing in Front of Washington's Tomb.

Washington, Nov. 15.—When King
Edward VII. traveled through America as the Prince of Wales he planted a chestnut tree at Mount Vernon.
This died, and he lately requested that an English live oak be planted in place of the dead chestnut tree.
This request has been carried out, and a sturdy little oak tree is growing now directly in front of the tomb of Washington, fenced in by an iron railing. It is growing finely and there is every reason for hoping that historic Mount Vernon will at least have a souvenir of the then Prince of Wales' visit to this country.

Anxious to Fight.

Tangier, Nov. 15.—Fierce fighting has occurred between the Benmisara and Mesnuda tribes, resulting in the killing of many on both sides. The Benmisaras razed a number of villages in the plains, and carried off 18 Mesnuda girls. They had been threatened by the Sultan with punishment for abducting a Spanish boy and girl, and took this method of demonstrating that they were prepared to fight any force that might be sent against them.

Killed by a Train.

Quebec, Nov. 15.—A resident of Chateau Richer, named Toupin, was killed on the line of the Quebec Railway Light and Power Company at Beauport. The unfortunate man, aged about 40 years, was employed by the company in repairing the track, and did not perceive the approach of an electric car until it was too late. He was struck and terribly crushed, and he died about half an hour after he was struck.

Canadian Bankers.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—General Manager Clouston of the Bank of Montreal was yesterday re-elected President of the Canadian Bankers' Association, and Messrs. Thomas McDougall, D. Coulson, H. Stiketter and George Brown, vice-presidents, with all the other officers alike re-elected.
The feature of the day was the president's address, which was quite optimistic.

Parliament on January 23.

London, Nov. 18.—The Cabinet appears to have awakened from its lethargy with such unexpected energy as to elicit from The Pall Mall Gazette the following comment:
"This strict application to business is to be highly commended, and will be generally appreciated." Parliament, it is expected, will re-assemble Jan. 23.

Railway Notes.

—Montreal Herald: The announcement that Mr. Hays will return to Grand Trunk will be received with every satisfaction in Montreal and in all other parts of Canada. It has been recognized all along that Mr. Reeves' tenure of the office of general manager was contingent upon his own judgment as to the date of a retirement that in all likelihood would not be many years off, and it is well understood that his own desire has been that it should be soon rather than late, to admit of his returning to the California farm where he long ago elected to pass the remainder of his days. Mr. Hays will come back with all the honors of his great success in the Grand Trunk and with the added prestige of having asserted his strength and individuality against the most powerful railway magnates of this day. The Grand Trunk profits by the confusion into which the Southern has been brought.

—The following further documents were submitted by the Warden and read by the Clerk:

From the Clerk of the township of Eldon, relative to the smallpox outbreak in the present year.

From the Clerk of the township of Carden, on the same subject.

On motion of Mr. Bailey, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the documents were referred to the standing committee on Finance and Assessment.

From the County Police Magistrate, relative to a certain fine imposed for fast driving on the Fenelon Falls bridge.

From the Clerk of the County of Norfolk transmitting draft of petition to the House of Commons respecting cattle guards on railways.

From the Prisoners' Aid Association, transmitting a petition for Resolution and constitution of the Canadian Municipal Union.

Victoria County Council.

NOVEMBER SESSION OPENED TUESDAY, NOV. 19th.

Warden's Address—Communications, Reports, Etc.—Grant to Eldon and Carden to Meet Expenses of Smallpox Outbreak—Reports, etc.

The November session of the Victoria County Council opened Tuesday afternoon at the Court House, at 2 o'clock. Warden Graham and all members were present. The minutes of the last day of the June session were read and confirmed.

The Warden's Address.

Gentlemen,—The ordinary business appertaining to the closing session of the Council for the year will claim your attention; there are, however, several matters to which I should refer particularly in opening the proceedings.

It has been known for several years that the legal restriction, applicable to driving along bridges, has been notoriously disregarded in the case of the County bridge across the river in the village of Fenelon Falls. I deemed it my duty, in July last, to detail a police officer to spend a few days in the village with a view to obtaining independent information as to the conditions that existed. It was found that any reports that had reached the County Council had understated the common practice of persons who used the bridge for vehicular traffic.

A number of prosecutions was the consequent result. Complaints having reached me of the uncivilized state of the bridge I requested a resident of the village to remove the refuse. I would suggest that a reliable person be appointed caretaker of the bridge.

I have authorized Mr. A. McGee to make repairs on the Big Eddy bridge, across Black River, and the Head River bridge, both on the western boundary of the township of Dalton, in conjunction with a representative of the County of Ontario.

In the month of September I was requested by the Warden of the County of Peterborough to send a representative of the Council to meet representatives of the Council of that County at the Pigeon Creek floating bridge with regard to repairs. I appointed Wm. Adams, esq., to attend the meeting on your behalf.

At the June session Mr. Richard Southern, of the township of Laxton, was nominated as County student at the Ontario Agricultural College. During the recess I was informed that Mr. Southern found himself unable to accept the nomination. I have designated Mr. Alvery Beecroft, of the village of Woodville, subject to your approval.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, seconded by Mr. Fairbairn, the various paragraphs of the Warden's address were referred to the standing committees having power to deal with the subjects.

Communications and Reports

The Treasurer's statement showing the moneys at the credit of the Corporation of the County of Victoria on Oct. 31st, 1901.

The stenographer's report of the conference of the County Council and the local Council on the subject of a County Road System, held 24th Sept., 1901.

Correspondence, etc., on the subject of a County Road System.

From the Manager of the Bank of Montreal, reporting balance at the credit of the County on June 30th, 1901.

From the same reporting balance at the credit of the County on 30th Sept., 1901.

From John Bailey, esq., respecting Head River bridge, boundary Dalton and Carden.

From A. E. Staback, esq., respecting grant for boundary Carden and Mera.

From the same, respecting the nomination of a County student to the Ontario Agricultural College.

From A. McGee, esq., respecting repairs on the Fenelon Falls bridge.

From the Clerk of the County of Peterborough, respecting Pigeon Creek floating bridge.

From the same, transmitting minutes of meeting of joint committee re Pigeon Creek floating bridge.

Report of the Council of the County of Peterborough, respecting Kinmount bridge.

From John Ham, esq., respecting Cobcock bridge.

From Thos. Morton, esq., respecting Kehoe's bridge.

From A. Montgomery, esq., respecting Big Eddy bridge, boundary Victoria and Ontario.

From Messrs. Horn Bros., relative to the Francis-st. sewer.

On motion of Mr. Staback, seconded by Mr. Bryans, the foregoing documents were referred to the proper standing committees.

The following further documents were submitted by the Warden and read by the Clerk:

From the Clerk of the township of Eldon, relative to the smallpox outbreak in the present year.

From the Clerk of the township of Carden, on the same subject.

On motion of Mr. Bailey, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the documents were referred to the standing committee on Finance and Assessment.

From the County Police Magistrate, relative to a certain fine imposed for fast driving on the Fenelon Falls bridge.

From the Clerk of the County of Norfolk transmitting draft of petition to the House of Commons respecting cattle guards on railways.

From the Prisoners' Aid Association, transmitting a petition for Resolution and constitution of the Canadian Municipal Union.

Our Remarkable Offer

TO SUBSCRIBERS PAYING IN ADVANCE.

KING EDWARD VII.—True to life, a beautiful portrait, size 18 x 24 inches, on beautiful heavy white satin finished paper for framing. This portrait has been taken since his accession to the throne, and is the very latest and best obtainable. It cannot be had except through The Weekly Post; each picture bears the King's autograph. This picture has the great merit of being the first taken after the King's accession, and has therefore an historical value that no other picture can possess. This offer is made to subscribers paying in advance for next year and will be mailed free.

LIFE A BURDEN.

FENELON FALLS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Rev. Mr. Horton, of Bobcaygeon, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church at both services Sunday.

The ground was covered with about six inches of snow on Monday morning last, and so many farmers took advantage of the sleighing that our merchants did a rushing business.

Just why the County Council has appointed a caretaker for the County bridge here is not quite clear.

Mr. Brock, the village Chief, is also a county constable and has looked after the bridge to see that the law is not broken regarding driving over it. He walks over it several times each day and could report any defect in the structure to Commissioner McGee, who himself also drives over it frequently. This bridge has to be cleared every year by the village, without cost to the county, and our constable could also report as to its condition without cost to the county. We trust that we will not be called upon to apologize for this article.

Mrs. Puley, also a little daughter of Mr. A. Clark, Jr., are both very ill at present.

WOODBVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

D. G. Campbell went to Toronto on Monday with a car load of fat stock for the city market.

Mr. Newton Smale, the liberal candidate for West Victoria, was in the village and vicinity a couple of days last week. He is right into the work and that to win.

John Campbell, Fairview, Farm, Mariposa, is at present in Chicago, an exhibitor at the National Live Stock Exposition in that city and proposes to take in the Fat Stock show at Guelph on his way home.

The barber shop is in full swing again, and the boys will not need to go away from home to get their hair cut.

St. Andrew's Society dinner will be held on Friday night in the Oddfellows Hall

Doctor Jack.

CHAPTER IV.

Admiration for bravery is not confined to civilized races. Even the most savage people of the world respect those qualities in a man which induce him to face death without flinching, whether in front of a mad bull or as a captive tied to the stake with the funeral pyre about him.

Hence it is that at the conclusion of the daring American's speech a buzz goes around the whole amphitheatre, which quickly swells into a tremendous roar, for, although his words in accepting the open challenge may not have been understood by the majority of those present, there can be no mistaking his action in removing coat and vest.

While this about still makes the welkin ring, Jack has dropped into the arena, lightly scaling the inner barrier. Then a sense of fairness seizes the multitude, and immediately cries arise:

"Silenzio! silenzio!"

The roar becomes a rushing stream, and this in turn a gurgling brook, until almost magically even the last sounds cease, and a death-like silence ensues.

Fifteen thousand human beings have their eyes riveted upon the form of the American gymnast. They seem to breathe as one man, waiting for the shock. Doctor Jack keeps his wits about him, and surely he has need of them with that black devil of a mad toro not more than twenty feet away.

He forgets the presence of the crazy mob that fills the amphitheatre to overflowing. A pair of black eyes have sent him into the arena, and he remembers only this:

His manner excites admiration, he is so cool and collected, and the victory of the good people of Madrid presently secretly wish he may be successful, but there are few who do not fully expect the stranger to be demolished at the first desperate onslaught of the animal, for when a man with the prestige of Pedro Vasquez is tossed out of the arena it seems like madness for an amateur to have a living chance, no matter how brave he may be.

Hardly has Doctor Jack gained the arena than a clattering sound is heard beside him, and turning his head, he sees the muleta, or red flag of the matador, together with his sword, lying near by. Bending down, he takes both into his hands, tests the quality of the Toledo blade in bending it by main strength, and finds it a remarkable weapon, which has served Pedro in many a successful bout, and finally makes a bow, not in the direction of the representative of royalty, but squarely intended for the black-eyed damsel whose words have been the means of sending him upon such a quixotic errand.

All this consumes but a few seconds of time. The black toro has divined, from the rush of applause that greets Doctor Jack's action, something of the loss of his sword, and has been seen chewing at the long tuft of half of the ring, to lower his head, and dig his blood-stained horns into the sawdust-covered ground, which he tosses up in a horribly suggestive manner, the while uttering those peculiar subdued bellows that strike terror to the ordinary heart.

Evidently the brute sees Jack, and will presently descend upon him with the fury of an avalanche. At present it pleases the royal animal to play with his anticipated victim much as a cat might with a mouse.

This suits the new matador, for it gives him a minute of time to note the position of the bull, and what impediments there may be in the arena, for a false step at any instant may cost him his life, and Doctor Jack is not in this game as a reckless fool, however much his admiring compatriots in the foreign quarter may believe.

The man who has led the life of a Texan cowboy for several years is apt to know something about wild bulls, and from his observation Jack is certain he has met just as fierce brutes in Mexico as this sable devil now preparing to demolish him.

One thing is against him—he is not in proper dress for such business, and unless exceedingly careful may slip upon the bloody tan bark or sawdust when such a thing will be fatal. What would be not give to have on a pair of baseball shoes at this moment, with spikes that might render his footing positively sure?

If the mountain refuses to come to Mahomet, then Mahomet must go to the mountain. The bull continues to toss the earth as though he expected to see his new antagonist make for the barrier, and in truth the presence of the chulos, pleaders, and baderillos perched upon the fence like so many crows, with one leg thrown over, ready for retreat, gives good cause for such belief on the part of the monarch of the battle-field.

With a few rapid movements of his left arm Doctor Jack unfurls the little red flag, then he advances straight toward the bull, which ceases to plough up the soil, and gazes at the other as though deeming him crazy, lowers his massive head, and shoots forward.

The tan-bark flies into the air as his heels spurn it. Every human being in that vast audience holds his or her breath in anticipation of what is to come. In that a shock as the bull's head comes in contact with a human figure? A cloud of dust obscures the scene in the arena, and one person looks aloft, expecting to see the American whirling through space, badly anticipate a speedy ending "er confess their disappearing to the ring "se, discover only "k with his there

"ome the now wearied brute, "me for the final stroke,

A nimble leap aside at the proper second has saved him from those cruel horns, and the bull's fury is increased doubly by the fact that he has failed in his first rush.

All again he bears down upon his snorting foe, as though determined that this time he will crush the man to the earth or assist him over the barrier. A perfect gymnast, Jack has little trouble in avoiding the onslaught, and but for the ever present danger of a slip, might really enjoy the fun.

While the toro once more amuses himself with the inoffensive tan-bark, Jack coolly takes a look around the amphitheatre. From the foreign quarter handkerchiefs are waved, and cries of "Bravo, Doctor Jack!" arise. These are incautious just now, and more apt to disturb the brave man who risks his life in the bull-ring for a woman's smile, than give him new energy. The Spaniards know better than to breathe a sound while the matador faces his foe.

Jack's sweeping glance takes it all in. He sees the eager multitude that is ready to shout "Viva toro" in case the bull should make a mistake and note the awfully red flag of the matador, and notes the look of nervousness visible there that tells him how anxious this man is for the bull to triumph, then his eyes sweep along until they reach his own vacant seat, and catch a glimpse of the beautiful girl next in line, at which he smiles coolly, and bows again.

This short comic from his American friend in the foreign quarter, and warns him that the bull has ceased his side play, and is once again on the war-path. Turning to receive the new charge, Jack's foot slips, and there is danger of his being struck, but quick as lightning he hurles himself out of the way.

Again the multitude breathe easy. They recognize the fact that this man is no amateur bull-fighter, with only reckless bravery to back him up, but one who has made a study of the animal in times past, and is qualified to anticipate the subtle brute's every move.

Thus they expect to have pleasure in watching the struggle for supremacy. It is a matter of supreme indifference to most of them whether the bull eventually slays the man or is himself downed, so long as the combatants afford them a good show. The life of a bull-fighter is held very cheaply in Madrid.

Already has Doctor Jack evaded three of those wild rushes. Will he be able to continue this system of tactics until he has wearied the animal out, and brought him into the proper condition for the final blow?

The bull no longer tosses the tan-bark with his horns. His challenge has been met, and he finds himself opposed by one whom he cannot terrify. As soon as one furious rush fails the brute wheels and makes another. He is continually in motion, and it seems as though there may come a moment when by some lucky stroke he will disable his nimble adversary, and change the tide of battle.

As yet Jack has acted only on the defensive, leaping aside when the time comes, and each time with rare good judgment. He has not received a scratch, and although the bull steams and snorts with his tremendous exertions, the man is apparently as cool and collected as when he began the engagement.

For the first time the people awaken to the fact that the awful black toro has met his master, and when Doctor Jack begins to assume the offensive loud shouts greet him.

Lit O seix h and the man went As the lumbering animal rushes past, the American plucks him by the tail, and gives that caudal appendage a twist that elicits a fierce bellow from the furious bull, drowned by the storm of applause from the audience.

After eluding another charge, Jack pricks the flank of his foe with the point of his Toledo blade, and his action elicits the humour of the lookers on, who shout their approval.

All danger to the man is not yet past, and he does not deceive himself. This brute is to be feared until the last vital spark is drawn from his body. Before that time comes, Doctor Jack means to show the good people of Madrid how their cousins in Mexico carry on a bull-fight. Instead of rushing at him now, toro advances with lowered head, as though hoping to make contact with his foe. He has been blown, and even the chulos could keep out of his way now. Some of these worthies make a move as though to leave their perch upon the barrier, seeing which, Jack roars out:

"Keep back, you cowards! This is my game!"

His manner, more than the words he utters, give them warning, and if this is not sufficient, the storm of hisses from the audience declares that such interference with the just rights of the bull-fighter will not be tolerated.

Doctor Jack has tamed the beast, and his must be the glory of the final sacrifice. They once more climb the fence, and watch the work of the man in the arena jealously.

Never since the days of Montes or Romero has a Spanish audience looked upon a scene the equal of this. Jack is determined to do the thing up in good style now that he has entered the game. He cares little for the applause of the rabble. It was not to please them he came over the stout barrier and faced this terror of a black toro, but he hopes Mercedes is satisfied now. He seems to once more hear the Spanish beauty say with that expressive glance, "I adore a brave man," and a warm glow thrills him as he glances up he sees Mercedes watching his movements with an eagerness she makes no attempt to conceal. He is tired and disgusted with the business. Still, as long as the ladies make no complaint, he does not offer to withdraw, but welcomes with pleasure a suggestion from Don Carlos that they depart.

The arena is again being cleared for action as they turn away. Jack notes but are descending in Doctor Jack's trousers upon a trick he remembers playing in the halcyon days of long ago before an audience in the land of the prickly pear and cactus.

Waiting until the massive head is lowered again, instead of springing aside, as has been his wont, he places one foot upon the broad space between the short horns, and the bull, as he is expected to miss his enemy, as usual, and must necessarily be tremendously surprised at this movement. Before he can take advantage of the sudden opportunity, Jack, with a light spring, has vaulted to his left, where he stands for a few seconds waving the muleta, to the intense mystification of the puzzled bull and the delight of the Spanish audience, who forgetting that the brave matador is a foreigner, give vent to their approval in a whirlwind of shouts and clapping of hands.

Then Jack drops lightly to the ground and makes ready for the final work. He knows his audience, and how far show goes with these people of impulse, so he rolls up the right sleeve of his shirt for business, showing the wonderful arm with that readiness this day elicited words of admiration from Don Carlos.

All readily gives his motive in doing this. He desires to warn them that the time has come for that serene aim the time has come for serious work, and begs them to keep silent in order that his attention be not distracted at the trying moment. The shouts cease. Again an ominous silence spreads about the amphitheatre.

The toro stands near the centre, pawing at the ground with one of his hoofs, as though to prove that the spirit has not yet been entirely broken in him. Evidently he is endeavouring to recoup his broken wind in order to make a last gallant charge.

All is now ready. Muleta in one hand and Toledo blade in the other, Doctor Jack advances toward his adversary. The scarlet flag is waving in the eyes of the bull, and tantalizing him to his death. He is no coward, and the sword succeeds perfectly, just as Jack has planned.

As the American slices away a dozen feet, and waving the flag, plants himself for business, the black bull lumbers forward, shorn of much of his former activity, but still determined to carry the war into Africa.

Not once has the red flag deceived him, and on this occasion, too, he heads direct for the man. Jack has fully expected such a thing, and hence is not caught napping. Just before that heavy set head reaches him he steps aside. His eye has marked the spot where he means to press the point of the sword, and the forward motion of the bull will do the rest.

An inch or two out of the way may be the cause of a failure, but Jack is no novice in the study of anatomy, and knows just where to find the heart every time. So the point of Pedro Vasquez's sword presses upon the black satin skin, vanishes from view, and a foot of the weapon is buried in the body of brave old toro.

The great beast pushes on a yard or so, stops, trembles, staggers—a mighty shout seems to make the very ground quake—the terrible bull is down—blood issues from his mouth—the Toledo blade has snapped off under his weight but half of it remains buried in his quivering body, and the deadly point has undoubtedly pierced his heart.

When danger menaced him, Doctor Jack was cool.

In the midst of the wild plaudits that greet his victory, he does not for an instant lose his remarkable presence of mind. Bending down, he secures the broken sword, places one foot upon the still struggling but dying animal, makes a proud bow in the direction of the governor-general, after which he lays his course for the barriers, leaping the outer one in a manner that pleases the people.

In another minute he has regained his place and resumed his outer garments. Save the fact that he is breathing hard, no one would see anything about him to tell of the encounter which he has just figured in as the tending character.

Don Carlos bends over and squeezes his hand, uttering warm praises, but Doctor Jack hardly knows whether they come from his heart or not. There is something in Senor Catalina's eyes and face that gives the lie to his words.

Mercedes says nothing, but if looks can convey the language of the soul, then is her silence eloquent indeed. Presently she takes her little lace kerchief and removes a speck of blood from the face of the American, who had gone to what seemed like death because of a woman's whim—herself. No one notices the act, for a new bull has been entered, and the chulos and picadors are gongding him—no one—ah! intuitively Jack's eyes shoot sideways to the seats of honour given the members of the Turkish embassy, and when he catches the black scowl of Abdallah Pasha, he knows that this day's work has gained for him the hatred of an unscrupulous prince who will descend to any depth in order to win the game.

He wraps up the hilt of the sword in a newspaper which he takes from his pocket, intending to place it among his trophies, as a souvenir to remind him of this affair.

Shouts arise for the scene in the arena is the old familiar one of charging bull and fleeing chulos, but the animal is only an ordinary specimen, and soon wears out after hurling one wreath into the crowd, when the dart throwers appear, cast their ribbon-decked missiles, and decorate toro like the prize cattle at Christmas time in Old England.

At last the second matador comes out, makes a bungling stroke, and has to repeat the job before he succeeds in finishing the animal, to the disgust of the audience, who, in derision, loudly call for the American, to which appeal Jack, of course, makes no response.

There are other bulls waiting their turn, but the spectacle has become tame to many in the audience, who admire bravery such as the American has shown, and empty seats begin to become frequent.

Jack himself is tired and disgusted with the business. Still, as long as the ladies make no complaint, he does not offer to withdraw, but welcomes with pleasure a suggestion from Don Carlos that they depart.

The arena is again being cleared for action as they turn away. Jack notes the fact that the American's trousers are soaped, and the thought in his mind takes the shape of a speculation as to whether he will ever look upon the face of the pasha again, little suspecting the strange train of events that lie in the near future, and which must bring them in contact.

They push through the crowd. Everyone recognizes the American as he passes. A few scowls at him darkly. Pedro Vasquez has friends, and they instinctively hate the man who accomplished that in which the matador failed.

The exit is reached. A crowd is pouring out. Jack, in the jam, endeavouring to protect the ladies as much as possible, feels a slip of paper thrust into his hand. He does not know who placed it there, and carelessly slips it in his vest pocket to be examined at leisure, doubting not but that it is a note from some amorous Spanish damsel, who imagines she adores him because he has been too gentle and shrewd for old toro. Jack long ago tired of these little affairs. The girl who wins him must be wooed, and not do the wooing herself.

CHAPTER V.

At last they gain the street crowd, already swollen by those leaving the pavilion, and as the word goes around that this is the brave American who slew the most terrible bull ever seen in Madrid, and deeded the reward to the poor of the city, murmurs of admiration arise.

Don Carlos secures a vehicle, into which they all crowd, and soon the more quiet streets of the Spanish city are gained, where they can converse at leisure. The older gentleman speaks at length of Jack's victory, and the younger joins in his praise, but she who was the incentive for the act says never a word in connection with it. This pleases Jack exceedingly, and he begs the others to say no more—that it did not amount to a great deal, any way, as he has seen bulls even more fierce in the land of the Montezumas, which remark brings him a quick and stern glance from Mercedes, who has not forgotten what she said when comparing the animals of the two countries.

The ride is continued along the beautiful Calle del Prado, for the day is fine, and all feel an exhilaration after the bad atmosphere in the Plaza del Toros. Just opposite the museum the senior gives a signal to stop, and orders the driver to wait for them.

Here they enter the time with pleasure, for the museum contains a wonderful collection of rare paintings. As usual, quite a crowd is in attendance—strangers in Madrid always make for the museum the first thing. Here almost all of the old masters are represented, from Rubens and Murillo to Raphael, and the artistic mind finds enough for a long contemplation to cover several days.

People are still crowding in, coming from the bull-fight, many of them travellers. A small admission fee is charged, something one seldom finds in the art galleries of Europe, though the attendants must always be tipped.

Jack is interested more in the lovely woman at his side than the pictures in the gallery, nevertheless he manages to find fault with several masterpieces, and express a plebeian taste for modern painting—bits of exquisite landscape, especially when there is some animal in focus. You see Jack's artistic education has been neglected, and as a general thing he sees through the eyes of the nineteenth century, and not with glasses three hundred years old, which accounts for his love of nature, and repugnance of gloomy paintings, no matter how valuable.

In the crowd, however, he does stand entranced—it is a Murillo, "Rebecca at the Well." The colours of garments and features, the well with its bucket, the maidens in the foreground with their loveliness of form, feature, and manner, and the turbaned Oriental attendants farther back, attending to the camels, make a bright scene that holds the eye of the most ordinary observer.

As Jack turns to make some remark to his companion, he comes face to face with the man whose glance he caught at the bull-fight—the Turk. This time he gives as good as he receives. The pasha stops and speaks to Mercedes. Jack's eyes are upon her, and he notes a singular fact. In his rambles through the South-Western States he has more than once seen a rattlesnake charming a bird, and noted the manner in which the poor feathered songster fluttered near the reptile, advancing and retreating, yet lacking the power to break the spell, and bound to fall a victim unless help came.

Somehow he is impressed with the idea now that such a scene is being enacted before him. Mercedes laughs lightly, but there is something in her manner that betrays concern, anxiety—fear of this man.

In the ordinary case it has always been Jack's plan to shoot off the head of the serpent, and save the bird. Perhaps he may have an opportunity to do something like this some sort here later on; meanwhile he will keep his wits about him and watch.

The pasha says something in a low tone to Mercedes, who, turning quickly, introduces these two men, born foes. Both bow gravely, but neither extends a hand. The pasha, in excellent English, makes a remark about the dexterity of the American in regard to killing a bull, and what a foothold he has upon the ladder of fame if he cares to carry on the business, to which Jack, unruffled, replies that he had rather practice his skill upon something more human than bulls, and has a mission in life a little above the feat of living upon the plaudits of a sickle Spanish audience at a bull-fight.

Just at this moment Doctor Jack's eyes, in ranging past the pasha, fell upon something that gives him a start. It is a face—one such as Murillo would have loved to paint.

The girl is not a native of Madrid. Her face, light hair, and wonderfully bright blue eyes, together with her costume, and, above all, the way in which she carries herself, stamp her as a New Yorker.

It is generally true that there is an individuality about the New York girl that can be detected even by careless observers, and Jack could never be called that.

He excuses himself to Mercedes for a few minutes to speak to an acquaintance, he says, but, truth to tell, he has never set eyes on the face of the American girl before. In his pocket he carries a photograph, and watching his chance, he takes this out to compare it with that of the stately girl who saunters about, swinging her parasol carelessly, and seemingly indifferent to the fact that she has been separated in the crowd from the companion who acts the part of duenna.

"There can be no mistake. I wonder how she will receive me, and whether my story may be credited. Well, here goes, at any rate. My chance has come."

It is easy to understand now why Doctor Jack's glance roved so often in the direction of the foreign quarter at the bull-fight. He was looking for this face.

Perhaps, in comparison with the wonderful features of Mercedes, this American girl could not be called beautiful, but there is something better about her features—they are full of expression, animation, and life. One might go a long way without discovering a face that can compare with that which Doctor Jack fastens his eyes on.

These two are the opposites of nature as revealed in woman-kind—the one with olive-coloured, velvet skin, magnificent features, hair and eyes as black as midnight, real figure, and the jealous characteristic of the Latin race; the other fair, frank, fearless, full of love for a frolic, tender if need be, but always her own true self. What a choice for a man.

Such a thought flashes through the mind of Doctor Jack as he looks at the girl before him, but time is precious, and the golden opportunity may not hold out.

He has by this time managed to push his way through the crowd, and is now close beside the divinity from Isom. Indeed, if he but chooses to do so, he might touch her. Instead, he waits until she looks his way, a trifle annoyed because she is hemmed in by a group of natives, and her silk attire in danger of being crushed.

Their eyes meet. Jack half smiles, and is amazed to see her start visibly. Does she know him? Impossible, for he has never before met this girl face to face, though just at present his mission in Madrid seems to have some sort of connection with her.

He waits no more time, for surely this chance meeting is auspicious. It must be accepted as a harbinger of success. Politely bowing, he asks:

"I beg pardon, but am I not addressing Miss Avis Morton, of New York?"

She freezes him with her look, and drawing up to her full height, replies:

"That is my name, sir, but I have not the honour of your acquaintance."

The manner implies more than ten words would signify, and some men might have been abashed, but Doctor Jack always did prefer to hurt; direct scout game, and was never known to flash in any well stocked preserve, snatching his trophies from the wild mountain brooks and lakes, where they had every chance in their favour.

Somehow he likes Avis Morton from the word "go." Her looks and manner charm him, and now her words add to the zest. Here is a girl worth the winning, and lucky the man who may wear the wild rose.

Jack has no fear regarding his reception when he tells her what is on his mind, and yet he does not hurry about it. Feeling so positive on this score, he seems to think he might as well enjoy watching the various shades of emotion play over that expressive face before showing his own triumph.

"We have never met before, Miss Morton, but in a foreign country the lack of an introduction does not stand in the way of people becoming acquainted when they fall from the land of the glorious stars and stripes."

She remains as frigid as the Polar seas, and probably there is no one who can assume this character with more hauteur than the New York girl of society. Jack looks in vain for some sign of relenting. His first attack has not been a very brilliant success.

"What you say may ordinarily be true enough, and at some future time I may be pleased to know you, but at present I am in search of my good friend, Madame Sophie. You will excuse me, Doctor Jack, if—"

"Ah! you know me!" he cries, delighted to hear his name fall from those lips.

She colours a little, then laughs.

"Well, to tell the truth, I heard the gentleman in front call out your name."

"Good gracious! were you there?"

"I travel by the old mode of Roman in Rome do as the Romans do, and it would never do for me to talk of Spain and say I had not seen a bull-fight. Besides, do you know, I actually enjoyed it a little. Perhaps away back I had Spanish ancestors—how knows?"

Doctor Jack has but one idea in view, and this to keep up the conversation, for although Avis has declared that she must not stand and talk with a stranger, like many of her sex, she does exactly what she declares she will not.

Perhaps this is due in part to the singularly attractive qualities of the American doctor, and the fact that he is a countryman, which goes a great way when abroad.

"Strange how I failed to see you there, when I examined the foreign booth carefully a number of times, looking for an acquaintance," he slowly utters, coming very near a slip.

"We came in late, Madame Sophie and I, just as the manager was offering two hundred something or other for anyone to conquer that terrible animal. I assure you, Doctor Jack, I felt proud when you accepted the challenge, and declared the fact that you were an American. But I was afraid you were going to your death up to the time you began to play with Taurus, when the truth managed to steal through my brain that you were a master hand. Where did you learn such a game in our country?"

"I was a cowboy in Texas for several years, but it was in Mexico I fought bulls for amusement and profit combined," he replies.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Pidge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with painful cough and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overstepped your bounds, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full size bottle."

Rev. Dr. Morris Wechsler, Rabbi of the Cong. Enai Israel, New York, Jan. 2, 1901.

Drs. TART BROS. MEDICINE CO., Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its composition alleviates all troubles which accompany Asthma. Its success is astonishing and wonderful.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours, REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

ATON SPRINGS, N.Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

Dr. TART BROS. MEDICINE CO. Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 186th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November, I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease. Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M.D.

Dr. TART BROS. MEDICINE CO. Feb. 5, 1901.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies, but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle, and I am ever grateful. I have family of four children, and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit. Home address, 235 Kivington street.

Vertical VS. Slant Writing.

THE GUELPH BOARD OF EDUCATION DISCUSS SYSTEMS.

Opinions of Many Ontario Public School Teachers.

(Guelph Mercury, Nov. 21.)
At the September meeting of the Board of Education a resolution was passed directing the School Management Committee to look into the subject of vertical writing, and report to the Board at a subsequent meeting as to the advisability of continuing the system.

In accordance with the instructions of the committee, Mr. D. Young, acting Secretary of the Board, wrote to school officials in several of the cities of the province, in order to secure the result of their experience with the system. Particular inquiry was made as to whether the system was in use, and whether it was likely to be continued; whether the business men of the place complained of the results of teaching the system; whether the system led to back-hand, and failure to secure speed and legibility at the same time; and, in case the system had been abandoned, what was being, or going to be, substituted in its place.

In response to Mr. Young's letter eight replies have been received. Of these only one is directly opposed to the system; the other hand several are enthusiastic in praise of it, and a couple are rather non-committal.

In the first case spoken of, the system has never been used. In answer to the question whether the writer says he has ever heard of one business man, whose opinion was worth anything, speak in its favor, while I have heard numbers condemn it. A. H. W. writes: "Business men have expressed to me their dislike for vertical writing—but I think had writing been taught as it has been, writing would have been a great deal better than it is now. Still another conclusively answers: "Not that I know of."

In every case where the vertical system had been introduced it had been retained to the present and seemed likely to be continued.

A question of special interest was that as to whether the system led to back-hand, and whether it secured speed and legibility at the same time. The replies greatly varied, as the following extracts will show: "The system is not the slightest doubt but that it tends to back-hand, unless the teacher is very careful and strict." "A tendency to back-hand is noticeable in a good many cases. This is not general, and is conspicuous in the case of a few pupils only." Another writes: "Sometimes yes, which is no impeding matter. The next man writes: 'In some cases it leads to back-hand. I am not sure that the system is altogether to blame for this. Many business men who were taught the vertical system are something approaching back-hand.'"

As to legibility there is no difference of opinion. Says one: "There has been a very marked improvement in legibility and neatness in the pupils' books and exercises." In regard to speed many of the writers do not consider it advisable to try for that with public school pupils to any great extent. A teacher in one of the smaller cities writes: "As regards speed, I cannot express a definite opinion, for I think that the public school pupil, with any system, can write very rapidly and at the same time with satisfactory legibility, is a rare bird." Another writes: "There is no reason why speed and legibility cannot go with it, at least as far as public school pupils are concerned. If due attention is given to training in movement, I can see no inferiority to speed."

In Toronto 443 teachers who had tried both systems were asked to give a vote by ballot as to which system they preferred, and 442 decided in favor of the vertical writing.

Some other interesting extracts follow:

"Writing is a good deal like a hard-boiled egg spinning on a table. The greater the activity the more upright it necessarily becomes. Try the egg and witness the writing of telegraphers."

"The chief point to urge is not the system of writing, but the method of teaching writing, having movement in its simplicity taught from the very beginning."

"If the vertical hand is the hand into which all rapid writers fall, and

It is the natural hand of children. That is, in both cases, in principle. We find the almost universal tendency of the hands of young people to a good position. Three teachers on our staff favor slant writing, the rest prefer the vertical system. . . . My own personal view is that if the teacher is sufficiently skillful and earnest to train his pupils into a good command of free, well-controlled movement, a system having a slight slant would be best. . . . The only real advantage that I can claim for it is that the primary pupils readily acquire it. For those pupils I think it has proved a satisfactory method; with the higher grades it appears to break down and becomes in the majority of cases decidedly backward. . . . I should be inclined to suggest a combination of the vertical and Spencerian systems—the former to be used in the primary classes, the latter in the higher grades."

BEAUTIFY THE TOWN.

What one Man can do by Setting a Good Example.
(Toronto Daily Star.)

There never was a big thing done in the world but which, if traced back, would be found to have had its origin with some one man. This is an obvious truth, but it is not mentioned often enough for the encouragement of men who desire to accomplish things, but cannot see how they could succeed, even if they tried.

We are told that about three years ago a school teacher went to the town of Cayuga, and set to work planting trees and improving the school grounds, work of such results that others took up the idea. The town council has spent money on its property, the county council made a grant towards beautifying the court house grounds, and Cayuga has in three years been transformed from a rather untidy place to one of the neatest and most pleasing towns in Ontario. That school teacher would probably be the first to deny that the credit is his, and, of course, it is his only in the sense that he began it, and others, whose taste ran in the same direction, took it up and carried it along to a successful length, creditable to Cayuga.

It is not necessary for a new school teacher to come to town to set such a movement going. In a city like Toronto, where it is easy for a man to attach a length of hose to a tap and water a lawn, there are many streets bordered with green grass, close-cropped and pleasing to look upon. There are others that receive less attention—grass dead, or worn away, and cracked earth where a green lawn used to be. Let a new man take up a house in one of the latter streets, let him come to the tap and hammer and repair the sidewalk, plant his steps, have his lawn sodded anew, and sit out in the evenings spraying water from a hose on that grass plot. In a short time the next door will begin to tidy up his premises, and the next year will see that whole street cured of its filthy habits. Appearances count for a great deal. Recently we mentioned the case of a Toronto man who had been trying for three years to sell a house for $1,200, but could not find a purchaser. So he spent a few dollars in painting it, and within a week sold it for $1,500.

It is the same with appearances count for a great deal. Recently we mentioned the case of a Toronto man who had been trying for three years to sell a house for $1,200, but could not find a purchaser. So he spent a few dollars in painting it, and within a week sold it for $1,500.

In the first case spoken of, the system has never been used. In answer to the question whether the writer says he has ever heard of one business man, whose opinion was worth anything, speak in its favor, while I have heard numbers condemn it. A. H. W. writes: "Business men have expressed to me their dislike for vertical writing—but I think had writing been taught as it has been, writing would have been a great deal better than it is now. Still another conclusively answers: "Not that I know of."

In every case where the vertical system had been introduced it had been retained to the present and seemed likely to be continued.

A question of special interest was that as to whether the system led to back-hand, and whether it secured speed and legibility at the same time. The replies greatly varied, as the following extracts will show: "The system is not the slightest doubt but that it tends to back-hand, unless the teacher is very careful and strict." "A tendency to back-hand is noticeable in a good many cases. This is not general, and is conspicuous in the case of a few pupils only." Another writes: "Sometimes yes, which is no impeding matter. The next man writes: 'In some cases it leads to back-hand. I am not sure that the system is altogether to blame for this. Many business men who were taught the vertical system are something approaching back-hand.'"

As to legibility there is no difference of opinion. Says one: "There has been a very marked improvement in legibility and neatness in the pupils' books and exercises." In regard to speed many of the writers do not consider it advisable to try for that with public school pupils to any great extent. A teacher in one of the smaller cities writes: "As regards speed, I cannot express a definite opinion, for I think that the public school pupil, with any system, can write very rapidly and at the same time with satisfactory legibility, is a rare bird." Another writes: "There is no reason why speed and legibility cannot go with it, at least as far as public school pupils are concerned. If due attention is given to training in movement, I can see no inferiority to speed."

In Toronto 443 teachers who had tried both systems were asked to give a vote by ballot as to which system they preferred, and 442 decided in favor of the vertical writing.

SOME GOOD STORIES.

Reminiscences of the Late John McMillan M.P.

The Clinton New Era relates some interesting stories about the late Mr. John McMillan, M.P., which girths and tales can alike relish, and which illustrates the motto of the man.

In the early days when Huron, Bruce and Perth were under one administration for county purposes, a certain section of Perth refused to be assessed, and much difficulty was experienced in securing an assessor, as threats had been made that any man undertaking the work would be mobbed and possibly killed. Mr. McMillan was appointed assessor with a full knowledge of the circumstances, and in the course of time visited the particular section. It soon got abroad, and one night a crowd gathered around the old-fashioned hotel, where he was stopping. They saw a strapping young man, six feet high, with well-developed frame, but nothing daunted, they ordered him to leave the section on pain of being roughly handled. Looking at them steadily for a moment, McMillan said in his broad Scotch: "Ga hame, ye fools, ga hame: I'm appointed assessor and am agoin' to do the work, and the devil himself can't stop me, an' it won't be well for any o' yer kins to interfere." They went home.

Mr. McMillan did not use tobacco or liquor; he was an abstemious man, and the former ever since he came to this country, but his conversion to temperance principles of more recent date, and shows his determination. A few years ago he went into a hotel in Sarnia, and happened to overhear a couple of young men in heated argument, during which his own name was mentioned. One of the men was telling the influence of liquor, and the other was trying to persuade him to go home on the plea that he had had enough. The other asserted that "he was going to have more liquor, for he was like John McMillan, who could take a glass or leave it alone if he didn't want it." Mr. McMillan, who was there, said: "Well, boys, if you are taking me for an example, I'll give you one that you need not be ashamed to follow, for I promise you I'll never touch a drop of liquor again," and from that time henceforth he became a very strict advocate of total abstinence.

On the platform Mr. McMillan could be nearly a hurricane if he wanted to. The words fell from his lips in a perfect torrent, and he was regarded as one of the most rapid speakers to appear at the House of Commons. He attended a conference meeting in East Huron on one occasion to speak on behalf of the liberal candidate, but a portion of the audience was disposed to be ugly. He whipped off his coat, laid it across the back of his chair, then unwound the long black tie which he spoke. On another occasion at the defendant audience remarking: "Gentlemen, I came here this evening to speak, but if any man in the audience wants to fight I can accommodate him. I'm either going to speak or fight, and I don't care which." It is needless to say that he spoke. On another occasion a somewhat similar occurrence took place in the Clinton town hall.

PETERBORO LIMESTONE TEST

An Ample Supply and a Very Satisfactory Analysis.

Limestone in great quantities and of exceptional purity is a most indispensable article in the manufacture of best sugar and Peterborough citizens are now rejoicing over the analysis of the samples forwarded to Guelph Agricultural College some time ago, a report concerning which has just been received by Mayor Denne. It reads as follows:

Dear Sir—We have the sample of limestone rock sent to Peterborough on Oct. 7th, and by making an extra push, have now the results of analysis.

Sulphuric acid traces Carbonic acid 41.30
Silica 3.34
Iron and Aluminum 2.35
Lime 49.65
Magnesia 2.01
Organic matter 18

The rock contains over 90 per cent. pure calcium carbonate (CaCO₃) and but 10 per cent. water, silica and other impurities, the two injurious constituents for sugar beets.

Lindsay has not as yet received a report of the analysis of the samples of Bobaycon, Corson's Siding and Cobocoon limestone forwarded by Mr. James Keith in June last, but it is expected daily.

Sugar Beet Bonus.

The cost of the hand labor required in the cultivation of sugar beets is scaring the farmers in some districts where it is proposed to grow them. The Guelph Herald says: "The proposal of the opposition in the legislature to give the grower as well as the manufacturer a bonus would have lessened, if not removed, the difficulty now confronting the farmer." Great is the bonus! If the government will give bonus enough Canadians can grow their own oranges, figs, pineapples and cotton—that is, if all the unbonused does not quit the country.

Torpid Liver

Is sometimes responsible for difficult digestion, that is, DYSPEPSIA. When it is, What headache, dizziness, constipation, What fits of despondency, What fears of imaginary evils, conduce with the distress after eating, the sourness of the stomach, the bad taste in the mouth, and so forth, to make the life of the sufferer scarcely worth living!

Dyspepsia resulted from torpid liver in the case of Mrs. Jones, 2320 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa., who was a great sufferer. Her statement made in her 77th year is that she was completely cured of it and all attendant aches and pains, as others have been, by a faithful use of

Hood's Sarsaparilla
That acts on all the digestive organs, cures dyspepsia, and gives permanent vigor and tone to the whole system.

THE TRADE QUESTION

Mr. John Charlton's Speech at the Washington Convention.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA

This Question Discussed by the Members of the Convention—Mr. Coppins of Massachusetts Admitted That Canada Had Great Reason to Complain of Inequitable Conditions—New Facts Added.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Mr. John A. Ewan, the Globe's special correspondent, telegraphs: Washington, Nov. 20.—In the evening at the Reciprocity Convention now in session here, the subject for discussion was reciprocity with Canada. It was opened by George T. Coppins, Vice-President of the Massachusetts Manufacturers' Association, in an extraordinarily liberal speech, wherein he plainly told the meeting that Canada had great reason to complain of the inequitable conditions that at present existed. At the conclusion of Mr. Coppins' address the Chairman informed the meeting that Mr. John Charlton, M.P., a member of the International Joint High Commission, had been an interested auditor of their meetings. A motion was immediately made requesting that Mr. Charlton make a contribution to the discussion.

Mr. Charlton was received with great heartiness. Almost every address delivered had been read, Mr. Charlton, although dealing with intricate figures, had nothing but a couple of slips of paper, and the ease with which he handled his subject was much appreciated and rendered it far more effective than if it had been read. Mr. Charlton's points, although in the main familiar to Canadians, were quite evidently new to an American audience, and he was listened to with the deepest attention. He chiefly dwelt on the fact that during the last fiscal year Canada had imported $119,000,000 worth of American goods, while the United States had only taken $70,000,000 of Canadian goods. But even this statement did not reveal the real disparity, for fully $30,000,000 of that sum was bullion, gold and silver, and other metals, and that $40,000,000 was the real meat of the trade. The balance of trade in favor of the United States, when similar reductions were made from both statements, was fully $71,000,000. The goods which Canada purchased embraced manufactures, farm and other natural products. He showed that Canada bought far more farm products from the United States than the latter bought from Canada. The convention laughed heartily when Mr. Charlton stated that the state of affairs was giving Canada a tired feeling, and he could assure them that it would not be much longer endured. He spoke solely for himself, but believed that reciprocity in all natural products of the mine, the forest, the farm and the fisheries would be satisfactory to Canada, and less she would not have. Canada was already one of the best customers of the United States, and as she had in her possession the last great stretch of fertile and unsettled ground, the continent was bound to become every year a still more valuable customer. Last year 12,000 American settlers went into the northwest. This year 24,000 went in, and next year he predicted that 40,000 would go in. A country growing like that was worth trading with.

The Regular Press Report.
Washington, Nov. 21.—At the forenoon session of the National Reciprocity convention yesterday A. B. Valentine of Bennington, Vt., president of the National Association of Kant Goods Manufacturers, offered the following resolution as representing the views of that association: "Resolved, that in the opinion of this convention, the treaty known as the French reciprocity convention should not be ratified." It was referred to a committee.

Titus Shoard of Little Falls, N.Y., declared that competition was the means for resolving any reciprocity proposal into its proper class. He said the French reciprocity treaty had obligated actually to reduce the duties on knit goods 2 to 10 per cent. below the duties imposed by the Wilson bill. A great deal of foreign trade was done on a profit of 5 per cent.

The session adjourned at noon, when the officers of the convention and a committee of 10 proceeded to the White House and called on President Roosevelt.

The session last night was devoted mainly to the question of reciprocal trade relations with Canada. Several papers were read, after which some business was disposed of, and the convention finally adjourned.

The views of the Boston Chamber of Commerce on the subject of reciprocity with Canada were presented in a paper by Mr. George P. Coppins. There was, he said, from the conclusion that Canada should be included in any general scheme for reciprocal treaties, no logical escape. We should cultivate such a good customer and not incur his hostility.

Mr. William Irvine of Chippewa Falls, Wis., largely identified with the lumber interests, discussed the attitude of the lumber interest, on the question of reciprocity with Canada. He believed that the lumbermen of the United States would voluntarily agree to the same concession proposed by the Canadian High Joint Commissioners, provided those who engaged in the manufacture of things consumed by the lumbermen in the manufacture of their products to a similar reduction of their products. He also discussed the preferential duty given by Canada on goods imported from Great Britain.

JOHN HAY'S SPEECH.

Declares American Diplomacy Is Based on Monroe Doctrine and the Golden Rule—Notable Utterance.

New York, Nov. 20.—The 133rd annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce was held at Delmonico's last evening. Covers for 450 were laid in the main banquet-room, which was decorated chiefly with American flags. At the table of honor, presided over by President Morris K. Jessup, were Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James; Hon. John Hay, Secretary of State, and other prominent statesmen and citizens.

The speech-making was opened by President Jessup, in a very few words. He then proposed a toast to the memory of William McKinley. It was drunk with all standing, and in silence. President Roosevelt's health was then toasted, while the orchestra played. The next toast was that of "King Edward of England."

In introducing Secretary Hay, President Jessup proposed a toast, "Our Diplomacy." The Secretary was warmly welcomed by the guests. Secretary of State Hay spoke of diplomacy, and said, in part: "There was a time when diplomacy was a science of intrigue and falsehood, of traps and mines and countermines. It may be another instance of the credulity with which I have often been charged by European critics when I say that I really believe the world has moved onward in diplomacy, as in other matters. In my experience of diplomatic life, I can say, without hesitation, that we have generally told squarely what we wanted, announced early in the negotiation what we were willing to give, and allow the other side to accept or reject our terms. 'If we are not permitted to boast of what we have done, we can at least say a word about what we have tried to do and the principles which have guided our actions. The briefest expression of our rule of conduct is, perhaps, the Monroe doctrine and the golden rule. With this simple chart we can hardly go far wrong.'"

"I think I may say that our sister republics to the south of us are perfectly convinced of the sincerity of our attitude. They know we desire the prosperity of each of them, and peace and harmony among them. We no more want territory than we covet the mountains of the moon."

"As to what we have tried to do—that we are still trying to do—in the general field of diplomacy, there is no reason for doubt on the one hand or of reliance on the other. President McKinley, in his messages during the last four years, has made the subject perfectly clear. We have tried, on the lines laid down by Washington, to cultivate friendly relations with all powers, but not to take part in the formation of groups or combinations among them. We have sought, successfully, to induce all the great powers to unite in a recognition of the general principle of equality of commercial access and opportunity in the markets of the Orient."

"We consider our interests in the Pacific Ocean as great now as those of any one power and destined to indefinite development. We have opened our doors to the people of Hawaii; we have accepted the responsibility of the Philippines, which Providence imposed upon us. We have put an end to the embarrassing problem in Samoa, and while abandoning none of our commercial rights in the entire group, we have established our flag and our authority in Tutuila, which gives us the best harbor in the South Sea. Next in order will come a Pacific cable, and an Isthmian Canal, for the use of well-disposed people, but under exclusive American ownership and American control."

"Let us be diligent in our business and we shall stand—stand. You see, nor crawl—nor swag—stand, as a friend and equal, asking nothing, putting up with nothing but what is right and just, among our peers, in the great democracy of nations."

In his peroration, he said: "No wantonness of strength will ever induce us to drive a hard bargain with another nation, because it is weak; nor will any fear of ignoble criticism tempt us to insult or defy a great power, because it is strong, or even because it is friendly."

After he concluded Secretary Hay was obliged several times to acknowledge the applause accorded him.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 29th, '01

THE "DRYDEN" RANCH

Mr. F. W. Hodson in his letter to the Farming World in defence of Hon. John Dryden's investment in a Dakota ranch, shows that Mr. Dryden and those associated with him in making this investment were working in the interests of Ontario farmers. Mr. Hodson reviews the Canadian live stock trade and states that on the dairy farms of Ontario thousands of calves were killed at birth because dairymen did not find it profitable to rear them, feeding the skim milk to pigs. The removal of the United States quarantine against Canada, through the efforts of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Dryden at Washington, had greatly developed the store cattle, or stocker trade. During the last four and one-half years of the quarantine only 3,762 cattle, valued at $52,606, were exported from Canada to the United States. In the three and one-half years following the removal of the injurious quarantine 301,073 cattle were sent from Canada to the United States, which were valued at $1,877,852. In 1898, under the old conditions only 402 cattle were sent to the United States by Canada. In 1900 86,089 were sent over. This increased stocker trade, Mr. Hodson points out, has not decreased the feeding of beef in Ontario, the cattle exports to Britain being nearly 25 per cent. more in value in 1900 than in 1898, nor any other of the allied industries. When the dairymen get a good market for calves and yearlings as well as for pigs, they are more independent.

There are still, however, hundreds of calves killed because, improved as the market is, it is still insufficient to absorb the natural supply of stockers. To help to overcome this difficulty, Mr. Hodson says, a number of Canadians met and discussed the desirability of establishing American depots for Canadian pure bred and store stock. The first step in this direction was the establishment of the much-discussed "Dryden ranch" in Dakota, the history of which is as follows: The company has an authorized capital of $250,000. The entire amount has not been subscribed, but it is proposed to dispose of a considerable portion of it within the next six months. The company owns 160 acres fronting on the White River, in South Dakota. This is necessary in order to ensure water privileges for the cattle. This constitutes the land holdings of the company. The entire ranching territory in Dakota is free to such persons as desire to use it, so that no further purchases will be needed. The investment is, therefore, almost entirely in cattle. It is proposed to run from 5,000 to 10,000 head. These must be purchased in Canada. They will be turned on the range when a year old, or less than two years, and will remain until they are coming four, when it is expected they will be ready for market.

Mr. Hodson expects much greater results from this enterprise when other ranchmen see how well adapted Canadian stock is for the purpose, and he concludes his letter by saying: "I trust that liberal-minded and patriotic Canadians will establish a supply depot such as the 'Dryden ranch' in every State of the American Union."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The income from Britain's foreign and colonial investments, which was $29,084,000 in 1890, was in 1899 the tidy sum of £60,707,000. It is to be noted that this great increase has taken place during a period of the keenest competition. The old free trade land seems to be doing pretty well in the struggle.

Prof. Terry says there are two kinds of patriotism, the false and the true. He's right. There's the kind that serves the country and labors for its up-building, and the kind that lies about and slanders those who are doing it. Both specimens are on view in Ontario just now.

The Canadian Gazette says: The royal tour will have done much towards enlightening the British public in their ignorance of colonial geography and colonial customs. Amusing exhibitions of this ignorance are constantly occurring. It is related that a lady in England said not long ago to one who came from the city of Quebec: "I suppose you frequently see the Falls of Niagara." "Oh, yes," was the reply, "I often take a morning walk there before breakfast." Adding, "It is only about five hundred miles." According to another story, at the time of the Queen's Jubilee in London, a lady of rank sent an invitation for a garden party to some Canadians. It was a pleasant letter, and very kindly expressed, and she ended by saying, "Please come in your native dress."

An important judgment bearing on fraternal societies was given by Judge Falconbridge, Wednesday, in Vatcher vs. Sons of England. The dues and premiums were payable on the 1st of each month, and had been paid in full up to July 31st, 1901. The plaintiff on August 8th, after the death of the insured, but without knowing of it, brought the amount of the dues payable on August 1st to the house of W. N. Syms, secretary of the subordinate lodge of which deceased was a member, and the proper officer, to receive it, but he was out. On September 10th, 1901, she paid the said dues to the Supreme Secretary of the society, who received them, knowing of the death. The court holds that acceptance of dues after breach of condition and with full knowledge thereof, binds the Society and it must pay the amount of the policy.

In an address in Toronto on Sunday Rev. Mr. Pedley had some hard things to say of gambling and gamblers, and incidentally he takes a slap at the Phariseism which has made Toronto the byword of the country. Here are some of his sayings: "Gambling has ever flourished where there were most civilized." "The root of gambling is the desire of men to forecast the future." "There is an involuntary tribute in gambling to the intelligence of man. When the desire to forecast the future is restrained in proper bounds it becomes enterprise and legitimate speculation." "The gambler is like the drunkard—he craves the strongest stimulants." "Gambling destroys health and happiness, and by-and-by life itself, the life goes out under a cloud." "In gambling one man gains everything and another loses nothing, and the other man loses everything and gains nothing." "There is no heaven for the gambler. He has burned up, he has killed, the very things which make heaven possible." "We are told that the city reeks with gambling hell and the houses don't throw a terrible side-light upon the reputation of Toronto the Good."

New York Evening Post: Who would have believed it possible after reading the American denunciations of Cuba in 1897 and 1898, that within three years American generals would be applying it in the Philippines? Yet the unexpected has come to pass. In Samar the strictest orders have been given for the entire population of the island to concentrate in towns, accompanied by the threat that anyone found outside them will be shot or hung as an enemy to the American people. Any man who should have dared to prophesy in 1898 such a state of affairs would have been denounced far and wide as a slanderer of the United States and been informed that the American flag never had covered and never would cover such infamy. Now, however, the situation has changed, and it is almost impossible to get those newspapers who were not outspoken in their denunciations of Spanish misrule to discuss the situation in the Philippines. When they are asked to comment upon it by such mislabeled as the New York Times recently, that the situation in Luzon is satisfactory.

Good Health

Is doubtless the highest human good. It is especially so to women, to whom it means the preservation of beauty, happiness in the home, and the enjoyment of social duties. There can be no good health for any woman who suffers from womanly diseases. Her complexion fades. Her flesh loses its firmness. Her eyes are dull. She has no home happiness, no social enjoyment.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which destroy the health. It establishes regularity, drives dis-agreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It gives good health to women; which means tranquil nerves, a good appetite and sound sleep.

"I was a great sufferer two years ago with female trouble and I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Mattie Hays of Trinidad, Colorado, Co., Missouri. "You outlined a course of treatment for me. I followed your directions, and now feel like a different person. I was expected to hear from you when I wrote to you. Three days after I commenced taking your medicine I began to feel better. I took twenty dollars' worth of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I bought it of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I would not take one thousand dollars for the good medicine has done me. I can't praise it enough. I wish all who suffer with such troubles would give Dr. Pierce's medicines a fair trial. I can work all day—doing anything, walk where I please, and feel good. Many thanks to you for your kind advice."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Stratton Exonerated

The Ontario Power Co. has been granted a lease of dam No. 5 at $2 per horse power by the Dominion government. The application was taken advantage of by the Pictou-boro Tories—backed up probably by shareholders of the Electric Light Co.—to make a violent attack on Hon. J. R. Stratton because his name appeared without his consent on the provisional prospectus. The hon. gentleman flared his indignation, and the attempt to deprive the people of competition in electric lighting and power supply proves a dismal failure.

Saved his Laundry Bill

A customer in our store put it unluckily recently by saying the 25c. he spent for a bottle of Four T's saved him an extra quarter in laundry bills. The only thing he was out was the cold in his head. Secure a bottle to-day if you have a cough or cold and try the same experiment. Sold at all druggists.

Society Notes

—Toronto Globe, Friday: Mr. J. W. Richards, Lindsay, D.D.G.M., of the 'Prentice Boys' Association, instituted a local lodge last evening in Richmond Hall, to be known as the Walker Murray Lodge, No. 4.

—Spy Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Fenelon Falls, was visited by Bro. (Judge) Harding, Right Worshipful Grand Master of Canada, on Wednesday evening, and was received with appropriate honors. After the initiation of several candidates the Grand Master addressed the brethren and later on was invited to take the seat of honor at a banquet prepared by Miss Hest Aldous, of the McArthur house.

Why Catarrh is Fatal

Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation that saps strength and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhoxone, a fragrant germ destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to perfect cure croup, bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for catarrh of the respiratory organs as Catarrhoxone. Large outfit $1. Small size 25c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Railway Notes

—Conductor Bert Kelly has resigned the Belleville way-freight and is now in charge of the Toronto mixed and Whitby mixed trains on alternate days.

—The Provincial Department of Public Works has been notified that the survey of the proposed government Temiscaming Railway has been completed over the first forty miles, from North Bay northward. The total distance to be covered is 105 miles.

—The Canadian Pacific Royal cars, Corn wall, York and Canada, are to be exhibited to the public at the leading Canadian cities, and may be inspected at Toronto on Nov. 25th and 26th. A fee of 25c will be charged for admission to the cars, and the proceeds will be distributed to charitable institutions in each city visited.

—A Reading Railway brakeman named Howard displayed rare nerve the other day. While coupling cars near Philadelphia he got his right hand caught in the patent coupler, and the pain caused him to throw up his left hand. The driver at the end of the long train interpreted the motion as a signal to go ahead and he started the engine. Howard tried to pull his hand away but could not, and was forced to run a mile between the bumpers. When liberated he walked two miles to a hospital and had three fingers amputated without taking an anesthetic.

VICTORIA CO. COUNCIL

Moved by Dr. Wood, seconded by Mr. Staback, that the standing committee on Finance and Assessment be instructed to take into consideration and report on the advisability of making a grant of three hundred dollars to each of the townships of Eldon and Cardon to assist them in meeting the expense of the recent smallpox outbreak.—Carried.

In motion of Mr. Staback, the Council adjourned until 10 o'clock on Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

The County legislators assembled for business this morning at 10:30 o'clock with the Warden and all the members present.

The Warden's Usual Allowances.

On motion of Mr. Staback, seconded by Dr. Wood, the standing committee on Finance and Assessment was instructed to consider and report on making the usual grant to the Warden for his valuable services during the year.—Carried.

Another Grant.

On motion of Mr. Shaver, seconded by Mr. Johnson, the standing committee on County Property was instructed to consider and report on a grant to the chairman of that committee for his services given between sessions during the year.—Carried.

Brown's Bridge Repairs.

On motion of Mr. Adams, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the report of the Commissioners appointed for making improvements and repairs to Brown's bridge, the boundary between Eldon and Cardon, was received and read, and was then referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Victoria Road Bridge Repairs.

On motion of Mr. Bailey, seconded by Mr. McGee, the report of the Commissioners appointed to make repairs or rebuild bridges on that portion of Victoria Road between the village of Glenora and Victoria Road, being on the boundary between Eldon and Cardon, was received and read, and was then referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

On motion of Dr. Wood, Council adjourned till 10:30 o'clock to-morrow.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

To-day's session was a very short one, lasting only about half an hour. With the exception of putting through a few reports very little business was transacted. Warden Graham and all the members were present. The minutes of yesterday's proceedings were read and confirmed.

Communications.

From the Treasurer of the North Victoria Agricultural Society, conveying the thanks of the society for the liberal assistance granted by the Council.

From the overseer of County bridges, respecting North bridge at Bobcaygeon.

From the Clerk of the town of Lindsay, transmitting a statement of expenditure on smallpox cases during the present year.

Report of Printing Committee

On motion of Mr. Johnson, seconded by Mr. McGee, the report of the standing committee on Printing was received, read and adopted without amendment.

Report of County Property Committee.

On motion of Mr. Bryans, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the report of the standing committee on County Property was received, read and adopted without amendment as follows:

Gentlemen,—Your committee have examined accounts as follows, and beg to recommend that the same be passed, viz:

Your committee have considered the communication from Messrs. Horn Bros. relative to the connection of their property on Francis-st. with the County sewer, and beg to recommend that the chairman of this committee be requested to communicate with them, with a view to the amount claimed from them being paid, and that the chairman be authorized to take such further steps as he may deem to be necessary and expedient in the premises.

Your committee beg to recommend that an allowance of $50 be paid to the County Treasurer in consideration of his services between the sessions of the Council during the year.

Report of Appointments Committee.

On motion of Mr. Fairbairn, seconded by Mr. Staback, the report of the standing committee on Appointments to Office was received, read and adopted without amendment.

Fenelon Falls Bridge Repairs.

Mr. McGee informed the Council that the Fenelon Falls bridge was in need of repairs, as some of the timbers were rotting away. The man who takes care of the structure had called his attention to it. Mr. McGee then put the following motion, seconded by Mr. Bailey, that the standing committee on Roads and Bridges be instructed to consider and report on making certain repairs to the Fenelon Falls bridge.—Carried.

Mr. Bryans wanted to know if Mr. Robt. Menzies, the man who is looking after the bridge, had been appointed by the Warden. If not, he should be.

Mr. McGee said Menzies was the party to appoint as caretaker, as he took great interest in keeping the bridge clean.

Warden Graham said Mr. Menzies had been recommended to him and he was no doubt a proper person, but the appointment was only temporary and awaited the action of Council.

The Council then adjourned until 10:30 to-morrow.

FRIDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

The County Councillors met to-day at 10:30, with Warden Graham and all members present except Mr. J. Bailey. The minutes of yesterday's business were read and confirmed.

Grant to Town of Lindsay.

On motion of Mr. Bryans, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the standing committee on Finance and Assessment was instructed to take into consideration and report on making a grant of $200 to the Town of Lindsay to assist in defraying the expenses incurred owing to the smallpox outbreak.

Mr. Bryans said the town had already paid out over $800 in expenses, and many of the claims have not been settled yet. The total outlay would amount to $1200 and the town should be helped if possible. The motion was adopted.

Report of Roads and Bridge Committee.

On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Shaver, the report of the standing committee on Roads and Bridges was received, read and adopted without amendment, as follows:

Gentlemen,—Your committee have given further consideration to the question of the proposed County Road System, a question which has received much attention at the June session, and was discussed by the Warden and members of the Council with all the township Councils in the County, formed the subject of a conference of this Council and the local Councils in the month of September, was the subject for consideration at the special session held in that month, and on which this committee reported. In response to the request of the township Councils that they should furnish a list of the roads they deem it desirable should be designated in their respective townships, the Council of Eldon, by their Reeve, expressed opposition to the scheme; the Council of Somerville name the roads they desire should be designated in their township; the Council of Verulam had at the conference, through their Reeve, named the roads they desire to have designated; the Council of Emily expressed qualified approval only and stated they are not in a position at this period to take any definite action in the matter, and the Council of Laxton, etc., express the view that if the road did not connect with some leading road or County town it would be better for each municipality to take hold of the government offer severally for themselves. In view of the fact that less than one-half of the municipalities directly interested have replied, and that some of the replies that have been received are more or less adverse, your committee with the approval of the Council, recommend that further consideration be deferred until the January session. Your committee most heartily recommend that the Council record the debt of gratitude the Warden has placed them under by presenting a plan for forming a County Road System, in conformity with the act for the improvement of public highways, to the local Councils with clearness and ability, and in a manner so unbiased as to impress those who heard him with the conviction that his sole purpose was to promote the prosperity of the County.

Your committee have considered the various paragraphs of the Warden's address referred to them, and beg to recommend as follows:

1. That approval be expressed of the steps taken to prevent fast driving on the County bridge in the village of Fenelon Falls.

2. That approval be expressed of having the bridge put into a clean condition.

OBITUARY

The Late Austin O'Boyle of Mara.

Orillia Times: It becomes our sad duty to record the death of Austin O' Boyle, of the township of Mara, in the 58th year of his age. For the last three or four years the deceased had been suffering from some affection of his kidneys, and failing to obtain the little relief from the treatment of the local doctors, he went to the Toronto Hospital twice with the hope of regaining his usual health and vigor. His disease seemed to baffle the skill of the several physicians there, and he returned home without receiving much encouragement. He bore his sufferings with Christian patience and resignation to the end, and fortified by the consoling rites of the Catholic church, and surrounded by his grief-stricken loving family, he calmly closed his eyes in death on Saturday, November 24th. The funeral, which was very large, took place on Tuesday, 12th inst., at St. Andrew's church, Brechin, where a solemn Requiem mass was offered for the happy repose of his soul. Among the present were relatives from Toronto, London, and Brechin, and the deceased was a prominent farmer, and a well-known character, temperate in his habits, honest and of high character, and confidence and respect of his neighbors by whom he was held in high esteem, as evidenced by the large concourse of people that followed the remains. Deceased leaves a wife, four daughters, two sons and a brother.
The funeral was held at the residence of Mrs. W. F. O'Boyle, of Lindsay, Clerk of the Court, to mourn the loss. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Wm. Orr, M. O'Donnell, Thos.
Roach, J. Koster, J. Croxby, and M.
McGrath. In common with the many friends of the deceased The Times extends to his sorrowing family its sincere sympathy in their present bereavement.

WHERE IS JOHN?

A Niagara Falls Man Who Is Wanted
—His Description.

Chief Neilson has received a circular from W. H. Maine, Chief of Police, Niagara Falls, asking that a lookout be kept for a man named John Melton, aged 35 years, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighing 155 pounds, dark brown hair, sandy complexion, large blue eyes, rather pale complexion, and high forehead.
No reason is assigned for his disappearance, but the Chief of Police, Niagara Falls, would be pleased to hear of his whereabouts.

navigation made it impossible for him

son. He is fully to leave any distant a sensible plan to adopt in future.

Seven Inches of Frost.

The men who are engaged in cut-tween William and York-sts., north side are finding the soil a trifle flinty owing to the frost, and it will be a costly bit of work in comparison with the excavating done here in the cold snap. Strange to say, the frost has penetrated to a depth of seven inches on Kent-st.—owing the overcast says, to the soil being wet and gravelly. On the side streets no frost is met with where the soil is fairly dry and covered with soil.

Ont., in 1862, and is the son of Rev.
Canon Brent, of St. James' Episcopal Cathedral, Toronto. He studied at Trinity college school Port Hope, and later at the university of Trinity College, Toronto, where he received his degree in 1884. In 1886 he was ordained deacon and was raised to the priesthood in 1887 at Toronto.
—Mr. Parkhurst, of New York, says he is in favor of opening the saloons on Sunday during certain hours. He further surprised his straight-laced congregation by saying: "I look upon the German idea of a beer garden as one of the most beautiful things I have seen in them on every day of the week and I know about them."
In connection with the announcement "Boss" Croker makes the following sarcastic utterances in the New York Sun: "Ain't it funny, these reformers' talk about opening the saloons on Sunday? The papers are full of it. The preachers, the fashionists, the whole reform crowd, are for opening the saloons on Sunday, and the newspapers haven't a word to say against it. Good Lord! I suppose Tammany tried that thing! I suppose Tammany came out for Sunday opening, what an uproar there would be! The newspapers, the pulpits and the reformers would pound us off the earth. The very people who are now calling for Sunday opening would denounce us as the biggest rascals on earth."

COMMUNICATIONS

Memorial to the Late Alexander Skinner.

(To the Editor of The Post.)
Sir,—Permit me to suggest that steps be taken to place on the Collegiate Institute, or some other public building, a suitable memorial tablet to the late Alexander Skinner; and also if necessary, to place some monument as may be deemed proper over his grave in South Africa. The latter may be arranged for by some general association. But his courage and patriotism in dying for his country should be commemorated in some form in this community. If a committee be formed, the required expenses ascertained and stated, there will be no difficulty as to subscriptions.—Yours, etc.,

Lumber Camp Mission Work.

(To the Editor of The Post.)
Dear Sir,—Will you kindly give space for a few remarks on Lumber Camp Mission Work conducted by the W. C. T. U. This department of work was undertaken by the Provincial Union upwards of four years ago.
Mr. J. S. Leckie, of Huntsville, was engaged as missionary, his duties being to visit the camps, conduct sermons, distribute comfort bags and literature, and visit the sick, etc. Mr.
Leckie's field of labor extends from Victoria County as far as Seabury.
In New Ontario, which reaches from Sudbury to Rat Portage, a lady missionary, Miss Agnes Sproule, of Fort William, is constantly at work among the lumber camps. The work is exceedingly great; the facilities for travelling are not always the best. When it is possible Miss Sproule goes by rail or steamboat, but a vast number of miles are traversed on foot. The greatest difficulty which presents itself to her is unfavorable weather. Mr. Leckie, who is fortunate enough to possess the ability for handling a canoe, journeys considerably by water, but most frequently with the teamsters, who bring in supplies to the camps.
The salaries paid to Mr. Leckie and Miss Sproule are $200 and $400 respectively. Besides this amount $100 is required to purchase suitable trucks, books for song services, and translations of the New Testament for foreigners.

Miss Fisher, of Wingham, is Provincial Superintendent of this department, but owing to the magnitude of the undertaking other District Superintendents are appointed to assist in forwarding the Comfort Bags, books and magazines to the missionaries, and also to collect contributions of money to defray the necessary expenses.

During the past four years very many persons in Lindsay and vicinity have contributed generously and cheerfully to this fund. Quite recently $21 were forwarded to the Provincial Treasurer, Mrs. A. O.
Britton, Gananoque, in aid of this work. Contributions of books and magazines have been received from several homes in town and were in due time forwarded to Mr. Leckie.
At the present writing a box is being filled for the same purpose.

At the annual W.C.T.U. Convention, held in Stratford a few weeks ago, both Miss Sproule and Mr. Leckie were present and gave very interesting and satisfactory reports of work that is being done by them in the Algoma and Muskoka districts.
In the course of his remarks Mr.
Leckie mentioned very favorably the work that Mr. Fitzpatrick is engaging in. The establishment of the reading room is certainly a great boon for the men in camp, but Mr.
Leckie explained that there was practically no difference in respect to literature between his work and that of Mr. Fitzpatrick, the government agent.

We were pleased to notice, in a recent issue of The Evening Post, the appeal made by Mr. E. A. Hardy, B.A., of town, for books and magazines to aid in supplying the reading rooms. After an experience of four years service as District Superintendent of this mission work among the lumber camps, we can say there is great need of every effort that can be put forward to cheer and make happy the lives of the toilers in the forests of Old and New Ontario.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, we remain, yours respectfully,
E. E. SHARPE,

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

The Bride was Miss Maggie McCarthy and the Groom Mr. Bert Kennedy.

Peterboro Review, Wednesday.
This morning at St. Peter's cathedral a pleasant event took place in the marriage of Mr. Bert Kennedy, of the Queen's hotel, and one of Peterboro's most popular wine clerks, to Miss Maggie McCarthy, daughter of Mr. J. McCarthy, of town.
The groom was ably assisted by Mr.
Timothy Carlinian, and the bride by her sister, Miss Annie. The ceremony was performed by the Ven.
Archdeacon Casey, and was witnessed by a large number of friends.
The bride wore a blue silk velvet travelling suit, trimmed with point lace, and carried a magnificent bouquet of chrysanthemums.
After the ceremony they were met at the door, by a host of friends, who tendered them hearty congratulations, and wished them all kinds of joy and happiness, after which the happy party drove off to the bride's home on Lake-st. Mr. and Kennedy leave this evening for Toronto. Hamilton, the Falls, Buffalo and Rochester, the latter city being the home of Mr. Kennedy.
Mrs. Kennedy has the best wishes of all the friends for a long, continued life of happiness and prosperity.—The groom is well known in Lindsay, having been assistant wine clerk at the Benson house a couple of years ago. His many friends will wish himself and bride every happiness.

ALMOST A RIOT.

Chief Neilson Interfered With Saturday Evening While Making an Arrest.

A remarkable scene was witnessed on Kent-st. Saturday evening shortly before 8 o'clock. A young man who had indulged in liquor until he was half-crazed was wandering along Kent-st., making a nuisance of himself and frightening women and children, when he was seized by Chief Neilson, who very properly took him into custody. This young man, who has a reputation for devilry when in his cups, refused to go quietly, and as Lindsay has not that city convenience—a patrol wagon—a struggle resulted which was maintained all the way up Kent-st. till the lock-up was reached.

News of the fray spread quickly and a crowd numbering two or three hundred hoodlums and curious spectators quickly gathered. The toughs in the crowd jeered and hooted and acted in a disgraceful manner, well knowing that Chief Neilson is not a sympathizer with their class.
Monday morning the young man,
Fred Baldwin, appeared before P.
M. Steers and pleaded guilty. He was fined $3 and costs, on $1 in all.
If Chief Neilson has the names of any of the parties who interfered with him he should take prompt action against them.

carloads of cattle to the Toronto markets. Messrs. McDougall, Brandon & Austin, of Fenelon Falls, sent a load of hogs to the Geo. Matthews Co., Peterboro, and three loads of mixed stock to Toronto Friday. Mr.
T. East, of Maynooth, North Hast-ing, shipped two loads of cattle to the same point, bringing them out by way of Lindsay. Mr. W. J.
Moore, local stockman, consigned a couple of carloads of cattle and hogs to the Toronto markets today. Mr. P. B. McMillan shipped mixed stock; Mr. N. McLeod, buyer for the William Harris Co., shipped a load of mixed stock to his firm.
Mr. W. J. Moore paid Mr. Wm. O' Brien, Emily, $50 for a cow, which was a beauty. The prices paid for live hogs was $5.10 to $5.15 per cwt.

JOHN WILSON,

The Baby Sick?

Then probably it's a cold. Babies catch cold so easily and recover so slowly. Not slowly, however, when you use Vapo-Crescine. Then a single night is all that is necessary for a cure. You just put a few drops of Vapo-Crescine in the lamp beneath, and place near the crib. While baby sleeps, he breathes in the healing vapor. Cold loosens, inflamed membranes heal, and all trouble ceases. It's a perfect specific for whooping-cough and croup.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, NOV. 29, 1901

Archidiaconal Conference

CLERGY AND LAITY OF PETERBORO ARCHDEACONRY

Met in Lindsay last week and discussed Church Business. Synopsis of the Proceedings.

The eighth Archidiaconal Conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterboro was held at St. Paul's church and schoolroom, Lindsay, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 19th and 20th. Twenty-seven clergymen were present and a fair number of the laity of the town and other parts of the diocese.

Tuesday's Proceedings.
Morning prayer was said in the church at 9.30, and a sermon preached by the Rev. E. Daulton, of Port Hope. At the conclusion the preacher introduced some very appropriate prayers by the late Bishop Jeremy Taylor.

On adjournment to the schoolroom, after the appointment of various committees, the Ven. Archdeacon Allen delivered his address. In this he enumerated the changes that had taken place in the removal of clergymen from this archdeaconry, the receiving of archdeacons from elsewhere, and the removals from our parish to another. He deplored the present plan of sending a clergyman by letter from the Bishop, instead of notifying the Archdeacon or Rural Dean, so that the new incumbent might be welcomed by friends to his new sphere of labor.

In speaking of the Widow and Orphan fund, he regretted that the assessment of some parishes was too high and that of some wealthy parishes too low. In collections for missions it was noticed that while some parishes contributed more than could be expected, and others less, it could not be said either school of doctrine showed more liberality or selfishness than the other.

The subject, "Is it in the interest of the Church in our Archdeaconry to open new missions, and if so, where?" was dealt with by Rev. G. Warren, M.A., Rural Dean of Northumberland, and Rev. E. Soward, Rural Dean of the diocese. The latter took a very gloomy view of the state of religion among the clergy and laity of our parishes, and considered that until an improvement took place no advance could be made. Many persons are willing to help build a church, to buy an organ, to contribute to the fund, but the help is practical and humanitarian, but there is little desire for the Christianizing of the people, or for the religious education of the children. We need to know the vocation of the church, namely, to save souls.

Rev. E. Soward suggested that while many are willing to support foreign missions they give so little to the work in our immediate neighborhood. Our Lord's words, "be ye as ye would be served," should be remembered. It is to be regretted that many who have left our church for other religions have not left the children unbaptized and never partaking the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. In the discussion which followed, a deal was said about the Havelock mission, in which the missionary, taken the Sunday services, but spent the rest of the week in Toronto, where he studied medicine. The Rural Dean was instructed to make enquiries and report to the Bishop.

An excellent luncheon which had been prepared by the ladies was then partaken of by the clergy and laymen present. After lunch, several testimonials were given, the national anthem being sung after that for the King. At the close of the Ven. Archdeacon several remarks incidentally were recalled owing to a personal remark made by the Ven. Archdeacon, and the Rev. E. Soward, of Toronto, who was present. Each related cases in which he had been mistaken for the other, and the surprise of the parties when they found out the mistake.

After luncheon, Rev. H. Symonds, D.D., of Port Hope, formerly of Ashburham, read the minutes of the last meeting and the same were confirmed. Dr. Symonds consented to retain the position of secretary on the condition that an assistant be also appointed. A vote of thanks for his past services was then carried.

The subject of "Christian Missions" was then discussed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Robynsberg, and Rev. E. A. Loughlin, of Ashburham. The former gave a sketch of the life and writings of Mrs. Eddy, making reference to the fact that many educated persons had accepted her opinions. Rev. Mr. Loughlin dwelt on the absurdity of the statements of Mrs. Eddy, such as "there is no such thing as matter, and no such thing as personality of God. There is no matter unless you think of matter." This materialist professes to believe the bible, but they accept what they please, interpret it as they please, and pervert it as they please.

Fullam, its personnel and duties, opinions of members of the conference, and the result of the conference. Rev. Mr. Davidson quoted from a work of Canon Gore on the subject. Meeting adjourned at 5 p.m.

Wednesday's Proceedings.
The holy communion was celebrated by the Archdeacon, assisted by Rev. John Creighton. On reassembling in the schoolroom the following were appointed representatives on the Council: the Rev. Canon Sprague and Rev. Mr. Fanning, and Messrs. D. R. Tate, George Bonister and J. H. Knight. The next meeting is to be held at Port Hope. The report on the Archdeacon's address was read and adopted.

The subject, "The need of consecrated and fit men for the ministry—how can we increase the supply?" was discussed by Rev. C. H. Marsh and Rev. W. Faracombe. The former dwelt strongly on our Lord's words, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He send laborers into His vineyard," and urged that this duty be impressed on every Christian. Rev. Mr. Faracombe, in speaking of the fitness of the men called attention to the apparently unfitness of some of the men chosen by our Lord, and that the work had been accomplished. In the discussion it was suggested that in the Ember Days, which are appointed by the church to be observed, the clergy call attention to the subject and request the prayers of the congregation.

After luncheon on the subject of "The work of the Sunday School: the preparation of the teacher by normal study or otherwise," was discussed by Mr. J. H. Knight and Rev. W. L. Vennings. In the discussion, the Archdeacon and others gave their methods of selecting teachers in the preparation of lessons. Rev. E. Daulton said that in some places a small number of teachers in separate rooms had been employed, instead of a large number of teachers in one large room.

The subject was, "How can we, while loyal and faithful to our own church, best promote Christian unity with members of other communions?" and discussed by Rev. Canon Sprague and Mr. George Bonister, of Haliburton.

The usual votes of thanks were passed and the meeting adjourned at 6 p.m.

LOCAL BREVITIES

To realize that it is easier to fight the foe at the front than the politician at home.

—Bobbygon boys and girls have been enjoying good skating since Wednesday.

—Mr. I. H. Fox, of Emily, boasts of a turkey weighing 23 1/2 pounds. He ought to try his hand at sugar-breads.

—There weren't enough lemons this year to make it worth while for J. McPherson to buy them up and organize a shooting-star trust.

—A suicide club has been formed, and the Montreal Herald would be glad to see a few of the illustrious members of that city take a prominent part.

—Oona Botta must be carrying around a considerable growth of whiskers. The war correspondents haven't given him a close shave for about 10 days.

—Commissioner Chalmers visited the Longford quarries last week, his object being to expedite the delivery of stone for the building of a new hall.

—John Berger, the seven-year-old son of Mr. Isaac Berger, of Peterboro, was instantly killed Monday evening by the rebound of a heavy stick of timber which a farmer was unloading. The boy was frightfully crushed about the head and shoulders.

—Many young lads crossed the river Saturday last on the ice, but it is risky to do so. The channel is open from the lower end to the Dillery Creek, but is closed from that point to Drummond's Bay, where some boys enjoyed their first skate last Friday.

—Thousands of turkeys are arriving daily for Dundas & Flavell Bros. On Friday there was half-a-dozen carloads, and the firm's cold storage warehouses and shipments will continue for the next ten days or two weeks. The firm hope to ship 75,000 birds to the English market.

—Dunoon house guests and boarders are delighted with the very complete system of steam heating lately introduced into every part of that extensive building. The system comprises over 50 radiators, fed by a large boiler in the basement, and no difficulty is experienced in keeping the temperature steadily at 75 degrees.

—Town dressmakers are warned against a fad which is going about, namely, for an alleged fashion journal. In Peterboro he represented himself to be an agent for the Paris Fashion Company, and filled in a blank form as a receipt, signing himself as "E. J. Wood, 810 Broadway, New York. Enquiry elicited the fact that there was no 810 Broadway, nor any agency such as the Paris Fashion Company.

—Many Lindsay friends will learn with regret that Rev. Fr. McCloskey, of Campbellford, met with an accident while driving last Sunday. Owing to the illness of Rev. Fr. Maguire, Fr. McCloskey celebrated early mass at that village, and while descending a hill on the way home some part of the harness gave way, allowing the buggy to run against the horse's head, and sustained some painful contusions and a bad shaking up.

WEDDING BELLS.

Bell-O'Brien.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Bell, Elgin-st., north ward, a happy event took place Nov. 20th, at 7 o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Oloana, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Albert O'Brien, Rev. T. Manning, B.A., pastor of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church, and the knot in the presence of a large company of invited guests. The bride was assisted by her friend Miss Walton, while Mr. Marshall Bell, brother of the bride, supported the groom through the trying ordeal.

Congratulations were extended to the newly-married couple, after which the happy party sat down to an elaborate wedding dinner. The presents to the bride were handsome and numerous, thus indicating her popularity among her many friends. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien will reside for the next few weeks at her father's home until their new house on Elgin-st. is completed. Their friends and The Post wish the happy couple a long and prosperous wedded life.

Make a note of it when you are leaving home to buy "The D. & L." Plaster. It is guaranteed to cure the worst case of backache, headache, stiff neck, and everything said to be just as good. Get the genuine made by Davis & Lawrence Co., Ltd.

PERSONALS.

—Mrs. Austin, of Golest, paid Lindsay friends a visit Friday.

—Mr. H. Laidley, of Orono, spent Friday with his son in town.

—Mr. Thos. Hodgson, of Burat River, was in town Saturday on business.

—Mr. H. Laidley, of Hamilton, is spending a few days with friends in town.

—Miss Cooper, Victoria-ave., is spending a few days with friends in Toronto.

—Mr. Geo. Lytle, of Nimco, South Dakota, was in town Saturday visiting friends.

—Mr. G. Hammel passed through from Winnipeg Friday to his home in Haliburton.

—Mr. Goulais, of Cambridge-st., has been the guest of Bobbygon friends for a few days.

—Mr. J. J. Preston, of Bethany, treasurer of Manvers township, was in town Friday.

—Mr. J. B. Ivory, general mer. hunt, and Mr. Jas. Moffatt, of Orono, were in town Saturday.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Chrysler, of Orlinville, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. C. Ray, of the north ward.

—Mrs. Mary Milburn has returned home, after enjoying a lengthy visit with her son in Glen Williams, Halton Co.

—Mr. John Clarke, formerly of Minerva, returned on Friday from the North-west to spend the winter.

—Mr. N. Ingram, a former Lindsayite but now of Fort William, passed through Friday to Robynsberg, where he will visit friends.

—Batavia, N.Y., Daily News, Nov. 19th: Mrs. Frank W. Board entertained last evening in honor of her niece, Miss Leah Curtis, of Lindsay, N.O.

—Mr. Wm. Boyd and Mr. A. Davidson, of Toronto, are in town purchasing heavy horses to be used in the G.T.R. trucking business in the cities.

—Mr. Norman S. Morton, of Chicago, son of Mr. W. J. Morton, of this town, left Chicago Thursday to join the naval band on the battleship Illinois.

—Mr. Jas. Muldoon, the popular mail clerk on the Haliburton line, now enjoying a few well-earned holidays, is being relieved by Mr. Corbett, of Toronto.

—Mrs. Thos. Pratt and daughter, of St. Paul, Minn., who have been visiting friends in Lindsay, Midland, Port Hope and Cobourg for the past two months, left town on Monday last for their western home.

—Mr. C. J. Murphy left town Thursday for Winnipeg. He has accepted a position on the Canadian Northern R.R., on which line Conductor Geo. Riley, formerly of this division of the L.E. & O.R.R., has charge of a freight train.

—Mr. P. H. Cond, druggist, left last Thursday for Wingham, having been summoned there on account of the sudden death of his mother. Mr. Cond received the sad message at the G.T.R. station while waiting to meet a friend from Peterboro. Mr. Moore Fanning, Lindsay-st., who contracted pneumonia while recovering from an attack of typhoid fever, is now out of danger and will soon be about again. For a few days his condition caused his physician and family grave concern.

—Mr. C. M. Murray, of Toronto, special representative of the Imperial Life Ass. Co., has been in town for a few days assisting the local agent Mr. Nixon Jackson, to close a number of risks. Several of our leading citizens carry heavy policies with the above company.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Silverwood, and child, of Port Angeles, Wash., are in town, guests of his father, Mr. W. A. Silverwood, of the north ward. Mr. S., who is part owner of a salmon cannery at Port Angeles, is paying Lindsay his first visit since his departure in 1899.

There has been much talk about Pny-Balsam, the greatest modern remedy for coughs and colds. It cures a quickly and certainly 25c. Of course, it is a humbug, but proprietors of Perry Davis Pain-Killer.

Enjoyed a Social Hour.

In response to an invitation from Warden Jas. Graham, the members of the County Council gathered at the "Big 20" restaurant last Friday to enjoy a plate of "Blue Point" and accessories. A very pleasant hour was spent.

Wedding Invitations.

It is not necessary in order to get the best and most up-to-date Wedding Stationery, to send to the city. The Post Job Department can supply the newest designs, which are forwarded from time to time as the styles change, and we print them as neatly and cheaply as can be done in the city.

Midland Chapter Masons.

At a meeting of Midland Chapter No. 94, R.A.M., held Thursday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. McMahood, Z.; H. McNeill, H.; R. M. Richard, J.; G. S. Patrick, Scribe E.; J. Kelley, Scribe N.; C. M. Squier, Prin. Sec.; A. Cathro, Treas.; N. Lawert, Jan.

The materials used in "The D. & L." Emulsion are the finest the market affords regardless of expense. Taken in cases of wasting diseases, loss of weight, or loss of appetite, with great benefit. Davis & Lawrence Co., Limited, manufacturers.

Hunting Notes.

—Mr. S. Johnston, express agent on the Haliburton train, has completed his count of deer shipped over that line this season. Thursday was the last day on which shipments could be legally made. The total number of deer or saddles carried was 301—100 ahead of last year, and 102 in excess of the tally for 1899.

—Mr. David Bennett, of Baddow vicinity, went out shooting with a cheap gun one day last week, and while in the act of firing at a partridge the weapon exploded. He was struck a glancing blow on the head by one of the flying pieces of metal, and the powder smothered his face, giving him a pronounced black and tan complexion.

—Mr. Thos. Sauter, engineer at the Fenelon Falls power house of the L. E. & P. Co., spent his last two weeks' vacation in the enjoyment of his beloved sport—duck shooting. He camped on the shore of Goose Lake, and had good success, killing in all 123 birds. In one morning's shooting he knocked down 41 birds.

—Mr. Sando, of Washburn's Island, was in town the other day and informed one of our hunters that the town sports missed the opportunity of their lives this week. Lively shooting in progress on the Songo of ducks. The birds scattered along the shallows to feed and rest, and were frozen in by the sharp frost. Next morning some farmer lads procured a boat and slaughtered the ducks till their ammunition gave out.

CANKER.

There is a mistaken idea as to the cause of cankers in the mouth and throat. Sufferers imagine that they arise from stomach troubles, but it is nothing more or less than the result of impure blood. Numerous so-called remedies have been floated on the market, but experience has proven that there is only one cure, "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills. 25 cents a box at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. PROHIBITION IN MANITOBA

Province May Enact Such a Law Says the Privy Council.

RECENT ACT CONSTITUTIONAL

Question of Position of Hudson Bay Company Not Considered—The Points at Issue—How the News Was Received in Winnipeg—Opinion of Hugh John Macdonald, Who Passed the Act.

London, Nov. 23.—Yesterday the Privy Council gave judgment in the Manitoba liquor case. Their Lordships declared that the Legislative Assembly of the Province has jurisdiction to enact the Liquor Act.

Regarding the subsidiary questions, the principles of which were whether the Manitoba liquor manufacturers licensed by the Dominion Government and also the Hudson's Bay Company were subject to the Manitoba Act, Their Lordships said no useful answer could be given.

Their Lordships declare the provisions of the Act as extremely stringent, and add that, unless the Act becomes a dead letter, it must interfere with the revenue of the Dominion, with licensed traders in Manitoba, and, indirectly, with business operations beyond the limits of the province.

No costs were given.

Lord Macnaghten delivered the judgment in which the law lords said that, although the questions submitted to the Court of King's Bench in Manitoba numbered 11, only one question was considered in the Court of King's Bench, and Their Lordships had considered only one question, in the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The question was: Had the Manitoba Legislature power to pass the Act? If not, in what particular respect has the Legislature exceeded its powers?

RE-UNE OF CASE.

Salient Features of the Act That Caused All the Trouble.

"It is expedient to suppress the liquor traffic in Manitoba by prohibiting provincial transactions in liquor."

That is the preamble of the Liquor or Prohibition Act which the Manitoba Government passed in July, 1900, to come into force last June, and which the Supreme Court of that Province declared unconstitutional because, in a word, it interfered with transactions that did not end within the limits of the Province.

The various sections, which the court held the Legislature had no power to enact, went to the extent of prohibiting "all use in Manitoba of spirituous, fermented, malt and all intoxicating liquors as beverages or otherwise than for sacramental, medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes." They included a number of prohibitions and re-

HUGH JOHN MACDONALD, strictions affecting the importation, exportation, manufacture, keeping, sale, purchase and use of such liquors.

Questions Court Answered.

The questions submitted to the court were:

1. Had the Legislature power to pass the act?

Two other questions dealt with particular sections.

4. Had the Legislature jurisdiction to make regulations, limitations or restrictions on the sale or keeping of liquor by brewers or other persons licensed by Dominion government for the manufacture of liquor in Manitoba?

5. Has the Legislature power to prohibit or restrict the giving away in distillation, as a free gift by the owner thereof, of liquor which has been lawfully imported into Manitoba or otherwise lawfully acquired by owner?

6. If the Legislature has no power to prohibit the importation of liquor into Manitoba, has it authority to declare it illegal for an importer to employ an agent residing in the province to make the importation on his behalf or to prohibit the importation through such agent?

The seventh was a similar question.

8. Has the Legislature power to provide that no sale of liquor for export shall be made within the province, unless such liquor shall be delivered by the vendor at some point outside the province?

9. If not, has the Legislature power to compel a person buying liquor in Manitoba to convey it to a place outside the province, without opening the package or parcel?

Questions 10 and 11 related to Hudson Bay Company.

All the answers were against the Government. The last two were not considered.

In the Privy Council.

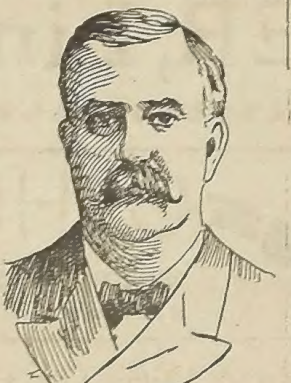

In the appeal to the Privy Council the Attorney-General of Manitoba, Hon. Colin H. Campbell, with Mr. Haldane, K.C., and R. O. B. Lane of the London bar argued that the act was valid and within the powers of the Provincial Government to enact. Hon. Edward Blake

THE NEWS AT WINNIPEG.

Neither Cabinet, Which Met, Nor Premier Will Say When the Act Will Be Put in Force by Proclamation.

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—The topic of conversation in the whole city yesterday was the decision of the Privy Council, which has been announced, declaring the Liquor Act to be valid.

The bill was introduced by the Hon. Hugh John Macdonald on June 1, 1900. The sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor was given to it on July 5th. It was entered in the courts a protest against it, and the Legislature at its session passed an act suspending the operation of the Liquor Act until the decision of the Privy Council had been secured as to the validity of it. According to this bill, the act shall come into force by a proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

There was a Cabinet meeting held at the Parliament Buildings yesterday morning, at which every member of the ministry was present, but no announcement was made of what was done. Premier Roblin, Attorney-General Campbell and other Ministers were seen, but they all refused to talk. They said that they had no announcement to make as to when the act would come into force, or what measures would be taken to enforce it.

Premier Roblin, in reply to the question, "Can you enforce the Liquor Act at once, or will it be necessary to permit the licenses at present issued to run out?" said "That is a matter of law."

"We received a telegram apprising us of the decision, but we cannot discuss the question fully until we know the full text of the decision. But I am not going into the matter to-day. I have nothing whatever to say for publication."

Opinion of Hugh John Macdonald.

Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., who was Premier of the province at the time the act was passed, and who was principally responsible for the legislation, said yesterday: "It was the judgment I expected, especially after I heard what had taken place during the arguments before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. In fact, I believed when the act was introduced that this would be the result, and that, although it went near to dangerous points, it was always within the competence of the Legislature of the Province. I would not like to express a further opinion on the matter until I see the full text of the judgment."

WHAT THEY SAY IN TORONTO.

Opinions of Mr. F. S. Spence and Mr. James Haverston.

F. S. Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, in an interview, expressed his satisfaction over the result of the Manitoba appeal, and said he believed in time prohibitory enactments would be passed by all the provinces, except Quebec.

"The decision," said Mr. Spence, "will put us in a position of advantage, by giving a sentiment to our work. The cause of prohibition in Canada has been handicapped by the aversion of the French people. Now we are practically freed from the handicap, and there is nothing now in the way of a prohibitory law in Ontario. It was really the adverse vote of Quebec that prevented a national prohibitory law. Outside of Quebec the majority for prohibition was 108,011, being 64 per cent. of the votes polled. In 148 constituencies outside of Quebec 121 voted for prohibition, the average majority being 1,034."

Mr. Haverston Speaks.

James Haverston, solicitor of the License Holders' Association of Ontario, said he was not surprised to learn that the Privy Council had upheld the Manitoba law. He did not think that Hon. G. W. Ross had promised to pass a prohibitory law. This promise was made by Sir Oliver Mowat, and he did not think the present Government was obliged to father it. It would not be difficult to apply the act in Manitoba, where there are only 150 licenses, but in Ontario there are 3,000 licenses, of which Toronto has 250. Quebec, he said, would never have prohibition, and, as Ontario borders on Quebec, the act would not be practicable here. He thought that a people who spend $40,000,000 yearly for liquor would not be dictated to like a lot of children. The decision of the Privy Council would merely change the license to the drug stores, and transfer the trade to those places. If the temperance people push for prohibition, it will make things lively, he said.

HAYS TO COME BACK.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson Has Announced His Reappointment as General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway.

London, Nov. 23.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, announced yesterday that Charles M. Hays has been reappointed general manager of that road.

New Yukon Railway.

Vancouver, Nov. 22.—McLean Brothers of this city, contractors for the Chilliwack dykes and other large Government works, are interested in the construction of a new railway line which will be built in the Klondike early next season. The line will be twelve miles in length, and will cost $600,000. At present, the cost of taking goods from Dawson out to the mines, on the various creeks, is three and four cents per pound. The new line will materially reduce this tariff, and will be a paying investment.

Commandant Buys Captured.

London, Nov. 22.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria, Nov. 21, says Commandant Buys has been captured after attacking a patrol of one hundred railroad pioneers on the Vaal River, near Villiersdorp.

RECIPROCITY RESOLUTIONS.

The Americans Aim to Have Benefit Go Their Own Way.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The National Reciprocity Convention finished its work last night and adjourned sine die. Several important resolutions, embodying the views of the convention on reciprocity and other matters were adopted.

They provide as follows: (1) That this convention recommends to Congress the maintenance of the principle of protection for the home market and to open up by reciprocity opportunities for increased foreign trade by special modifications of the tariff, in special cases, but only where it can be done without injury to any of our home interests of manufacturing, commerce or farming.

(2) That in order to ascertain the influence of any proposed treaty on our home interests, this convention recommends to Congress the establishment of a reciprocity commission which shall be charged with the duty of investigating the conditions of any industry, and reporting to the Executive and to Congress for guidance in negotiating reciprocity trade agreements.

"This convention recommends to and requests that a new department be created to be called 'the Department of Commerce and Industries,' the head of which shall be a member of the President's Cabinet. That a reciprocity commission be created as a bureau of this new department."

The chairman was instructed to present a set of the resolutions to President Roosevelt, and the officers of the convention were authorized to appear before the Senate Committee on Finance, and the Ways and Means Committee for the same purpose.

Fire Cuts Off Mine.

Telluride, Col., Nov. 21.—By a fire in the bullion tunnel belonging to the Smuggler Union Mining Company, probably 30 lives were lost yesterday. Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The fire, which is known to have been accidental, started early yesterday morning in the buildings at the mouth of the tunnel.

Murderer Dies in the Chair.

Auburn, N.Y., Nov. 21.—Fred Krist, the murderer, was put to death by electricity in the State prison here, at 6:37 a.m. yesterday. He met his fate with fortitude.

Crop Averages in the West.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—The Northwest Farmer, Western Canada's farm journal, in its issue yesterday published an exhaustive review of western crop yields for the past year, gathered from correspondents of the paper in Manitoba and the Territories. The Farmer says: "Striking an average of the yields reported we obtain the following results: Manitoba—Wheat, 24.44 bushels to the acre; oats, 44.44 bushels; flax, 13.60. Assiniboia—Wheat, 20.31 bushels to the acre; oats, 50.00 bushels; flax, 39.83. Saskatchewan—Wheat, 30.29 bushels; oats, 54.13; barley, 37.17. Saskatchewan—Wheat, 28.50 bushels; oats, 50.75; barley, 38.83.

A QUIET DAY IN GALWAY.

Mr. Plunkett Declares He Would Not Take the Best-Sketch of Winning Col. Lynch.

Dublin, Nov. 22.—The voting yesterday in the Parliamentary contest in Galway, between Colonel Arthur Lynch, who fought in the Boer Army, and Horace Plunkett, Unionist, is very brisk, and the excitement is increasing. A large contingent of Lynch's supporters have arrived from the country, and the police are kept busy averting serious collisions between the two factions. The result of the voting was as follows: Lynch 1,247, Plunkett 473.

On the whole, the polling was conducted with comparative orderliness. A large additional force of police prevented numerous street scrimagges, which were the outcome of drunkenness, from developing seriously. Women were conspicuous in these affairs, and many of them were arrested.

In the event of Col. Lynch's election being squashed on the ground that he is a traitor, Mr. Plunkett says he will decline to take the seat, thus reverting to him. He will be returned straight or not at all. Col. Lynch's friends seem satisfied that he will attempt to take the seat.

Sketch of Col. Lynch.

Arthur Lynch, journalist and author, was born near Ballarat, Australia, in 1861, and was educated at Ballarat, Melbourne University, Berlin University and Paris. He practiced some time as an engineer, and subsequently lectured on scientific subjects in Melbourne. After traveling in New Zealand he went to Berlin to study philosophy. He was a candidate in Galway for Parliament, and being defeated, went to Paris to live. He went to London, published some books and began a journalistic career, afterwards making a voyage to America. Returning to London he became a war correspondent in Ashanti.

What Edmond Says.

In Montreal Wednesday Nationalist Leader Edmond discussed the Galway election, and was asked what the legal position of Mr. Lynch was. Mr. Edmond said there was no bar to Lynch's election, but when the latter reaches the House of Commons there can be an inquiry as to his antecedents, and if he is guilty of felony he would not be allowed to sit.

Irish Leaders at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—John E. Redmond and his colleagues from Ireland were given a big reception in the Russell Theatre last night, which was well filled. The speakers were introduced by President D'Arcy Scott of St. Patrick's Society. Yesterday afternoon, at a luncheon in their honor, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. R. W. Scott attended.

SAT TOLSTOI IS DEAD.

Confirmation Is Not Given—In Admittedly Feeble Health.

London, Nov. 23.—An unconfirmed despatch from St. Petersburg says that Count Tolstoy is dead.

All efforts to secure a positive statement in regard to the rumor have failed.

It is known, however, that Tolstoy has been in ill-health ever since his excommunication, a year ago, and constant reports have said that the great Russian was slowly pining away.

Thanksgiving Day Deaths.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Tim Callahan, the Philadelphia featherweight, who clashed with Jack McClelland of Pittsburgh at the Crescent Club on Thanksgiving night, arrived to-day to finish up his training. They are scheduled for 20 rounds, and the winner will be matched to fight Terry McGovern. Tom McCune of Detroit and Fred Vannuch of Toronto meet in a 12 round preliminary.

Repairing Neatly Done

Never thought of such a sign for a medicine did you?

Well, it's a good sign for Scott's Emulsion. The body has to be repaired like other things and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine that does it.

These poor bodies wear out from worry, from over-work, from disease. They get thin and weak. Some of the new ones are not well made—and all of the old ones are racked from long usage.

Scott's Emulsion fixes all kinds. It does the work both inside and out. It makes soft bones hard, thin blood red, weak lungs strong, hollow places full. Only the best materials are used in the patching and the patches don't show through the new glow of health. No one has to wait his turn. You can do it yourself—you and the bottle.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

PROTEST FROM CRAFT OWNERS

Cabinet Decides Not to Permit American Bottoms to Participate in Canadian Trade—Decision in Accordance With Policy Advocated by Yeoman Who Wish to Feel Secure in Their Business Investments.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—The Cabinet yesterday decided not to grant the application of Montreal shippers for permission to use American bottoms for the transportation of grain from Fort William and Port Arthur during the balance of the present season. The forwarding interests are up in arms against the proposition from Montreal, and their views are explicitly set forth in the following telegram, signed by practically all the large Canadian grain carriers, which was sent to the Government from Toronto:

"Have received the message of Montreal shippers, and beg to say that facts as outlined are not correct. It is true we have grown starchy, but not exceptionally so for this season of the year. We have been making good time, and with every prospect of doing so until the close of navigation. There is no blockade at Fort William, and present shipping capacity can move fully one and a-half million bushels per week. We have not had an unusual demand for charters, and had no unusual demand for charter, and will be most unfair and contrary to all promises received to bring American competition against our Canadian vessels at this time of the year. Our present rates of freight are on a par with American rates. New boats are now in course of building, and contracts for more vessels to be built this winter are under way. We can never expect to build up a Canadian merchant marine unless we are assured of permanent policy regarding coasting trade. The plea that deficits in contracts would occur is not correct, as shippers are not bound by contract, except as to tonnage is secured. We protest against any change being made, and it was promised to the marine department by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that none would be made, except by vote of Parliament. (Signed), Hamilton & Fort William Steamboat Co., St. Lawrence & Chicago Steam Navigation Co., Montreal & Toronto Steamboat Co., the Westworth Navigation Co., J. B. Fairgrieve & Co., R. O. & A. B. Mackay, Sylvester Bros., George E. Jacques & Co., Conlin Bros., W. D. Matthews, J. T. Matthews, John H. G. Harty, St. Catharines & Co., Barlow Cumberland, Capt. John Gaskin, Montreal Transportation Co., Myles Transportation Co."

The announcement that the Government had refused to allow American bottoms to participate in the carrying trade of the upper lakes and carry grain for the balance of the season from Fort William to Georgian Bay ports were received last evening with satisfaction by the shipping interests here.

NOVA SCOTIA LIBERALS.

They Make a Clean Sweep in the Municipal Elections.

Halifax, Nov. 21.—The Liberals of Nova Scotia won another notable triumph in the municipal elections, which took place throughout the Province Tuesday. The County Councils are elected by direct vote of the people, there being one municipal representative, or County Councillor, from each polling district, and they held office for three years. Tuesday the elections were in the main fought out on straight party lines, and as a result the Liberals have swept the Province. In the eighteen counties of Nova Scotia, represented by between 500 and 600 Councillors, the Liberals held over two-thirds of the representation. They have a majority in sixteen of the eighteen counties, and in the remaining two the representation is about evenly divided between Liberals and Conservatives. This victory, while giving the Liberal party control of municipal as well as Federal and local affairs, will make that party invulnerable in Nova Scotia. This is the first municipal election here in which party politics played a prominent part.

The Gas Was Turned Off.

Windsor, Nov. 21.—The officials at the office of the United Gas and Oil Company said yesterday morning that the supply of natural gas to Detroit was turned off Tuesday evening in compliance with the promise given by the Interior Construction Company to the Toronto courts for a week's continuance of the injunction restraining Sheriff Tier from disconnecting the submarine pipes.

Skated Into Air Hole.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 21.—Miss Della Woods, aged 25, Charles P. Valency, aged 26, and Stanley McLeod, aged 24, skated into an air-hole, in the St. Louis Bay last night, and were drowned. The three were skating together, and did not see the hole until too late. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Hon. Mr. Law Dying.

Halifax, Nov. 21.—News was received here yesterday afternoon that the Hon. William Law, member of the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia, was dangerously ill at his home in Yarmouth, and his death is momentarily expected.

Twenty-Five Japs Killed.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 19.—Reports have been received here of a disastrous wreck on the Great Northern, near Cuthbertson Station, in the northeastern part of the State. An eastbound extra freight collided with a work train, and twenty-five Japanese are reported to have been killed.

"White Slave" Traffic.

London, Nov. 23.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says France has invited the other powers to send representatives to a congress to consider means to prevent the "white slave" traffic. It is understood that all the governments have accepted, and are prepared with voluminous reports. The congress probably will be held in Paris in the winter. The Gar is a strong supporter of the movement to suppress the traffic.

RECRUITING IN CANADA.

Mr. Chamberlain Asks if the Offer Is Still Open—More Boers Have Been Rounded Up.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—If Great Britain wants to recruit more Canadian troops for service in South Africa she has only to make her wishes known. When she does so arrangements will be made to meet her desires. The Colonial Secretary's recent despatch simply asked whether the offer of last spring to raise a Canadian mounted force of 600 men was still open. Doubtless Mr. Chamberlain's question will be answered by the proper authority, and we shall then learn what further steps the Imperial authorities wish to have taken. There seems no reason to doubt that if Canada's offer is accepted immediately six hundred men can be recruited, provided with outfits and equipment, and ready to start in about a month from now. These men would not all be recruited in the west, but a proportion would be taken from each Province, according to population, preference being given to those who have already served in South Africa, and are physically and otherwise qualified to take the field.

Two Commandos Captured.

London, Nov. 21.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria yesterday, says Lieut. Colenbrander's column has rounded up Beyers' and Badsahorst's Boer commandos, 20 miles northwest of Pretoria. The troops killed three men, wounded three, and captured 54, including two field cornets. The column also captured much stock and munitions of war.

No Intervention.

The Hague, Nov. 21.—The Administrative Council for the Court of Arbitration decided yesterday that it was incompetent to consider the Boer appeal for intervention in the war in South Africa.

Concentration Camps.

London, Nov. 21.—The Times publishes translations of two letters, written by a violently anti-British Boer woman to her father and mother from the concentration camp near Pietersmaritzburg.

The writer states that she is comfortably housed, is not compelled to work, and is well clothed and well fed. Kaffirs do all the work, and the Boer women can play tennis all day if they like.

The Times prints, with the letters, a note vouching for their authenticity.

Not For the Boers.

London, Nov. 21.—The steamer which the Government caused to be detained Tuesday at Victoria Docks is named the Banrigh. She has been used to carry passengers between London and Aberdeen, and was sold three weeks ago, ostensibly for use in the West Indian fruit trade. It was at first suggested that the vessel was laden with contraband of war destined for the Boers, but it is now vaguely suggested that any contraband on board of her was intended for Columbia. Customs officers are still on board the Banrigh.

Charged With Treason.

London, Nov. 21.—When Dr. Krause, the former governor of Johannesburg, who was arrested September 2nd on the charge of high treason and inciting to murder, was brought up on remand at Bow street yesterday for the thirteenth time, the treasury representatives created some excitement by announcing that they withdrew the application for the prisoner's extradition to South Africa, and wanted Dr. Krause committed to the Old Bailey on charges of high treason and incitement to murder. The treasury officials consider there is ample justification to try Dr. Krause here on the charge of inciting Dr. Cornelius Brocksman, the former public prosecutor of Johannesburg, who was executed Sept. 30, to murder Douglas Foster, an English lawyer, attached to Lord Roberts' staff, who was very active against the Boers. Witnesses were called to support the charges. Dr. Krause was remanded for a fortnight in £4,000 bail.

Another Canadian Ill.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—A cablegram from Mr. Chamberlain states that G. M. Cove, South African Constabulary, was dangerously ill of enteric fever on Nov. 11. The father is George R. Cove, Amherst Head, Cumberland County, N.S.

Plague Rife at Cape Town.

Norfolk, W. Va., Nov. 21.—The British steamer Monmouth, Captain Troop, which arrived here yesterday direct from Cape Town, South Africa, reports the existence of over 800 cases of bubonic plague in the vicinity of Cape Town when she left that port. Up to the time she sailed 880 deaths from the plague had occurred.

Horse's Kick Fatal.

Napanee, Nov. 21.—Luke Sharp, a farmer aged 45, living about seven miles from here, was yesterday kicked so severely by a horse that he died in a very short time.

Lockjaw After Vaccination.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 21.—A 6-year-old daughter of Oscar Causton, a letter carrier, died last night from lockjaw, following vaccination.

MAKE THE FARM PAY

Tawa, Nov. 22.—There appears to be considerable basis for the report that a conspiracy was planned by adventurers to overpower the mounted Police and seize the Yukon. Owing to the vigilance of the Police, however, the plot was nipped in the bud, and any attempt at rioting will find the Canadian authorities fully on the alert. Information of the conspiracy reached the Government here some time ago, and reinforcements of police were quietly moved up to the Yukon and stationed at White Horse to prevent movement of the rebels across the border. The force of mounted Police in the Yukon now amounts to 1,000 men, and it is quite possible that the ranks will be still further strengthened, in order to guard against possible contingencies. Whether the raid was sufficiently well planned or strongly supported to be dangerous in any measure of success is doubtful, but the prompt action of the police, supplemented by precautionary measures ordered here, will render impossible any attempt at invasion.

THE SUGAR BEET QUESTION

Commendable Interest is Now Being Displayed

DEPUTATION MET THE COUNTY COUNCIL LAST FRIDAY

Asking that a Grant be Made to Pay a Canvasser to Secure a Guarantee of 5,000 Acres of Beets.

Messrs. Jas. Keith, Wm. Channon, Geo. Payne, Johnston Ellis and T. Stewart, represented a deputation that waited on the County Council yesterday, asking for a grant to enable them to engage a man to canvass the farmers to grow sugar beets.

Mr. Ellis said the sugar beet question was a very important one—especially now—to the farmers of this County. He, with some other gentlemen, had gone to Peterboro, and through their influence they succeeded in getting a seat on the government in this County. The test had been made and had proved a gratifying success. Nine plots in this County were tested against Peterboro's 21, and in spite of the disadvantage of twelve different towns in the province, before capitalists could be approached with the object of urging them to locate a factory in Lindsay we must be able to guarantee to them a sufficient acreage to warrant them to establish a sugar industry. The object of the deputation in appearing before Council was to ask that a suitable grant be made to enable them to engage a man to go about among the farmers of this County to canvass them to grow sugar beets. He remembered quite well how hard it was to get farmers to raise hop peas, but now there is no trouble. There had been twelve tests of sugar beets in the province instead of six, as at first intended, and Lindsay stands third. Perhaps if some of the farmers had followed instructions more carefully, and the tests had been made from 21 plots instead of 9, Lindsay might have headed the list. The conditions had been unfavorable for beet growing—early in the season there was too much rain, and in the summer it was dry, and consequently the ground got very hard. On sandy land the beets had done well. He (the speaker) pulled his beet before the proper time—when they were making sugar—and although it was a blunder on his part, he could say he was never notified when to pull them.

Mr. Channon said the people of the County ought to interest themselves in this important question. If citizens had not taken advantage of the offer to establish a hospital in Lindsay we would not have such a handsome building to-day, and now we should exert ourselves to try, if possible, to locate a sugar refinery in the County. Definite acreage could not be taken until the possible acreage had been ascertained. They wished the Council to make a grant to employ a man to canvass the farmers. We are favorably situated, and if any county can do it surely Victoria can grow 5,000 acres. If not we can draw from surrounding counties. At Wallaceburg a site for a factory was selected by capitalists, but they could not secure the required number of acres of beets to warrant them to build. He had grown on a half-acre of land 40 wagon loads, amounting to 40 bushels to the load, making a total of 240 bushels, which was a fair showing. The land in the County of Victoria is suitable for growing sugar beets, and there is abundance of limestone and water. Berlin is making a strong attempt to secure a factory, and we ought to do the same. Two years ago there was no sugar factory in the State of Michigan, but now there are 12 or 15. In Illinois there are a number of factories, and those States must have met with many difficulties at first in securing the required acreage. We have here to further our individual interests, but those of the County at large. We must get the farmers interested, and if a sugar factory is a good thing, let us have one at our doors.

Mr. Keith pointed out that Berlin was the lowest on the list. If tested while Lindsay ranked third. Berlin is securing a factory because they are giving a bonus of $30,000. Limestone of the right kind can be secured, and we have the right kind of soil. We must secure a guarantee of the required number of acres, and that can only be done by canvassing the farmers. When we get the acreage then we can talk business. One farmer had remarked to him that if he could grow as good crops of beets in other years as this he would cultivate 200 acres. The price the farmer can secure for beets is about $4 per ton.

Mr. G. Payne said he was interested in the growing of sugar beets, and some of his neighbors were also. A sugar refinery would be a grand thing for this County, and they should be any trouble in inducing the farmers to grow sugar beets. The beets he grew this year weighed 21 tons to the acre; the seed was sown in May, when it was very wet.

Mr. Stewart said he would not attempt to tell how to grow sugar beets, but wished to say that the question should interest every citizen of the County. A meeting in April last, composed mainly of farmers, had been largely attended. Prof. Shuttleworth was present and told them many important things about the sugar beet. Sugar beets grown in this County has been on exhibition at the Toronto Fair, and Mr. Hopkins was written to by a party, but since then the promoters had gone to Berlin. It was important that the raw material should be guaranteed, and the acreage must be within reach of the factory. Farmers will realize about $4 per ton for beets making 12 per cent. sugar. A sugar factory would be a permanent industry for all time to come. Our object is to secure the number of acres required to justify the erection of a factory, and in order to do that we should take definite steps at once. A canvasser of the farmers in the County should be instituted, and we ask for a grant to defray a man's expenses in going around. Meetings should be held in country schoolhouses to discuss the question, as it would be impossible to call on every farmer, and names could then be secured. A grant of $800 would be a suitable amount.

B. I. GOUGH, LINDSAY AND MIDLAND, The Price Revolutionizing Clothier.

Mr. Fairbairn—"Is there any guarantee as to the seed?"

Mr. Keith—"The seed will be supplied to the farmers at wholesale prices."

Mr. Johnston—"Is limestone and water necessary to have?"

Mr. Keith—"Yes, absolutely essential."

Mr. Shaver—"What is the number of acres necessary for a factory?"

Mr. Keith—"Five thousand acres."

Mr. Staback said he was in conversation with a young man interested in sugar beets, and he said $4 per ton was the standard price paid to the farmers.

Mr. McGee—"I understand the farmers get $4 per ton and draw to the nearest shipping point—the bank of a river or the railway; he has not freight to pay."

Mr. Shaver—"Peterboro has the largest percentage on the tests, and no doubt they will endeavor to secure a factory. We ought to get 5,000 acres in this County, but there is no use denying that the season had been most favorable and the fall very delightful. Mangolds and all roots had done well, and in some cases where sugar beets had been sown, if they had not done well the weather should not be blamed."

The Warden informed the gentlemen that the question discussed was most important, and one in which all should be deeply interested. He assured them their request would be carefully considered by the Council.

It was then moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Shaver, that the sugar beet question, discussed by the deputation, be referred to the standing committee on Finance and Assessment.—Carried.
